HITLER DEVOTES TIME TO CELEBRATING ART WEEK

German Mouthpiece Says America Chosen As Arms Workshop Of 'War Party'

(By Associated Press)

Comparative calm characterized the international scene yesterday, ushering in what on the surface promised to be one of the quietest week-ends the world has seen in recent months. Nevertheless, anxious eyes watched two trouble zones—the orient and Danzig.

All the world's big powers were making the most of the lull to prepare for any upheaval.

Britain was one of the busiest. Starting her first peace-time conscription in modern times, Britain mustered 34,000 youths into her new conscript army. They were the first of 200,000 to be called for six months' training.

Addition of these recruits was the latest British move in the past week to place manpower and resources on virtually a war-time footing for any eventuality.

Preparedness moves and a British-French display of strength during France's Bastille day celebration Friday were timed also to impress Rome and Berlin at a moment when Japan was struggling for domination of the far east and the Danzig problem remained unsettled.

Britain talked of more babies, taking a cue from its French allies, who have followed Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in advocating increased birth rates to hold their places in the sun.

Hitler spent the week-end celebrating German art week at Munich. He speaks today, but is expected to devote his remarks to art and not international politics.

Top-flight Nazis gathered with Hitler at Munich indicated Germany was standing pat on the Polish question and intends to have Danzig become a part of the Fatherland "as soon as convenient." Nobody would predict when that would be.

The mouthpiece of the German foreign office declared President Roosevelt's special message and Secretary Hull's statement to congress on neutrality legislation showed the United States was chosen as "the arms workshop of a definite war party."

The publication, commenting on the president's efforts for revision of the arms embargo, asserted:

"The war party (obviously alluding to Britain and France) would build its own war industry on American soil with American workers and American raw material whereby the cash and carry clause would be easily circumvented."

Danzig itself was a picture of serenity. Boys and girls of the Hitler youth organization frolicked at sports events and picnics while Nazi leaders awaited the return of Albert Forster, local leader, from talks with Hitler. Danzigers believed Hitler instructed Forster to be patient.

In France, Premier Daladier took personal charge of inquiries into alleged German espionage operations. His first step was to warn the press of severe penalties for publication of unauthorized information.

The first newspapers to appear after the order published reports that French secret police inspectors had gone to London to confer with Scotland Yard and military intelligence officials who have cooperated closely in Daladier's investigation.

Evidences of British-Japanese bitterness were seen anew in many parts of China as the two powers started negotiations in Tokyo through which Japan hopes to compel British "co-

DR. J. EDWIN SLICER DIES IN SHREVEPORT

SHREVEPORT, La., July 15.—(AP)—Dr. J. Edwin Slicer, 57, Shreveport physician, died of an apoplectic stroke here early today.

Dr. Slicer, born November 30, 1881, at St. Joseph, La., was educated there and later took his medical course at Tulane. He began the practice of medicine at St. Joseph, coming to Shreveport about 1911. In 1913 when the Youree hotel was opened he became resident physician, a position he held continuously until his death with the exception of the period when he was in the army medical service during the World war.

He was a member of the state charity hospital board for several years and at one time served as chairman. However, he resigned from the board a few years ago and had no official capacity with the hospital at the time of his death except as an honorary member of the staff.

Surviving is his widow, the former Miss Jeannette Hill.

MERCURY SHOWS 105.4 DEGREES

Temperature Shoots To New High For Summer As Residents Swelter

The mercury in the Monroe area shot to a new high for the summer yesterday, when the government thermometer at Selman airport located east of the city, chalked up a maximum of 105.4 degrees.

Strangely enough, it was hotter in the wide, open spaces of Selman field than it was in downtown Monroe. The United Gas company's thermometer at the city hall recorded a maximum of 104.5. Ordinarily the city hall mercury goes considerably higher than at the airport.

Friday's maximum at the airport was 103.2.

TEMPERATURES PASS 100-DEGREE MARK

(By Associated Press)

Temperatures above the 100-degree mark, highest in years in some localities, baked Louisiana and Mississippi yesterday.

An official maximum of 105.4 at Monroe was the highest reported in Louisiana. A cool breeze late in the day offered some relief to sweltering residents there.

Jackson, Miss., recorded an official 104, topping all marks since June 6, 1936.

Natchez reported its 103 degrees, "highest in years."

New Orleans saw the mercury soar to 99 by noon. It lingered at 98 during the afternoon, then slid down slowly.

BAPTISTS STRIKE AT PERSECUTION

World Congress May Take Action On Religious Intolerance

ATLANTA, July 15.—(AP)—A Baptist affirmation that religious persecution is a "crime against God and man" was quoted today as an indication of the approach of the sixth Baptist world congress may take on the question of religious intolerance.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, Atlanta chairman of arrangements, forecast an attendance of 50,000 from 60 nations for the congress beginning next Saturday and said it would be the "largest and most significant" religious meeting of 1939.

As a characteristic exposition of Baptist principles, Dr. Newton cited the following statement of the late Dr. E. Y. Mullins of Louisville, Ky., officially adopted at the Baptist congress in Berlin in 1934.

"The government which persecutes men for religious beliefs commits a crime against God and man. * * *

"While we have no sympathy with atheism, or agnosticism or materialism, we stand for the freedom of the atheist, agnostic and materialist or irreligious convictions. * * *

"So also the Jew and the Catholic are entitled to protection in the exercise of their religious liberty."

An early arrival was Dr. C. J. Tinsley of Sydney, president of the Australian Baptist union.

"There need be no doubt," he observed, "what the church action will be on religious liberty—a subject now very vital in the hearts of so many nationals.

"It will be an outright affirmation of our unbroken record of insistence

Second Dollar Day Of Year Scheduled For Wednesday

With Monroe's leading merchants participating, the second citywide cooperative Dollar day of 1939 will be held Wednesday. Advertisements calling attention of the public to bargains being offered by the various stores taking part in the event will appear in Tuesday afternoon's News-Star and Wednesday morning's World.

Like the first Dollar day of the year, which took place March 1, the one Wednesday is being sponsored by the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe. The first event was unanimously termed a thorough success by the establishments that participated in it.

Cooperating merchants can be identified by the large red Dollar day placards displayed in their show-windows. Further attention will be called to the event by banners strung across DeSiard street in the business section.

The Dollar day Wednesday will feature summer merchandise, things that the residents of the Monroe trade area will find useful and desirable during the remainder of the warm season. The participating merchants have been preparing for the event for several weeks and they assure the buying public of outstanding bargains. They plan to make Wednesday's Dollar day even more attractive than that of March 1.

All advertisements in connection with the Dollar day will appear simultaneously in The News-Star and The World and the public is urged to read the announcements of the stores carefully to facilitate shopping.

H. R. Saenger, chairman of the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce, stressed the fact that the coming Dollar day is not an event merely for Monroe residents, but for West Monroe people and everybody living in the local trade area. "Everyone living in this vicinity should make an effort to come to Monroe on Dollar day and take advantage of the reduced prices prevailing on that day," he said.

HOPE OF RESCUE VIRTUALLY GONE, INSPECTOR SAYS

KENTUCKY'S 2ND MAJOR DISASTER WITHIN 10 DAYS

Explosion Believed Touched Off By Some Kind Of Spark; Ten Escape

PROVIDENCE, Ky., July 15.—(AP)—John Daniels, Kentucky's chief mine inspector, expressed fear tonight that the death toll in a mine gas explosion would reach 28, as hope waned that nine of the men would be found alive. It previously was announced 19 miners were dead.

"With all that carbon monoxide gas down there," Daniels said, "it doesn't look like they have any chance."

The men were entombed last night 200 to 250 feet underground and approximately two miles back from the opening.

Daniels made the statement after conferring with 12 exhausted rescue workers who were brought to the surface late today at the Duvin Coal company's soft coal mine about a mile north of here. One of the squadmen was overcome before the party emerged, but soon was revived.

Another squad immediately was sent down to carry on the rescue efforts in the pit which was described as being filled with "bad air."

Earlier, F. V. Rockman, president of the company, said that 19 miners had perished, but expressed belief the remaining nine might be saved. He said if they had "sealed in" behind an air-tight door, they might have enough "good" air to last "three or four days."

Fred Ferguson, director of the Indiana bureau of mines, assisting in rescue work, however, declared the nine had "only one chance in a thousand" of being found alive.

The disaster was the second to strike

MRS. JAS. EVANS IS FATALLY SHOT

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict Death Caused By Self-Inflicted Wound

Death apparently occurred instantly for Mrs. Hattie May Evans, 29, wife of James A. Evans, living on the Nutland road, late Saturday when a charge from a 410 shotgun entered the left side of her chest. A coroner's jury reported the wound was self-inflicted, Dr. Irving J. Wolff, parish coroner said. No reason for the act was given.

Mrs. Evans' body was found by her husband and an aunt about 6 o'clock. Its condition indicated that Mrs. Evans had been dead only a short time.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Dixie Funeral chapel.

Mrs. Evans is survived by her husband; mother, Mrs. W. M. White of West Monroe; four sisters, Mrs. Beulah Pickford and Miss Willie May White of Shreveport, Mrs. Viola Donovan of Monroe and Miss Minnie Belle White of West Monroe; and four brothers, Dalas, Willis, Lewis and Clarence White of Monroe.

Pallbearers will be W. M. McDowell, F. M. McHenry, Groves Brown, O. S. Hill, A. P. Kitchen and J. W. Huitt.

Members of the coroner's jury were Groves Brown, Leon Fife, W. M. McDowell, W. H. Jones and J. W. McGuire.

WIND STORM HITS IN CALHOUN AREA

Wind of almost hurricane force and lasting 40 minutes struck Calhoun and vicinity early Saturday night, Sidney Stewart, head of the Louisiana Experiment station at that place, reported. Only minor damage was caused, he said.

Other reports were that several trees had blown down across the highway about two miles west of Calhoun. No reports of injuries were received.

Mr. Stewart said the wind was not in the form of a tornado, as it blew straight instead of twisting. More than an inch of rain, which was badly needed, fell at Calhoun.

Strong gusts of wind also blew in Monroe, accompanied by an electrical storm, which plunged the city into darkness for a brief time.

WPA WORK HALTS IN MINNEAPOLIS AFTER RIOTING

Group In Congress Abandons Efforts To Change New Relief Law

ONE MAN KILLED AND 17 OTHERS HURT OR GASSED

Senator Murray Says Strikes 'Embarrassing' To Amendment Proponents

(By Associated Press)

Fatal rioting at Minneapolis in the WPA strike was followed yesterday by an administration order closing all projects in that city and the abandonment of efforts by a group in congress to amend the new relief law.

Regional WPA officials said that with the approval of Colonel F. C. Harrington, national WPA commissioner, they were closing all work projects in Minneapolis for the time being. They added that the work quotas might be given to other parts of Minnesota.

The announcement came twelve hours after rioting near a sewing project had resulted in the death of one man and the injury or gassing of 17 others.

Meanwhile, Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, author of an amendment which would restore the prevailing wage scale to relief projects and terminate the new 130-hour work month requirement, said the sena-

CONGRESS EAGER TO END SESSION

Administration's New Lending Program May Be Shelved Until Winter

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Congress was adjournment-bent today, many members convinced that neutrality legislation is dead for the session and that the administration's new lending program might be shelved until next winter.

"About two weeks more, I would say," was the way one veteran of the senate who knows all its ins and outs, moods and impulses, put the situation.

However, he was ready to agree that his forecast depended largely upon what the administration decides to do. If it should conclude to fight it out on neutrality, for instance, cnogress, in his opinion, might as well make up its mind that it will be here until "Thanksgiving or maybe even Christmas." But he, together with many of his colleagues, was decidedly of the opinion that no such decision would be forthcoming. The general feeling was that the administration, having made its position plain, for the record, by the combined messages of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull on yesterday, would let the situation rest at that.

Hull repeated arguments he has made for repeal of the present neutrality law's mandatory embargo on arms shipments to belligerents, and the president endorsed the secretary of state's views, adding in a message of his own that "in the light of world conditions" it was "highly advisable" to act at this session.

It was apparent, however, that the situation in congress was unchanged and even some advocates of the ad-

COOPER SAYS SALES TAX MUST BE PAID

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Collector of Revenue W. A. Cooper warned today that the sales tax is still in effect in Louisiana and that those who do not pay it when it is due will be forced to pay penalties.

Talk of repealing the tax in its entirety has been heard from many sections of the state since Governor Earl K. Long took the oath of office on June 26. Governor Long himself has stated that he is considering a plan for substituting the bracket system of collection for the tokens now in use and expressed the opinion that the major portion of the opposition to the tax was the use of tokens.

"The number of reports received by June 30 was off 1,500 from the previous month," Cooper said. "So far as I know there is no plan for repealing the sales tax. So long as the tax is in effect I will exert every effort to collect it and those who do not pay it when due are making themselves subject to the penalties which are imposed on delinquent returns."

'I Was Fired Because I Would Not Lie For Higher-Ups'---Monget

Man Discharged By Crutcher Says Only Offense Was Telling Truth

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Mark L. Monget, discharged today as WPA construction superintendent at Louisiana State university, made public the following statement:

"I was fired not for any wrongdoing of my own, for I have done no wrong, but I was fired because I refused to lie to cover up for some of the higher-ups. I was discharged immediately after it became known that I had given a full and complete statement of everything I knew to federal investigators.

"My summary dismissal is intended as a warning to other employes and possible witnesses before the federal

3 KILLED, 5 HURT IN PLANE CRASH

Coast Guard Craft, Rescuing Sick Sailor, Falls In Attempting Take-Off

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—A coast guard hydroplane which flew 150 miles out to sea today and picked up a sick sailor from a scientific vessel, crashed in taking off again, killing three men and injuring five others.

The plane sank before the three bodies could be recovered; the five other men were rescued by the ship, the ketch Atlantis from the Oceanographic institute at Woods Hole, Mass.

Medical aid for the survivors, the extent of whose injuries was not learned immediately, was rushed tonight on the coast guard cutter Campbell, after the cutter Pontchartrain, with no medical facilities, had stood by the Atlantis several hours.

The sick man, for whom the hydroplane left New York this morning, was Temple Priest, 36, former Boston real estate man, who had gone to sea for his health and had been stricken with pneumonia.

He was killed when the plane crashed, along with Lieutenant William Lee Clemmer, skipper of the plane, and John Radan, Jr., aviation pilot of Bessemer, Pa.

When the plane crashed, the Atlantis made futile attempts to place a line on the plane and then rescued Russell D. Hayes, a yeoman of Patchogue, N. Y.; Frank L. Evers, radio man of Brooklyn; Carl Simon, mechanic of Williamsville, N. Y.; Charles R. Whelan, mechanic of Brooklyn, and Walter B. Salter, also a Brooklyn mechanic. Hayes and Evers were reported as suffering fractures of the spine.

Two coast guard planes which arrived later were warned by Captain Frederick McMurray of the Atlantis not to land.

Priest, a native of Watertown, Mass., shipped on the Atlantis as a seaman to recuperate from ill health. It was his first trip to sea. He was employed by an aviation company in Falmouth, Mass., and is survived by his widow and a son, Benjamin, 5.

JAPAN COURTING FAVOR OF U. S.

Continually Pictures England As Villain And America Condoning Friend

TOKYO—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Some of Japan's leading public men are searching assiduously for means of mending the tatters in Japan's relations with the United States; business leaders, especially, are eager to patch things up with America.

This movement has considerable public support. The Japanese people have given ample evidence of their wish to retain the United States' friendship and their hopes are encouraged by official policy of withholding much information of American-Japanese friction.

All this fits in well with government policy. If there is one bogey Japanese leaders fear more than others it is the possibility of concerted policy and action in the Far East by the two great Anglo-Saxon nations to oppose Japan's ambitions to dominate east Asia. Ever since the invasion of China began two years ago, there has been a studied effort to differentiate between the treatment of Britain and America in China and to cultivate in the minds of the people a distinction between the two English-speaking nations. Japanese diplomacy seeks to keep the two apart.

Britain is consistently pictured as the chief villain of the piece; America as the understanding and condoning friend.

There are many evidences of the anxiety of the Japanese people to believe this. Some leaders would have Japan even turn her back on her totalitarian pals—Germany and Italy—and cast her lot entirely with—not the so-called European democracies—but the United States. When an American cruiser last spring brought home the body of Hiroshi Saito, former ambassador who died in Washington, it was the occasion of a great outpouring of popular sentiment of gratitude to and friendship for the United States. Japanese were anxious to believe it meant all was forgiven—the sinking of the Panay and the closing of China's Open Door to America trade.

When the American ambassador, Joseph Clark Grew, left Japan in May for a trip home, Japanese newspapers and magazines were fulsome in praise of his work and expression of wishes for his return.

Shortly thereafter Ryutaro Hagai, ex-minister of communications, was commissioned to write an "open letter" to President Roosevelt, outlining Japan's aims and objectives and entire position in the Orient today.

In private talks, important Japanese go much further when they discuss the growing movement for a rapprochement with the United States.

This does not embrace all sections of the government and the nation. Japan, despite her appearance of intense solidarity, is a complex of groups with sharply opposite beliefs, ideas and principles.

Under pressure of the Chinese war, the right-wing elements are in the saddle today. But the influence of the others cannot be discounted, and it is in these groups that the belief

Commerce Body Calls For Thorough Probe Of Graft

The senior and junior boards of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe, in a joint session held Friday, by resolution congratulated President Roosevelt, Governor Earl Long, Attorney General Murphy and all inquisitorial bodies of the federal and state government in their announced intention to ferret out corruption which is charged to high state officials and to the diverting of public money to private use.

A similar resolution had been previously passed by the Association of Commerce in New Orleans and by the Chamber of Commerce in Shreveport.

The resolution, which was passed unanimously, reads as follows:

"Be it resolved by the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe:

"1. This association extends its heartiest congratulations to President Roosevelt, Governor Earl K. Long, Attorney General Murphy, the department of justice, the treasury department, the federal grand jury and the East Baton Rouge parish grand jury for the investigations now being made which have brought to light corruption by certain high officials in the state of Louisiana who have been diverting public money to their private use.

"2. The scandal resulting from the revelations of this investigation to date has spread throughout the nation to such an extent that the confidence of business men of the country has been shaken in anything pertaining to Louisiana, and the honest business men and citizens of Louisiana have been placed in an intolerable position. The only way to restore confidence essential to the welfare of the business interests of this state is to bring to light every instance of graft, corruption and irregular practices in public office and bring to justice every person responsible therefor.

"3. Every instance of dishonesty in public office should be revealed and prosecuted, so that confidence of the people of Louisiana in their government may be restored. A full and

EVIDENCE TAKEN DURING INQUIRY WILL BE POOLED

Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge Will Be In Charge

LECHE ORDERED BY PARISH GRAND JURORS TO APPEAR

Lorio Resigns As Medical Society Head, Suspended From L. S. U. Post

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Scores of federal investigators combing the state for evidences of law violation were called to New Orleans tonight for a day-long conference tomorrow with Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, of Washington, where evidence will be pooled preliminary to grand jury action expected Monday.

Rogge, who has charge of the criminal division of the department of justice, was due here late tonight from Chicago to head the widespread federal probe into which treasury, justice, postal, congressional, interior, WPA and PWA agents already have been drawn following startling disclosures of irregularities thus far centered around Louisiana State university.

United States District Attorney Rene A. Viosca tonight said these agents and officials would spend all day tomorrow going over all evidence gathered by all agencies and that presented to the grand jury by scores of witnesses as a preliminary step to expected indictments. Viosca refused even to guess when the first federal indictments would be returned, though indications have been they were expected momentarily.

Meanwhile having thoroughly dispelled belief of some who feared it would be a "whitewash" body, the East Baton Rouge parish grand jury today sent for former Governor Richard W. Leche to appear Monday and tell what he knows of irregularities at Louisiana State university preceding resignation of James Monroe Smith as president three weeks ago, and the circumstances of his resignation.

Armed with a grant of $5,000 to extend its activities, District Attorney Dewey Sanchez said the jury's investigation would "be continued and broadened." The money was provided by the parish police jury today at the grand jury's request.

Dr. Clarence A. Lorio, close friend, lieutenant and consultant physician to Huey P. Long on his deathbed, resigned his presidency of the Louisiana State Medical society today following his indictment last night by the grand jury, together with E. N. Jackson, business manager of the university. Both men were immediately suspended from their university connections by Dr. Paul M. Hebert, acting president. Lorio was university physician and member of its board of supervisors.

The men were charged with embezzlement of university property and having in their possession embezzled and stolen university material. Both indictments also linked the men with George Caldwell, former superintendent of construction at the university, whom Leche employed to build tenant houses, a barn and other improvements at his estate at Covington, La., where he now is resting.

Leche subsequently said he paid Caldwell by checks which he could produce "if there is anything wrong." Caldwell also has been arrested by federal authorities on charges of having diverted WPA resources at L. S. U. to private use. He was released

VIEWS ON BUSINESS IN CAPITAL VARY

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Business men gave varying opinions today on trade conditions here since the Louisiana State university scandal broke three weeks ago.

"I don't believe it has affected our business at all," said the manager of the state capital's largest department store. "We're getting ready now for our fall buying and we expect to buy more than ever."

"Jittery and unsettled" was the description of conditions given by Henry Cohn, manager of a principal men's clothing shop.

Roy Heidelberg, manager of the capital's largest hotel, bearing his name, estimated business at his hostelry, gathering place for politicians, has been at a 12½ per cent increase during the past three weeks.

J. E. Dame, manager of a branch here of a national department store chain, said: "Business varies considerably in the summer months; however, business has dropped off some in the past three weeks."

Dame said orders totaling $1,404 were cancelled at his place following Governor Earl K. Long's edict that in cases where both man and wife were employed by the state at salaries exceeding $100 one would be discharged from state employ.

A grocer said his business had remained practically the same.

ministration program conceded there was no chance for action at this session.

Speculation continued, however, that after adjournment the president in his belief that the neutrality question should be settled before a war breaks out abroad, might call congress back into special session. He, himself, said yesterday, however, that he had given no consideration to that possibility.

The neutrality bill is locked up in the foreign relations committee, which voted on Tuesday, 12 to 11 to postpone consideration until the next session. It was explained that could mean a special session or the regular session beginning in January.

The position of the lending bill, proposing loans of $2,600,000,000 on projects designated as "self-liquidating" remains to be clarified. Republicans and Democratic opponents in the house claim sufficient strength to stop it in the banking and currency committee or at least by hearings and prolonged discussion to keep it from emerging from the committee for two months or more.

Ten others of the 38 miners working in the mine, the third largest in western Kentucky, at the time of the mishap were rescued. They suffered from "bad air" but none was hurt seriously.

At Tientsin the American Chamber of Commerce appealed to Secretary of State Hull for government help in opposing trade restrictions which the Japanese-sponsored Peiping provisional government has ordered into effect Monday.

impartial probe of all divisions of our state government and prompt prosecution of all official irregularities is the only way there can be restored to the state of Louisiana, and its citizens, the respect and confidence of the nation, to which this state and its citizens are entitled.

"4. It is the considered opinion of this association that the state and federal government should vigorously and intensively pursue and expand its present investigation, to the end that every violation of law, whether in the executive, legislative or judicial branches of the state government, be brought to light, and that the officials responsible for violations be speedily and vigorously prosecuted.

"5. To give any practical meaning to the guarantee of a democratic form of government as contained in the constitution of the United States, this association believes that a full investigation and disclosure of method of collection and disbursement of all funds used to perpetuate elective public officials in office, should be made."

Reports were received from chairmen of the following committees: Highways, Tom Hicks, chairman; agricultural committee, Bob Harmon, chairman; city beautification, Tom Frazer, chairman; airport committee, Berny Oakland, chairman; retail merchants' division, H. R. Saenger, chairman; junior college, Sig Masur, chairman; and publicity committee, Sam Orchard, chairman.

Discussion was held of the house bill in congress introduced by Representative Newt V. Mills for the purchase of the Vicksburg bridge over the Mississippi river by the highway departments of Mississippi and Louisiana and the federal government, making it toll free.

At the conclusion of the debate the assemblage unanimously endorsed the measure which has already passed the house and will urge that members of the senate likewise give approval. The plan is to have each state concerned put up 25 per cent of the cost and the federal government the remaining 50 per cent so that the span can be rendered toll free. This will enable more traffic to come to Monroe over highway 80, it is believed. Making of this a toll free bridge will relieve the payment of an unusually heavy toll and will place highway 80 so that it can compete for traffic with highways at Greenville, Miss., and Natchez, where bridges that will be toll free are now being constructed by the federal government.

The report of the highway committee dealt with negotiations with Governor Leche for the hardsurfacing of the highway leading out of St. Joseph to Monroe. It was decided to continue to urge this improvement upon Mr. Leche's successor, Governor Earl Long.

The agricultural committee reported concerning the purchase of baby beeves to finance members of the 4-H club boys and girls who desire to make a start in livestock raising. The plan is to have business men raise the money which the beeves will cost, this sum to be paid back when the stock is sold for the market next year.

In city beautification, Secretary Holland stated that the plan is to tie in with the Monroe Garden club and jointly to work out a definite community project that will mean the beautification of streets, lawns and highways in this vicinity. Several public meetings at which well known speakers will give talks on the subject are planned for this fall, Secretary Holland said.

Berny Oakland related the present status of the Selman airport project. The field today is too small for landing of larger planes and more land is required. Negotiations have been held with owners of nearby lands but as yet the price has been regarded as prohibitive. It was decided to continue negotiations until positive action results.

Mr. Saenger reported for the retail merchants' division. He said that there were last year three good will tours made. This year one has been held with success. A dollar day will be conducted on July 19 and a total of three are planned this year. He specially emphasized the value of a consumers' survey that is now being made in which 900 women, 200 in the Twin Cities and 700 in 13 cities in northeast Louisiana outside of Ouachita parish, have been asked to express their opinion of the Twin City stores as trading centers. They are asked to register what they like and dislike about them and to suggest how conditions can be improved if deemed best. He said this survey will be exceedingly valuable and will furnish a cross-section of what the other fellow may think about us.

Mr. Masur told of the assurance of three buses to carry students to and from the Northeast Junior college this fall, and that a fourth will be secured if business warrants. The matter of a trade school for Monroe also was discussed and it was explained that this will require action by the next session of the state legislature.

Mr. Orchard explained that it is desired to purchase a multigraph machine that will be able to reproduce photographs and which will be used exclusively for the issuing of the Chamber of Commerce bulletins. The cost will be $345 but will be such as to give the membership of the Chamber a close-up view of what is being accomplished by various projects. After discussion, the members voted to purchase the machine.

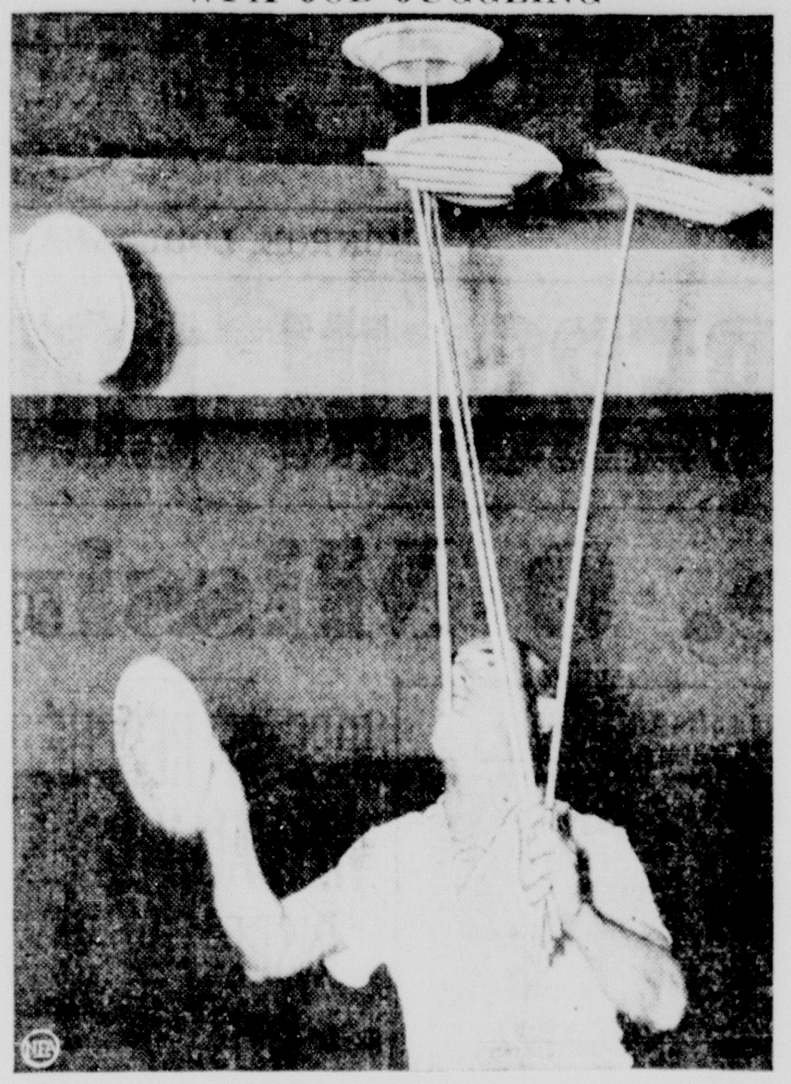
Mr. and Mrs. Denver Jones, Mrs. C. I. Humphries and Mrs. M. J. Easkew attended a meeting of the Eastern Star in Harrisonburg.

R. A. Phillips, Jr., of Kelly is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Taylor and other relatives.

WPA JOB JUGGLING



Congress juggled WPA federal theater project, dropped it by ordering idea abandoned. While thousands strike on WPA jobs as result of new wage scale, Edward Nello, one of 1,000 who reported to theater project at Los Angeles, still juggles his plates, holds hope in balance. While local officials awaited definite orders to kill project, Nello, former vaudeville star, killed time, and kept in practice.

JAPAN COURTING FAVOR OF U. S.

in necessary closer relations with the United States is burning at white heat.

An analysis of this belief shows these major reasons:

1. A genuine admiration of American methods and policies, not only in diplomacy but in business and a conviction that the average American is fair and open-minded.

2. The belief that, commercially, Japan and the United States are perfect complements for each other.

3. The similarity, as the Japanese see it, between the position of Japan and United States in respect to the rest of the world.

ESTES PARK, Colo.—(AP)—Mrs. Frank Chlanda picked up an unexpected passenger while driving through a canon near here. A 450-pound buck deer leaped from an embankment to the rear of her car. Forest rangers said the deer apparently had been blinded by the lights of the car and leaped wildly. He was killed.

ELECTRICAL STORM STRIKES SHREVEPORT

SHREVEPORT, La., July 15.—(AP)—A wind and electrical storm which swept westward across north Louisiana early tonight after a day of over 100-degree temperatures left damaged wires and uprooted trees in its wake. No serious damage was reported. The wind and scattered rain dropped temperatures into the 80s.

The Shreveport municipal airport, where a 30-mile wind was recorded, was in darkness for 45 minutes. Radio and beam facilities were cut off by the storm shortly after an eastbound transport plane left the field.

Three heat prostration cases were reported here.

Damage to trees and wires was reported at Ruston, Arcadia and Coushatta. At Arcadia the wind whipped the canvas top from a skating rink, but no one was hurt. At Ruston the temperature dropped from 103 to 68 in a few hours.

SOLONS NEUTRAL IN MISSISSIPPI

Senators Likely To Take Part In Election But Representatives Won't

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Whatever position the state's two United States senators may take in the coming Mississippi Democratic primaries, her representatives in the lower house apparently intend to continue a hands-off attitude.

Senator Pat Harrison is known to be interested in more than one candidate for governor in the first primary, August 8, and although he is not on record in this campaign, he is expected to plunge pell mell into the campaign preceding the run-off voting three weeks later.

As to where his support will go depends on the results of the first primary.

On the other hand, Senator Theo G. Bilbo, "strong as horse radish" for Paul Johnson for governor, said he would "sniff the battle from afar," at least during the first primary "unless my enemies drive me into the fight."

"If they let me alone," he said, "I won't make any speeches. But, my enemies can make me get into the fight."

Harrison already has said he would return to Mississippi to vote August 8 and that he would remain in the state until after the run-off primary, whether congress had adjourned by then or not.

Like the senators, all the congressmen will return home to vote, since there is no provision for casting absentee ballots in Mississippi.

"I reckon I've got my hands full up here," said Representative Wall Doxey, "and haven't had time to keep up with all the politics going on now. All I know is what I see in the papers. Of course, I'm going home to vote."

And that about expressed the viewpoint of John Rankin, who said he was concerned just now with the distress caused by recent floods in his district and the TVA battle.

"The people of Mississippi are thoroughly capable of selecting their own officials without any suggestion from me," Rankin added.

Representative Will Whittington also made it clear he was not openly advocating anybody's election.

"I'm planning to return to Mississippi to vote in the primary," was all he would say.

And Representative A. L. Ford thought "the people have been nice enough to me, without my asking them to vote for somebody else—I'm going home to vote, just like every citizen should.

Representative Will Colmer proved to have positive convictions on the subject. He said he would follow his "usual" course of staying out of other people's campaigns. He, too, will go home to vote, "since that is the duty of every citizen."

But, try to get him to say how he'll vote!

Ross Collins, too, declined to get into a discussion of the elections down home.

"I'm going home to vote, too," he said, "but I've adopted a strict hands-off policy."

Representative Rankin turned his thoughts to the new United States supreme court this week.

"In front of the building," he said, "they made no provision to take care of the water. The water that falls in front of the supreme court building runs 79 yards before it reaches the street, after flowing across the sidewalk, and everybody who walks along that sidewalk in front of the building has to wade that water day in and day out because of lack of provision to take care of it."

He also charged the supreme court room was "too small to accommodate the public," and that the acoustics were "miserable."

And, he added, slyly:

"I understand that a majority of the members who are now on the bench, and who were serving at the time they moved into this building, voted against doing so. I am told that on the proposition of moving into this building the court did so by a divided vote of 5 to 4."

He said he thought it was a mistake to move the supreme court out of the capitol building.

Four Million Starvelings

"What are we to do," asks a welfare official, "with the 1,466 half-starved children in our parish? These children can not be given federal aid for dependent children since they have fathers who are classed as able-bodied."

It is estimated that there are four million such half-starved children in the United States—not in China, but in the rich, prosperous United States where there is so much food that the federal government hires farmers not to grow food. But that is another story.

What about all these half-starved children who have fathers who don't, who won't, or can't provide for them?

Most fathers wish to care for their children, but there is a large number who do not care. There is a large number who would rather let their children go half-fed than to work for them or even to plant a home garden to put flesh on their bones.

There is a sizable number of fathers who are not fit for fatherhood nor fit for liberty. They do not know the meaning of liberty. They think liberty gives them the right not to do anything they do not wish to do; not to shoulder any responsibility they wish to shirk.

And there is also a sizable number of fathers who are bewildered. They do not know what to do with liberty. They want to live in freedom, but freedom confuses them. They can not function in freedom. The only way they can get along is to have someone definitely plan their lives, and tell them positively what to do and make them do it.

So these fathers of many half-starved children who are bewildered by liberty, or who do not worry about responsibility, who won't work if they can help it, and if they do work, drink up or gamble away their earnings, should have their lives planned and directed by local officials whose business it is to see that fathers who can not care for their children or will not, shall do so.

Every community should have its supervisor whose business is to see that fathers of undernourished children get work and do work and use their earnings to feed their families; to make fathers with garden land at their disposal plant kitchen gardens, and do other things within their power to nourish their children.

And there should be teeth in the laws that create these supervisors. Fathers who will not cooperate in the care of their children, should be dealt with severely. They should be put to work by the authorities on public projects and their wages paid to their families. A man who lets his family go hungry because he won't plant a hill of beans should be considered a culprit who should be punished.

It would not take long to get the idea going: "Well, anyway, I must have a kitchen garden, or the supervisor will be around here and ask me 'How come.'"

Ignorance, indifference, laziness, bewilderment—these causes and many others make some persons not know what to do with liberty. There is such a thing as too much liberty.

We have made a fetish of liberty. Liberty is fine; it is wonderful. All men are entitled to liberty who know what to do with it and will do something with it. But when men do not know what to do with liberty, or refuse to do anything with it, then that is something to do something about.

REAL AID FOR AGRICULTURE

A logical aid to the solution of the problem of agricultural surpluses, is increased consumer consumption. That such aid is practical and possible has been dramatically illustrated during the past two or three years, in the many consumer-producer campaigns conducted on behalf of "distressed" crops by tens of thousands of American retail stores.

The campaigns were inaugurated by the food chains. Afterwards organized independents joined in. So did variety, hardware, mail order stores and others.

Beef, lamb, fresh fruits, canned fruits, nuts, poultry, citrus fruits, beans, dairy products—these are but a few of the products on whose behalf, at the request of the farmers concerned, American retailing has gone to the bat. And in most cases it has knocked out home runs. In no case has it struck out. During the campaign periods, ranging in length from a few days to weeks, consumption has been greatly increased at prices fair to all involved.

Furthermore, it has been proven that these drives were effective not only during the campaign time. Consumers discovered new appetites and learned the pleasure of more varied, better balanced meals. And they kept on buying.

When the farmer and the retailer get together, everyone, including the consumer, is benefited.

NEUTRALITY THE AIM

Revision of the neutrality act is being urged by administration supporters as a deterrent to Europe's war mongers. The idea is that an implicit tieup with France and Great Britain may prevent an outbreak of military strife.

But why should American foreign policy be predicated upon possible European developments?

A neutrality act should be designed with a view to keeping America out of war, not with a view to mixing into the affairs of another continent.

The World war proved that close connections, financial or otherwise, make neutrality virtually impossible. Let America recognize that fact and avoid the fatal errors of two decades ago.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—Three things seem to be on the dirt farmer's mind these days. They are tractors, landlords, and the WPA.

Written in lead pencil—misspelled and ungrammatical, often enough—some hundreds of the most interesting documents imaginable repose in the files of the department of agriculture's bureau of agricultural economics. The bureau gets them more or less by accident, but they are an invaluable cross-section of the farmer's state of mind.

Every year the bureau sends out a questionnaire to some 22,000 farmers. Each farmer fills it in with information about population changes in his particular township or section and returns it; that way the bureau can get a pretty accurate check on rural population shifts.

But a lot of these farmers turn the questionnaire over, before mailing it, and write down their own comments on the farm problem, the state of the nation, or life in general.

State-By-State Complaints

A Kansas farmer, for instance, writes as follows:

"There is a condition existing on farms in this locality which can work no good. I am contributing to the evil along with the rest. Five of the farms listed in this report are usually vacant or occupied by temporary residents wholly or in part on relief. What takes their place? The farmer who has a better foothold rents another farm, buys a tractor and combine, puts a larger area in small grain, and runs two farms instead of one. It may be modern but it doesn't have a very bright future."

And an Illinois farmer says:

"Our hired man is hired the year around at $40 per month. Says he believes he will join WPA'S who he says have short hours, off days, plenty of leisure, and always looking for surplus relief stuff and get paid for following the lines of least resistance."

An Iowan contributes this:

"To survive it becomes necessary for us to use tractors and farm at least 200 acres alone to make it. Hired help difficult to secure at less than WPA prices, consequently the farming operators are turning to labor-saving machinery in so far as possible."

A Texas tenant's wife writes indignantly about the questionnaire:

"Why does the government want to know these things? The government either can't or won't do anything to help these people. The WPA either can't or won't give all that need work a job. I wish there wouldn't be a baby borned in the whole United States in 10 years."

One Hits Human Weakness

I examined some scores of these documents. Over and over those notes recur—too many tractors, too many small farms being combined into large ones, too many tenants being driven onto relief. But some blame pure human cussedness, like the Illinois farmer who—after discussing various reasons for the shortage of hired men—makes this observation:

"Then we come to the individual who is too lazy to work. He gets in an auto and either sells stock foods or patent medicines or some other worthless things and he always finds plenty of suckers to bite on the bait he has to offer. The man that owns a farm in these days is considered of no consequence. All he is good for is to slap a good stiff tax on."

But it isn't all gloom. Let an Iowan close the story:

"Very few changes in this locality. Very few closing-out sales. All farmers seem quite content."

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 15.—There's significance in the failure-to-arrive of three movie stars—Lionel Stander, John Garfield and Melvyn Douglas—who had been billed for a San Francisco fund-raising appearance on behalf of Harry Bridges, alien labor leader, facing deportation for alleged Communistic activities. Messrs. Stander, Garfield and Douglas, being men who pride themselves on their independence, would of course deny it, but it is very obvious that the picture industry's bosses are at long last bringing pressure to bear on stars who insist on sticking their famous noses into bitter controversies which do not, primarily, concern Hollywood.

And it's high time that someone took steps to squelch them for unquestionably they are making enemies for the entire industry. Mind you, I'm not saying that Harry Bridges should, or should not, be deported. I'm not saying that the sympathies of these militant stars are well-placed, or misplaced. I don't pretend to know anything about such issues—but I do know, from a multitude of letters received, that every time a Hollywood celebrity identifies himself with a red-hot, major controversy, he offends thousands of people. Those people promptly take out their resentment by boycotting pictures in which the star appears. That isn't healthy for the other members of the cast, and it isn't healthy for the movie industry, which just now is fighting a desperate battle tle for survival.

It seems to me that motion picture stars owe their first loyalty to the business that provides their livlihood —not to some pet "ism" that has excited their emotional responses.

Idol Chatter: News that James Cagney has landed a big pay boost is not surprising—he's always been centsative about his profession. In need of a good picture to revive fading prestige: Robert Montgomery. You'd be surprised if you knew how zealously Garbo follows the advice of her pet fortune-teller. Watching Gracie Allen trying out a new gag always makes me think of that old catch line about the "wheels of industry spinning around. Nominated for the friendilest personality award: Olivia de Haviland. Gary Cooper looks more like my idea of the typical American every day he lives. Cause and effect: Mae West's walk—and my sudden yen for an Hawaiian vacation. Things I never expect to see: Charles Boyer without a worried expression.

There's an interesting story behind the fact that Lind Hayes, recently signed by Paramount as a result of his fine performance in "Million Dollar Legs," chose "Peter" Hayes as a screen name when studio czars objected to his own monicker. Lind's famous mother, Grace Hayes, was born while her father was quite ill. He wanted a boy—wanted one so badly that the sex of his baby was concealed from him for weeks after her birth. Believing that his wishes had been gratified, he named the baby "Peter." And Grace Hayes was known by that name all through her childhood and still is to old friends of the family.

Cuff Notes: With picture assignments crowding one another, Madame Maria Ouspenskaya will move her famous dramatic school from New York to Hollywood. . . . Youngdoug Fairbanks, who left for New York Tuesday, will be honored by a special "Fairbanks Day" at the World's fair before going on to the Virginia farm where he and the missus will vacation. . . . Gus Edwards, credited with the discovery of more stage and screen stars than any other one man, will resume the production of kid shows on the New York stage as soon as he completes supervisoral duties on Paramount's "The Star-maker."

Odd-Formation: If you're technically-minded, give a gasp for the 600,000 amperes of "juice" required to light the jungle set for "Dr. Cyclops." . . . Add insomnia fighters: Jeanette MacDonald—she always dons a block velvet mask on retiring, in order to shut out all light. . . . Dick Powell's pet hobby-horse is his collection of antique firearms. . . . That "W. Claude Fields, Jr., Atty." in the Los Angeles telephone directory is a son of Hollywood's famous W. C. . . . Otto Kruger is rated the most popular American screen actor with British audiences—Bob Taylor, our No. 1 glamour boy, is seventh on the list.

Mothers who force tiny daughters to take long, strenuous dancing lessons in the hope of snaring professional careers for them please listen: Standing beside Vera Zorina, the other day, as she watched tiny tots being tested for dancing roles in her current picture, I saw her face darken, indignantly. Human Side Of The News

By EDWIN C. HILL

(Copyright, 1939, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Up and down Broadway, or, as Mr. Winchell calls it, the Main Stem, there is gleeful chuckling and chortling among the hoofers and spoofers of the vaudeville tribe—they whose living was whisked away from them by new and competing entertainment trends. They think they see the handwriting on the wall for their public enemy No. 1—the moving pictures. It is as clear to them as was that projected light spot on the wall in Belshazzar's palace.

Television is going to put the movies right in the ash can—so say the show folk of the old Orpheum days. I find every bar and street corner up and down Broadway buzzing with that kind of talk. They firmly believe the movies are as dead as the Pat and Mike joke.

Better still, from their point of view, vaudeville suits television to a gnat's heel. Some of the old-timers already are hooked up for workouts through the continuing experimental stages, and the profession is lit up with a new hope.

To date, the televisers are having trouble in catching a splayed out spectacle, such as a baseball game or a great public ceremonial. As the television camera is today there is a definite limit to the spread of landscape, depth and swiftly changing focus which can be managed with it. The best results are obtained with fairly close-in shots, with the goings on safely in range, and under control, subject to repeated rehearsals if necessary—in short, studio work—and so far some form of vaudeville seems to come nearer to anything else in meeting these specifications.

The television people are convinced that they will have to offer something more exciting than a speaker or a singer. They are combing every field for possibilities and that is bringing out of the old midtown actors' boarding houses forgotten men and women who used to get top-billing in electric lights, 15 or 20 years ago.

"Listen, Sam, that dude policeman act of mine had 'em rolling in the aisles. Olly Morosco comes around back and he says, 'Mel,' he says, 'I want a big piece of you. I've got a spot for you in the biggest show anybody ever pulled around here and it means a stack of dough so big you couldn't run and jump over it.' Olly would have done it, too—but you know—he got all jammed up and then came those movies. But let me at this television—I'm set to see this Gilbert Seldes next week and if I don't sell him an act—"

I was surprised to discover how almost unfailingly the vaudevillians blame the moving pictures for their troubles. This hostility is more marked among the old troupers, who used to get their living from the road, rather than among the younger and less traveled entertainers. Their story is that it was the picture show monopoly of theaters in inland cities and towns, rather than better entertainment which put the short-turn specialties out of business. They are happily on fire with the idea that their old enemy is done for.

I have an idea that the movies are a pretty lively corpse and that television hasn't yet put on its seven-league boots. Technicians tell me that there are tremendous problems still to be solved, and that the radio and movie magnates have no call to be losing any sleep. There is also to be noted the fact that the two latter are no longer gim-crack affairs, and will not easily be dislodged from their hard-won place as purveyors of both information and entertainment, even by such a dazzling miracle as television.

Again, England, particularly, is making rapid progress in stepping up television for picture screen projection and it isn't impossible that the show folk will find television helping rather than hurting the picture houses. We don't want to be a kill-joy. I think most of us would welcome the old-timers back with a whoop—witness the big hand Joe Jackson gets with that venerable trick bicycle—but it looks as if they might be waiting in the wings for quite a spell, if they're banking on television. However, when it really gets going it ought to help a lot. They can toss television waves only about 40 miles and that might mean a great many small plants all over the country, employing many people.

That Body of Yours

LARGE UNHURRIED BREAKFAST MAY CORRECT CONSTIPATION

"The hustle and bustle of the average person's daily life in this machine age, the lack of time to create a habit, improper foods or freak diets, pandering to the almost universal desire for slenderness, insufficient fluid intake, and other factors contribute to the prevalence of constipation."

I am quoting Dr. Clayton C. Perry, Cleveland, O., in an article on constipation in "Medical World."

I believe Dr. Perry's statement that "the lack of time to create a habit" is one of the great truths as to the cause of constipation. With a great many individuals, there is the hurried breakfast and no time for, or thought of, the intestinal habit. And so common is constipation that he states further:

"It is so rare in my experience to find a patient who is not constipated that I have come to look with awe and wonder at those who tell me that their bowels move naturally and regularly. A review of 200 consecutive case histories of patients examined in my office (except cancer patients) revealed that 129 complained of constipation and used cathartics. Among the 71 non-constipated patients, however, there were several with diarrhoea and colitis. If these cases are excluded, the number with normal bowel habits is small."

One of the conclusions come to by Dr. Perry is that a large breakfast is one of the most important factors in correcting constipation. With this conclusion most physicians will agree because a hurried, light breakfast does not give the impulse to the digestive tract to move and drive wastes downward. The very weight or heaviness of a meal will, in itself, give stronger impulses to the whole digestive tract —stomach, small intestine and large intestine.

It is difficult for the average individual to sit down and eat a good breakfast in a leisurely manner, and to take time to sit down and read the paper for a few minutes after breakfast seems impossible. Yet, if this same individual were to retire a half hour earlier, and get up a half hour earlier, he could easily eat a larger, unhurried breakfast, read his paper, and reach office or factory in plenty of time.

Health Booklets

Nine helpful health booklets by Dr. Barton are available for readers of this newspaper. They may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., enclosing the name of this newspaper. The booklets are:

(No. 101) Eating Your Way to Health.
(No. 102) Why Worry About Your Heart?
(No. 103) Neurosis.
(No. 104) The Common Cold.
(No. 105) Overweight and Underweight.
(No. 106) Food Allergy or Sensitiveness to Various Foods and Other Substances.
(No. 107) Scourge (gonorrhea and syphilis).
(No. 108) How Is Your Blood Pressure?
(No. 109) Chronic Rheumatism or Arthritis.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

"When a child of 14 or 15 doesn't know enough to turn on the light to see to read a book, but continues to strain her eyes in an attempt to read in dim twilight, isn't it her parents' duty to make her stop reading, turn on the light and adjust it properly? Aren't parents to speak to half-grown children when they are making mistakes that are likely to injure their health, weaken their work, head them for failure socially? What's the idea of letting children bring themselves up, anyway?"

It is a parent's duty to prevent any injury to his child, to teach him to observe the laws of health, of courtesy, of work and of life generally. Children need the support and help of their experienced parents. No child should be left to his own mistaken notions. But, and this is of the gravest importance in this matter, that guidance must be made acceptable to the preadolescent and adolescent child, or it cannot serve. Forced obedience at this age is worse than useless.

One speaks to a child about a mistake in order to have him do the right way, not just this time, but all the time thereafter. If obedience is of the forced order, at this stage, the child will, grudgingly, do what he is made do, but he will not resolve to keep on doing it thereafter. His cooperation has not been secured because his mind was attacked instead of being invited. That makes all the difference in life.

Little children who have not reached the stage of reflective memory, whose experiences are so limited as to make their judgments negligible, must depend altogether on the guidance, direction and authority of their parents. But this stage of growth must be so set that their experiences lead to willing cooperation in the years to follow when reflective intelligence is to the fore. The experiences in obedience that a child mets with in these formative years are what lay the foundation for rebellion or pleased cooperation.

When there is no feeling of cooperation between parents and their adolescent children, no friendliness to smooth the irritations that are certain to rise in the best reared family, there is little to hope from authority save passing acquiescence to force. That serves the minute but it goes no further. Often it lessens any chance of the parent's influence being successful in the future.

If such a situation exists between parents and children it would be the better part of discretion to try to build up the better, more useful relationship of friendliness. Go about it sensibly. Ask the child's opinion about the matter in question and talk it over with him as you would if he were near your own age. He will be quick to appreciate this attitude because it gives him the recognition that his personality is craving, and you may be able to set a better relationship.

In any case, one has to remember that the time for exacting unquestioning, prompt obedience is in the first two years of the child's life, and also, that such experiences must teach the child that this authority is just, kind and wise. Otherwise the child learns that obedience is not a matter for his comfort and happiness but something that suits the grownup. That leaves him with nothing but force to depend on for his guidance, and the parent that depends upon that is leaning on a broken staff.

For help in mastering the task of teaching your children to obey, send for Angelo Patri's booklet, "Obedience," enclosing 10 cents. Address Angelo Patri, care this newspaper, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Ret.

WASHINGTON—In my state of Wyoming a cattleman should not allow himself to be without two essential weapons: a gun and a horse.

Few persons will question the need of a gun. The gun protects the herd against predatory animals. The horse, on the other hand, is not ordinarily considered a weapon. To most of us a horse is a prosaic, everyday beast of burden whose value lies solely in the fact that he can carry a cowhand around the range and to town and back on Saturday night.

But the horse is a vital part of the cowhand's program for defending and protecting the herd. Without the horse, the gun would be valueless. Without the horse, the cowhand could not get wtihin range of the mountain lion.

In the protection of the United States against potential or actual foreign marauders, the merchant fleet is a prosaic familiar beast of burden that becomes indispensable.

To Bring In Goods

The maritime commission, at the direction of congress, is now engaged in strengthening the American merchant fleet.

Defensive measures are not always military. An efficient merchant fleet has an even greater defensive value in making it possible for this country to sell its goods abroad and to bring in the goods of other nations.

The United States needs sugar and rubber, coffee and tin, and other foreign products. Large sections of our country experience prosperity only if their major product can be sold abroad. The merchant marine act of 1936, which created the maritime commission, set up as one of the prime policies for the commission the fostering of our export and import trade.

Because it is necessary to have good ships, with good technical equipment, the American people through their government are spending substantial sums of money. In order to give American industry this work, the people are spending more for these ships than they would have to spend if they were built abroad at cheaper foreign wages or with fewer safety devices.

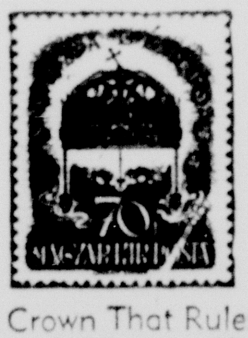
$140,000,000 In Wages

The American people do not lose this money. The maritime commission's construction program will have put into pay envelopes of shipyard workers about $140,000,000 between January 1, 1939, and the end of the next fiscal year. It will at the same time have resulted in purchase of material amounting approximately to $175,000,000. It will have been the means of paying overheads and profits to the amount of some $78,000,000.

But, in addition to this, we can get our return by traveling and shipping on American-flag ships. In this way we can get the fine service which is being provided on American vessels and we can make it less expensive to operate them, thus making it less necessary for them to be subsidized.

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein



The Crown That Rules Nation Without a King

IT isn't worth much as royal crowns go—a jeweler probably would value its gold and jewels at about $1500—but to the people of Hungary the Crown of St. Stephen is the greatest treasure in the world. To them it is the symbol of hope, of faith in some future monarch who will restore Hungary to former greatness.

While the crown remains the nation's sole link with the monarchy, and all acts of legislature and courts are "in the name of the Sacred Crown," Regent-Governor Nicholas Horthy de Nagybanya holds the power. He is the uncrowned king of Hungary.

For 19 years he has guided the destinies of his country. His technique in seizing power and eliminating his enemies has made precedent for other dictators to follow. Trained in the relentless discipline of the Imperial Navy—he still retains the title "Admiral" —Horthy has led Hungary out of the terror of post-war revolution, has steadily strengthened the military and economic position of this last remnant of the Hapsburg empire.

Horthy has made no attempt to seize the crown for himself. Rather, he has built a greater nation for some future king to rule.

The crown that unknown king will wear is shown on the Hungarian stamp above, olive green, of the series of 1938, commemorating the 900th anniversary of the death of St. Stephen. The stamp was overprinted upon the annexation of Czech territory.

BACKFIRE BLAMED FOR AUTO BLAZE

Backfire was blamed yesterday for a fire in the automobile of Louis Johnston at 2300 Louisville avenue late yesterday morning, according to Monroe firemen who extinguished the blaze in a short time.

Firemen were also called to the home of George McMullen, 106 Eighth street, yesterday afternoon when an awning was ignited. The fire was confined to the awning, firemen said.

Late Friday night firemen extinguished a blaze at the First Baptist church, colored, 321 North Eighth street.

Selig And Myatt Have Excellent Homes For Sale

Before buying or building, prospective Twin City home owners would do well to get in touch with Jonas Selig and Morton Myatt, licensed real estate dealers in charge of sales of all properties owned by the People's Homestead and Savings association.

Here are a few of the excellent homes they have to offer:

Six-room brick house at 1300 Park avenue. This residence has a permanent roof, textone walls and hardwood floors and is located on a corner lot 75 feet by 150 feet on paved streets. The price is only $6,500.

Six-room house at 3400 Richmond street. This one is located on a 150 by 160 foot corner lot. It has a new roof, has been newly painted and has new paper throughout. The electrical fixtures are far above the average and there are several wall and base receptacles in each room. It has a large bathroom and an extra guest lavatory, both with beautiful plumbing fixtures. Only $4,250 is being asked for this residence.

Five-room house at 601 North Fifth street, West Monroe. Located on corner lot 50 by 150 feet on paved streets. Price, $2,200.

Five-room house at 1218 Cypress street, West Monroe. Located on corner lot 100 by 160 feet with paving on Cypress. Price, $3,350. This is an excellent business location. The house could be moved to the back of the lot, leaving a corner 100 feet square for a commercial structure.

Six-room house at 1907 Jackson street. This is an unsurpassed value at $3,500.

A seven-acre tract facing Bayou DeSiard on DeSiard road. There is a large residence on this land. And besides being located in a pecan grove, it has all modern conveniences. Moreover, there are several other buildings on the tract. The price is only $7,000.

These and the many other homes Mr. Selig and Mr. Myatt have to offer may be had for a small cash payment and the remainder financed over a long period at only 5 1-2 per cent interest.

Don't delay. A home is an investment. Call Mr. Selig or Mr. Myatt. They maintain an office at the People's Homestead and Savings association and their telephone number there is 4990. Mr. Selig's residential phone is 978; Mr. Myatt's, 3382.

Shorty's Garage Has Everything For The Autoist

Shorty's Body Shop and Garage, 309 Washington street, has everything—large and small new automobiles, just what you want in used cars and an unexcelled body shop and repair department.

The Hudson dealer in Monroe, Shorty's Body Shop and Garage is north Louisiana distributor for the American Bantam car. Hudson automobiles make their owners proud they are motorists. Bantams are the economy cars of the nation.

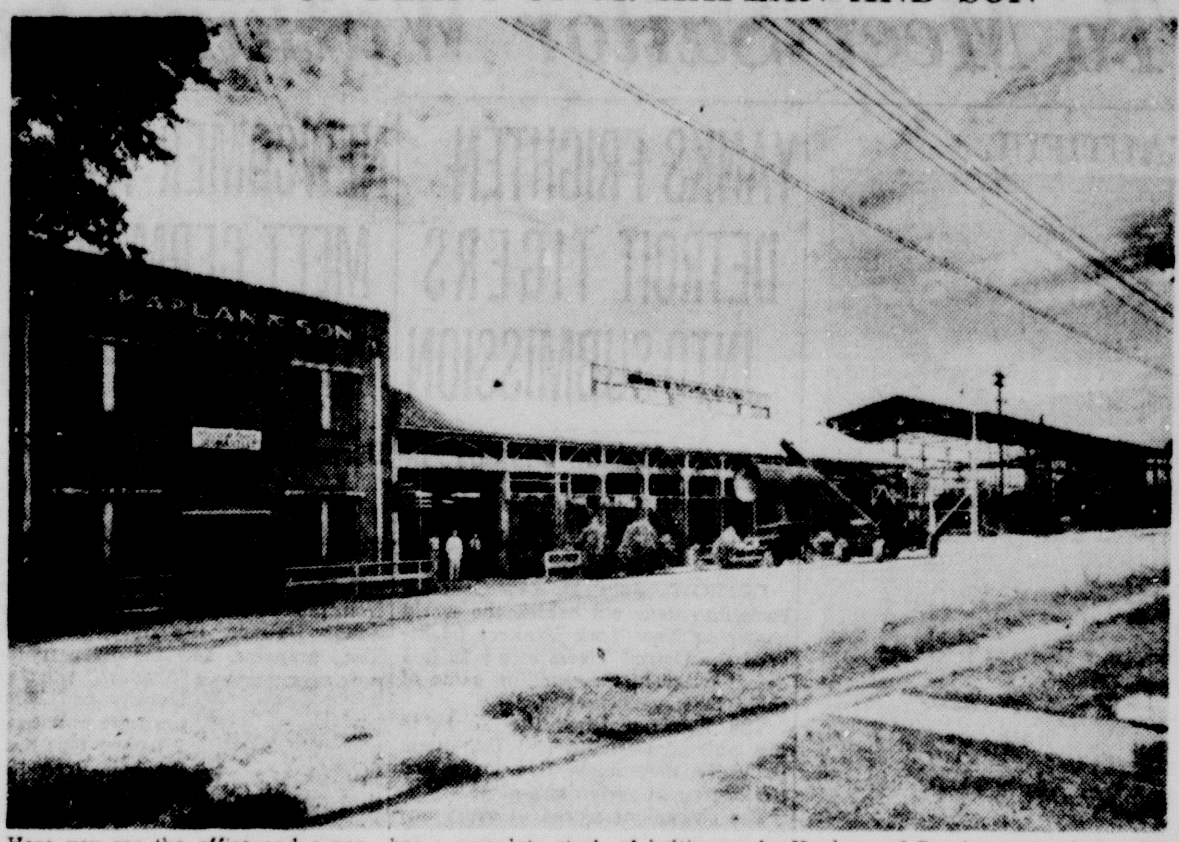
PART OF PLANT OF M. KAPLAN AND SON



Here you see the office and a portion of the large plant at Ninth and Adams streets of M. Kaplan and Son, one of the largest concerns of its kind in the south. It deals in reclaimed machinery, new and used pipe, structural steel and industrial supplies of all kinds. Officials of the firm are now calling gin operators attention to the fact that the establishment is in a position to fill many of their needs. It has a complete stock of belting, pulleys, pipe, pipe fittings, boiler feed pumps, boilers, engines and structural steel shapes. Gas and oil field operators will find there all the pipe they need for drilling and for lines and drilling rigs parts, as well. In front of the plant, slightly to the right of the picture, is a truck equipped with a crane. This truck is utilized by M. Kaplan and Son in moving heavy machinery. Used pipe fabricated in the modern machine shop operated by M. Kaplan and Son in reclaiming machinery was used in the construction of the two sheds to the right. The firm introduced the use of used pipe for structural purposes in this section. Such structural material is now widely used.

Acousticon Will Restore Hearing

No matter to what degree you are hard of hearing—and, according to the United States public health service, only half of the population of the nation has full hearing—you can overcome your handicap with an Acousticon.

Acousticons may be had in this area from Acousticon Institute of Shreveport. Air conduction, non-amplifier sets may be had for as little as $47; bone conduction sets, for $75.

All Acousticons are fully guaranteed and are periodically serviced by Acousticon Institute of Shreveport. V. Nesbitt, manager, will be in Monroe tomorrow, and longer if his presence in the city is required. He will be at Hotel Frances, where he will be glad to confer with the hard of hearing residing in Monroe and vicinity.

If you are hard of hearing, you should visit Mr. Nesbitt at Hotel Frances. The hearing devices he will demonstrate for you have the approval of the council of physical therapy of the American Medical association.

Deafness is more than a handicap. But although it is such, it can be rectified with an Acousticon. An Acousticon will enable you to regain your mental and physical balance. It will relieve all you come in contact with of the strain of loud talking.

Deafness is a source of worry, sadness, sorrow, financial losses and even tragedies. If you are a victim—and many are without being aware of it—you should take steps to remedy the affliction.

See Mr. Nesbitt tomorrow, while he is in the city conducting demonstrations of Acousticons and servicing those already in use. He visits Monroe each month. The Shreveport address of Acousticon institute is 231 Ricou-Brewster building.

Pole Trailer Made By Frost Popular

No better pole trailers, which are particularly adapted to logging purposes, are built than those manufactured in West Monroe by Frost Trailer and Supply company, located at 1214 Cypress street.

Frost pole trailers are in use throughout north Louisiana and south Arkansas, and truck operators and lumbermen swear by them. They are sturdy, built to take the punishment that their uses demand.

Another popular trailer made by Frost Trailer and Supply company is its light stock and cattle trailer. This trailer is especially designed for operators of small farms.

Frost Trailer and Supply company doesn't confine itself to these two types, however. It builds a number of other kinds; and, in fact, it will manufacture any kind to order.

Moreover, the concern handles a complete line of trailer parts and equipment, including the famous Midland power brakes, and engages in repairs to all makes of trailers.

Buy your trailers where they can be conveniently serviced. Frost trailers are fully guaranteed to stand up under the tasks for which they were designed.

Fans Repaired By Bernelle-Nettles

The place to get your electric fans overhauled is Bernelle-Nettles Radio and Electric service, operated in connection with Bernelle's garage at 311 Ouachita avenue. The establishment engages in reconditioning of electric motors of all kinds, in rewinding and otherwise repairing armatures and in overhauling both home and auto radios.

All work done by Bernelle-Nettles Radio and Electric service, like all work done by Bernelle's garage, is guaranteed. And both concerns are noted for the moderateness of their charges.

The garage is equipped and staffed to handle any kind of automobile repair job, from changing a spark plug to rebuilding the machine. As an indication as to the completeness of its equipment: The garage has a lathe that enables it to restore injured brake drums to factory specifications. This alone enables it to save motorists plenty money.

For the convenience of the public in general, as well as its steady patrons, Bernelle's garage remains open day and night and a competent mechanic is always on duty. Moreover, it operates one of the most dependable wrecker services in the city.

Terms to suit can be arranged on all major jobs at Bernelle's garage. So when in distress on the highway or byways, just call telephone number 2044.

Lane Wilson Has What's Needed To Condition Flocks

Poultry, when given proper attention and fed with care, can be a steady source of revenue.

Now is the time to condition flocks for maximum egg production during the fall and winter, when the price of eggs is high, according to officials of Lane Wilson Seed company, 113-115 North Grand street.

They suggest that flocks should be wormed and deloused. That melting fowls should be well fed. Feathers and eggs are products of the same proteins. Consequently, if molting hens are not given a balanced ration, their egg production will show a decided decline. However, if kept in good condition and properly fed, flocks will give at least 50 per cent egg production during the summer, they say.

Growing mash should be fed pullets from the time they are six weeks old until they reach 10 per cent production. This develops them into profitable laying hens. Thereafter, they should be kept well filled at all times.

Officials of Lane Wilson Seed company advocate the use of Wayne poultry feed. They maintain that this feed is superior and gives best results. Besides handling Wayne poultry feed, the establishment carries a full stock of worming and delousing remedies.

Moreover, Lane Wilson Seed company has a poultry expert on its staff who is glad at all times to assist patrons of the establishment with problems arising in their flocks.

The expert will supply the latest information on how to worm and delouse flocks and give detailed instruction on feeding and conditioning poultry for maximum egg production.

Now Is Time To Vaccinate Flocks

Now is the time to vaccinate chickens and turkeys against fowlpox and avian diphtheria. Soon the season for the diseases will be at hand; and once they start in a flock, it is too late to vaccinate.

That is the advice given by poultry experts at Tyner-Petrus company, seed, feed, fertilizer and farm supply firm at 311 Trenton street, West Monroe.

Calling attention to the fact that poultry is one of the best paying farm sidelines when given proper attention, they stressed the fact that more chickens and turkeys are lost through fowlpox and avian diptheria than any other two diseases.

The proper vaccines for the prevention of fowlpox and avian diptheria are handled by Tyner-Petrus company. And its poultry experts will administer them free of charge for flock owners who desire them to do so.

Three Contracts Awarded Lanham

Three contracts of importance were awarded recently to Lanham Electric company, 110 Jackson street. They include the electrical work on the Grayson shop, open shortly on DeSiard street; on the addition to the Ouachita Parish High school; and in connection with the remodeling and enlargement of the Woman's shop.

Lanham Electric company, the telephone number of which is 3488, does all kinds of electrical wiring, commercial and residential; engages in every form of electrical installation; handles household appliances and fixtures; and operates an electrical repair shop second to none.

The repair department particularly excels in putting fans in first class condition. It is equipped to recondition any kind of fan—ceiling fan, buzz fan, exhaust fan or attic fan. You can rely on a fan to give maximum performance when it has been overhauled by Lanham Electric company.

If your troubles are electrical, call Lanham Electric company. Incidentally, members of the firm suggest that now is the opportune time to modernize your home electrically. It can be done at an amazingly moderate cost. Estimates on such jobs are cheerfully furnished, without obligation, by the firm.

CRACKERS TRIM SOX, 7 TO 6, IN SERIES FINAL

TWO HITS IN 10TH GIVE VICTORY TO 2ND PLACE TEAM

Monroe Club Leaves Today For Seven-Day Road Trip Starting At Pine Bluff

Getting the benefit of close decisions and capitalizing on scratch hits, the Greenwood Crackers won a 10-inning battle with the Monroe White Sox, 7 to 6, here last night. The victory gave the Crackers two of the three games played here and was their fourth victory in their last six games with the Sox.

AT PINE BLUFF TODAY

The Monroe White Sox left here this morning to open a seven-day road trip with a double header this afternoon in Taylor field at Pine Bluff.

The Sox will be appearing in Pine Bluff for the last time this season and will make up some postponed games, playing double headers today, tomorrow and Tuesday, it was announced here last night.

The current road trip will be concluded at Hot Springs, and the Sox will return here next Sunday with the Helena Seaporters.

It was one of the wildest ball games seen here this year, a thriller all the way through.

Monroe was leading, 6 to 5, going into the ninth inning, but the Crackers got the benefit of a close play at the plate in the first of the ninth to score the tying run. The invaders went on to win the game on two hits, a single and a double, in the tenth.

The Sox got two on and none out to start their half of the tenth, but a double play nipped the Monroe rally.

Two Monroe hurlers, Kelton Maxfield and John Yelovic, gave up 14 hits, but nearly half of the Crackers' safe blows were grounders that took bad hops past the infield or were barely out of fielding range even though fielders were able to deflect a few of them.

The Sox got to two Greenwood pitchers, Justin Ray and Woody Hargrove, for 13 hits, while a third Cracker flinger, Charles Atwater, who worked in the last inning, allowed no hits.

John Taylor and Woody Hargrove stood out at bat for the visitors, Taylor hitting safely three times in three official times at bat and Hargrove getting four hits in five times at bat. Frank Hackney led the White Sox's attack with a double and two singles in five times at bat.

A single and a pair of doubles sent the Sox out in front with two runs in the first inning. Bob Hill struck out but Johnny Conway singled. Frank Hargrove also struck out but Manager Doug Taitt doubled into left field, scoring Conway. A double in the same spot by Hackney scored Taitt. Guy Pruitt grounded out, Clark to Amelung.

Three runs in the third frame gave the Crackers the lead. Harold Gregory beat out an infield hit. Ray fanned, but Taylor Clark singled into center field, sending Gregory to second. Gregory scored on Manager "Dusty" Rhodes single into center field and Clark went to third. Woody Hargrove got a hot single past Hackney at second, scoring Clark and sending Rhodes to third. Rhodes scored on Winford Brown's sacrifice fly to Hill in center field.

The Crackers scored once more in the fifth when Woody Hargrove beat out a grounder to Conway in deep short, went to second when Hank Taylor dropped a third strike on Brown and scored on John Taylor's single into center field.

The Sox also added one more run in their half of the fifth, when Hank Taylor walked, went to third on John Yelovic's single and scored on Bob Hill's single.

Two more runs in the sixth inning gave the Sox a 5-to-4 lead. After two

TODD AND MOLLER FORGE INTO FINAL OF WESTERN OPEN

Dallas And Quincy Golfers Match Strokes Today Over 36 Holes For Title

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 15.—(AP)—Harry Todd, blond bomber from Dallas, Tex., and Larry Moller, poker-faced sharp shooter from Quincy, Ill., shot their way into the finals of the Western Amateur Golf tournament today and will match strokes over 36 holes for the title Sunday.

Both players needed an extra hole to defeat their semi-final opponents. Todd ousted Frank Steidle, long-hitting darkhorse from Hot Springs, Ark., and Moller eliminated the sensational Stewart "Skip" Alexander, 20-year-old Duke university star.

Alexander, whose spectacular golf in his drive to the semi-finals, choked up when the going was roughest and blew his chances of victory after overcoming a 4-hole deficit and leading Moller 1 up at the 35th.

Todd overcame Steidle's three-hole margin and squared his match at the 32nd, only to see Steidle grab the lead again at the 34th. The Texan caught him again on the 35th and they went to No. 1 for the third time, after halving the 36th.

On the extra hole, the pressure caught Steidle and he three putted. Todd was down with a par four to win the match.

Alexander was on the green with his second shot on the extra hole, but he also got the jitters and missed a three-foot putt, losing the match.

POLL TO SELECT GRIDIRON SQUAD HALF COMPLETED

College Seniors Picked For Annual Charity Game With Pro Champions

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—The nation-wide poll to select a 22-man squad of college seniors for the annual charity game with the National Pro league champions reached the half-way mark tonight with middle west candidates dominating the vote-getting.

The collegians will play the New York Giants, pro titleholders, in Soldier field the night of August 30. The player poll ends next Saturday night.

Twelve middle west candidates, four from the east and two each from the south, southwest and far west were leading tonight for the various positions.

The leaders:

Ends: Earl Brown, Notre Dame, 93,514; Bowden Wyatt, Tennessee, 74,082; Jerome Holland, Cornell, 71,154; Bill Daddio, Pittsburgh, 70,793.

YANKS FRIGHTEN DETROIT TIGERS INTO SUBMISSION

Bengals Match Champs In Hits And Homers, But Jitters Cause Errors

DETROIT, July 15.—(AP)—Coursing back into their old habits, the world champion New York Yankees frightened the Detroit Tigers into a 10 to 7 defeat today in the deciding game of their three-game series.

The Tigers matched the Yanks in hits and homers, but had the jitters so badly they made five errors—on top of four in yesterday's game.

The champions scored in every one of the first four innings until they amassed nine of their total runs and gave Monte Pearson such a lead he was able to get credit for the victory even though finally batted out in the seventh.

NEWCOMER WILL MEET GERMAN IN THURSDAY'S CARD

Dorsette To Tackle Von Bromberg; Local Amateurs In Curtain Raiser

The "Shadow"

Having been besieged with requests from fans for a return match between Sailor Watkins, the surly, Amarillo, Tex., grappler, and the irrepressible "Shadow," whose identity and home town are unknown, Promoter Gus Kallio announced last night that he had booked the pair for a main event battle next Thursday night at the Monroe Wrestling arena, 310 Walnut street.

The former navy champion and the masked mat terror appeared in successive main events in two previous bouts several weeks ago at the local arena, and although they went after each other tooth and nail in some of the bitterest fighting and wrestling seen here, their feud remains unsettled.

Sailor Watkins, feeling that the referee was imposing on him repeatedly in his first battle with the "Shadow," finally tossed both the referee and the masked grappler out of the ring. Watkins took the personal satisfaction of holding complete charge of the ring, slugging the referee and the "Shadow" when they attempting to crawl back into the ring, but he lost the first match on disqualification.

Watkins lost the second match on a referee's miscue in the third and deciding fall. After twice tossing the "Shadow" over the ropes, he was standing near the edge of the ring, waiting to slug the incognito terror when he crawled through the ropes, when the referee tied his arms in a full Nelson to prevent him from hitting the "Shadow" before he reentered the ring. His arms tied, Watkins was made a sucker for a haymaker which the "Shadow" drove over the ropes and which knocked out the former navy champion, making him an easy subject for a body cover.

Following the second bout, Watkins clamored for a return match without a referee, but rules of the state athletic commission, it was learned, do not permit such a condition in the squared circle.

Kallio said last night that he would obtain a special referee for next Thursday night's main event—a third man who, it is hoped, will meet Watkins' demands for impartiality.

For the semi-final bout, the promoter has carded Joe Dorsette, native of Italy, to meet Carl von Bromberg, the German villain. Dorsette will make his initial appearance here in the bout. He is a stockily built matman, a difficult opponent to snare in legal holds, and a dangerous opponent for any grappler who elects to slug in the clinches. His powerful, though short arms are like battering rams.

The semi-final will have a 30 minute time limit, two falls to win, in order to give 15 minutes of the program to a curtain-raising battle between Blackie Adams, 188, Brown Paper mill employe, and a "local business man." Identity of the latter amateur will not be revealed until the starting time of the match, in compliance with his own request.

Adams, known in baseball and general sports circles, has quite a following of friends and boosters who are expected to turn out to see him perform.

The evening's program will start at 8:30 o'clock.

SHERROUSE TEAM BEATS TRAINING INSTITUTE, 11-3

The Sherrouse Junior softball team swamped the Louisiana Training institute aggregation, 11 to 3, on the Sherrouse diamond Friday with Sherman, the Sherrouse hurler, allowing only three hits, but errors figured in the scoring. Pritchard hit a home run for the winners. The batteries: Sherman and Keptner, Sherrouse; Jessie and Chapman, L. T. I.

The Sherrouse Midgets made it a clean sweep for Sherrouse playground by nosing out the Lida Benton team, 7 to 6, on the same day. Bob Griffn, Lida Benton, and Boyce Humble, Sherrouse, each hit home runs. The batteries: Daniel and Myrick, Sherrouse; Griffin and White, Lida Benton.

HEATED RIVALRY FLARES AS REDS TROUNCE GIANTS

Three New York Players Banished Following Riot Over Home Run Legality

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—The red hot rivalry between the Cincinnati Reds and New York Giants broke into a riotous argument between the Giants and umpires over a home run by Harry Craft today and resulted in the banishment of three New York players before the Reds won 8 to 4.

In the eighth inning Craft lined a drive into the lower right field stands, scoring one ahead of him to put the Reds in front, 5 to 4. The entire New York team immediately swarmed around the umpires arguing the ball had fallen foul.

Umpire Lee Ballanfant banished Catcher Harry Danning early, but the debate around Umpire George Magerkurth continued until Bill Jurges let loose a right hand swing at the towering arbiter. Other players stepped between them, but Jurges and Joe Moore also were expelled from the game.

The loss broke a seven-game winning streak for Pitcher Harry Gumbert, who gave ten hits in going the route.

PICARD DEFEATS NELSON FOR P. G. A. TITLE

TURNS IN BIRDIES AT FINISH TO WIN 1 UP IN 37 HOLES

Victory Gives Hershey, Pa., Golfer A Place On American Ryder Cup Team

By Bill Boni

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Handsome Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., showing more fight than an aroused Louis and a better finishing kick than Glenn Cunningham, let loose with all he had on the closing holes today to beat out United States Open Champion Byron Nelson, 1 up in 37 holes, and win the National P. G. A. golf championship.

Henry Picard

Before a gallery of 1,500 that saw one of the toughest yet one of the friendliest finals in the history of the professional tournament, Picard won with two booming tee shots and two fine putts that gave him birdies on the 36th and 37th holes. The lanky stylist had the shots when he needed them and the courage to make them, and even Babe Ruth never came through better in "the clutch."

Byron Nelson

Picard, whose victory was worth $1,100 and a place on the United States Ryder cup team that will meet the British in Florida in November, turned the tide of battle by coming out of a trap and canning a 25-foot putt to safe a half at the 34th hole. That left him 1 down with two holes to play.

The 35th, a short one, was halved in par 3's and Nelson, who had played sensational golf all day, was within one hole—one shot, in fact—of victory.

Nelson had the honor off the 36th tee, and hit a beauty that split the fairway. But Picard, knowing he had to do it here, let loose with a terrific tee shot that left him only ten yards short of the green, 300 yards away.

Nelson, playing first, laid one up [illegible] feet short of the cup. Picard followed with a chip that stopped six feet shy of the hole, and laid his man a partial stymie. Nelson putted and his ball went wide. Still Picard had to sink his putt to square the match. The gallery hushed. Picard sighted along the line, tapped the ball, and it dropped in for a birdie 3.

It was Picard's honor off the 37th tee, and again the big six-footer gave it all he had. There was a slight slice on it, though, and the ball dropped into a group of galleryites lining the fairway, headed for a sand trap, but instead caromed off a news reel truck.

To give Henry room to play his approach—Nelson's drive had split the middle of the fairway—the truck backed up. As it did so, one wheel rolled over Picard's ball and pushed it down into the dirt. They had to call for a special ruling and Henry was informed he had the right to pick it up and drop it over his shoulder.

Meanwhile, Nelson had played his approach, six feet from the pin. Picard looked at that, took out his number 8 iron, and put his own ball within 10 feet of the flag.

Henry studied that putt carefully. He walked up the line to the cup and back again. He kneeled down to study the conformation of the green, something he rarely does. Then he hit it and, with never a waver from its proper line, the ball went straight for the cup.

That left Byron squarely on the spot but, in the friendly atmosphere that had surrounded the entire match, he looked the putt over, then turned to the gallery and said:

"Would anyone like to putt this one for me?"

With that, he stroked the ball. It rolled up, then veered wide of the cup. The week-long tournament, which produced an unprecedented number of sub-par cards and three days of extra-curricular fireworks over Denny Shute's status, was at an end.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Jimmy Grippo and Melio Bettina each dropped five grand on the Conn fight. . . . It was closer than that. . . . We picked Conn, but still think Bettina shaded him. . . . Baseball men say the Cards will be back in the thick of things in another month. Ray Blades has the hitters and runners and needs only a little pitching luck. . . . Morrie Arnovich's admirers are still wondering what a guy has to do to get into the All-Star game. . . . Well, why don't they ask Gabby Hartnett?

Embarrassing moment: Alex Fidler, the Cedar Rapids, Ia., athletic trainer, worked for 10 minutes massaging the right arm of a Three-Eye league hurler before the guy complained: "If it's all the same to you, mister, I'm a southpaw! ! !"

The World-Telegram came out today for night baseball in the Polo Grounds and Yankee stadium. . . . Note to bookies: Art Rooney, the Pittsburgh plunger, who cleaned up on Conn at 1-3, will pass up the Saratoga meeting. . . . Suppose you noticed the Cubs are batting a poor last in the latest N. L. averages. . . . Home games at Washington will not be broadcast next year, but Clark Griffith will sell the out-of-town rights if anybody wants 'em.

Today's guest star: Roy Shudt, Troy (N. Y.) Record: "The only National leaguer who saw one of Bobby Feller's fast ones was Babe Phelps—and Umpire Magerkurth had to show it to him."

Note to Linus Frey: Manager Bill McKechnie says you are the most underrated player in the National league. . . . Bettina, who went into the scrap the underdog, was a 5-13 favorite after he won the first five heats. . . . Bettina still is the champ in Beacon. . . . They sent him to New York with three bands, but welcomed him home with four.

Protection: Jimmy Wilson's fine-looking 16-year-old son, Bobby, is making the eastern trip with the Reds. . . . He's a catcher, too. . . . To protect his amateur status, wise old Bill McKechnie is giving him spending money in stamps.

Heard and seen: Al Simmons trying to tear a telephone out by the roots in the lobby of the Copley-Plaza at Boston. . . . Urchins in front of the Garden pointing out Jack Miley, the hefty sports writer, as Paul Whiteman. . . . Professor Tom Swope of the Cincinnati Post looking in the cup for his lost golf balls on the swank St. Andrew's course in Westchester. . . . Frankie Parker's remodeled forehand failing to impress the eastern tennis critics. . . . Nat Fleischer, just back from Venezuela, reporting crowds lined up in Central and South American cities to see the Louis-Galento pictures.

Joe Cronin, whose Red Sox had just knocked the Yanks off five in a row, met Joe DiMaggio after the All-Star game. . . . Joe asked Joe: "How does it feel to look at some pitching you can hit, Joe?"

BEE PLAYER GOES TO 3RD PLACE IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Athletic Swatsman Moves To Same Berth In American During Short Week

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—This week's accolade for the most improved batting in the major leagues goes to Buddy Hassett of the Boston Bees in the National and Bob Johnson of the Philadelphia Athletics in the American.

Bob Johnson

Buddy Hassett

During the short week caused by the all-star game, Hassett managed to swell his batting percentage 24 points to .343 and move from ninth to third among the National league batters. In the same time Johnson lifted his mark 14 points to climb to third ranking in the junior circuit.

Johnson was the only newcomer to the American league's hitting set, taking the place of the Yankees' Bill Dickey. Similarly there were only two changes in the National as Jim Brown and Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals dropped out and Merrill May of the Phillies and Harry Danning of the New York Giants took their places.

The lead in the two leagues remained with Morrie Arnovich of the Phillies in the National and Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees in the American. Arnovich lifted his percentage four points to .380 while DiMaggio, batting at a pace incomparable in recent years, raised his sensational .420 to a stratospheric .432, getting 12 hits in 24 times at bat.

ROOKIE BEAUTIES READY TO BLOSSOM

By Earl Hilligan

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—An unusually large number of baseball's spring rookie beauties apparently are ready to blossom into the game's hardy perennial class.

Year after year scores of first year youngsters bloom brilliantly in southern camps and then fade quickly after the season opens. This year, however, a large group of "kids" battling successfully for regular jobs have put up such a consistent fight that it appears likely many will rank as established major league stars for seasons to come.

The American league's rookie crop, rated last spring as one of the best in years, is holding up well under the hot summer sun and a test which has extended to the schedule's half-way point. The two outstanding junior circuit newcomers are Boston's Ted Williams and Barney McCosky of the Detroit Tigers.

Williams, rangy outfielder, had a batting average of .310 through Thursday's games and his total of 70 runs batted in led the league. McCosky, playing the Detroit outfield since the season started, was hitting .321 and had driven in 25 runs in 71 contests.

Other American league first-year players who have refused to fold up include Outfielder Charley Keller of the Yankees, hitting around .300 and driving in runs consistently; Jim Tabor, Boston's third baseman, who has driven home 52 runs in 67 games; Joe Gallagher, of New York and St. Louis; John Berardino, St. Louis Browns' classy second baseman; Atley Donald, New York's young pitching sensation who won 10 straight games without a loss; and Philadelphia's Joe Gantenbein, a smooth fielding infielder.

In the National league, Merrill May of the Phillies hit .314 through 65 games in which he smashed home 34 markers. Two other Phillies, First Baseman Jack Bolling and Outfielder Legrant Scott, also have been playing well. Eddie Miller of Boston, up from Kansas City, has been acclaimed as one of the finest fielding youngsters to come up in years, while Pittsburgh's Fern Bell hit around .300 through 39 contests.

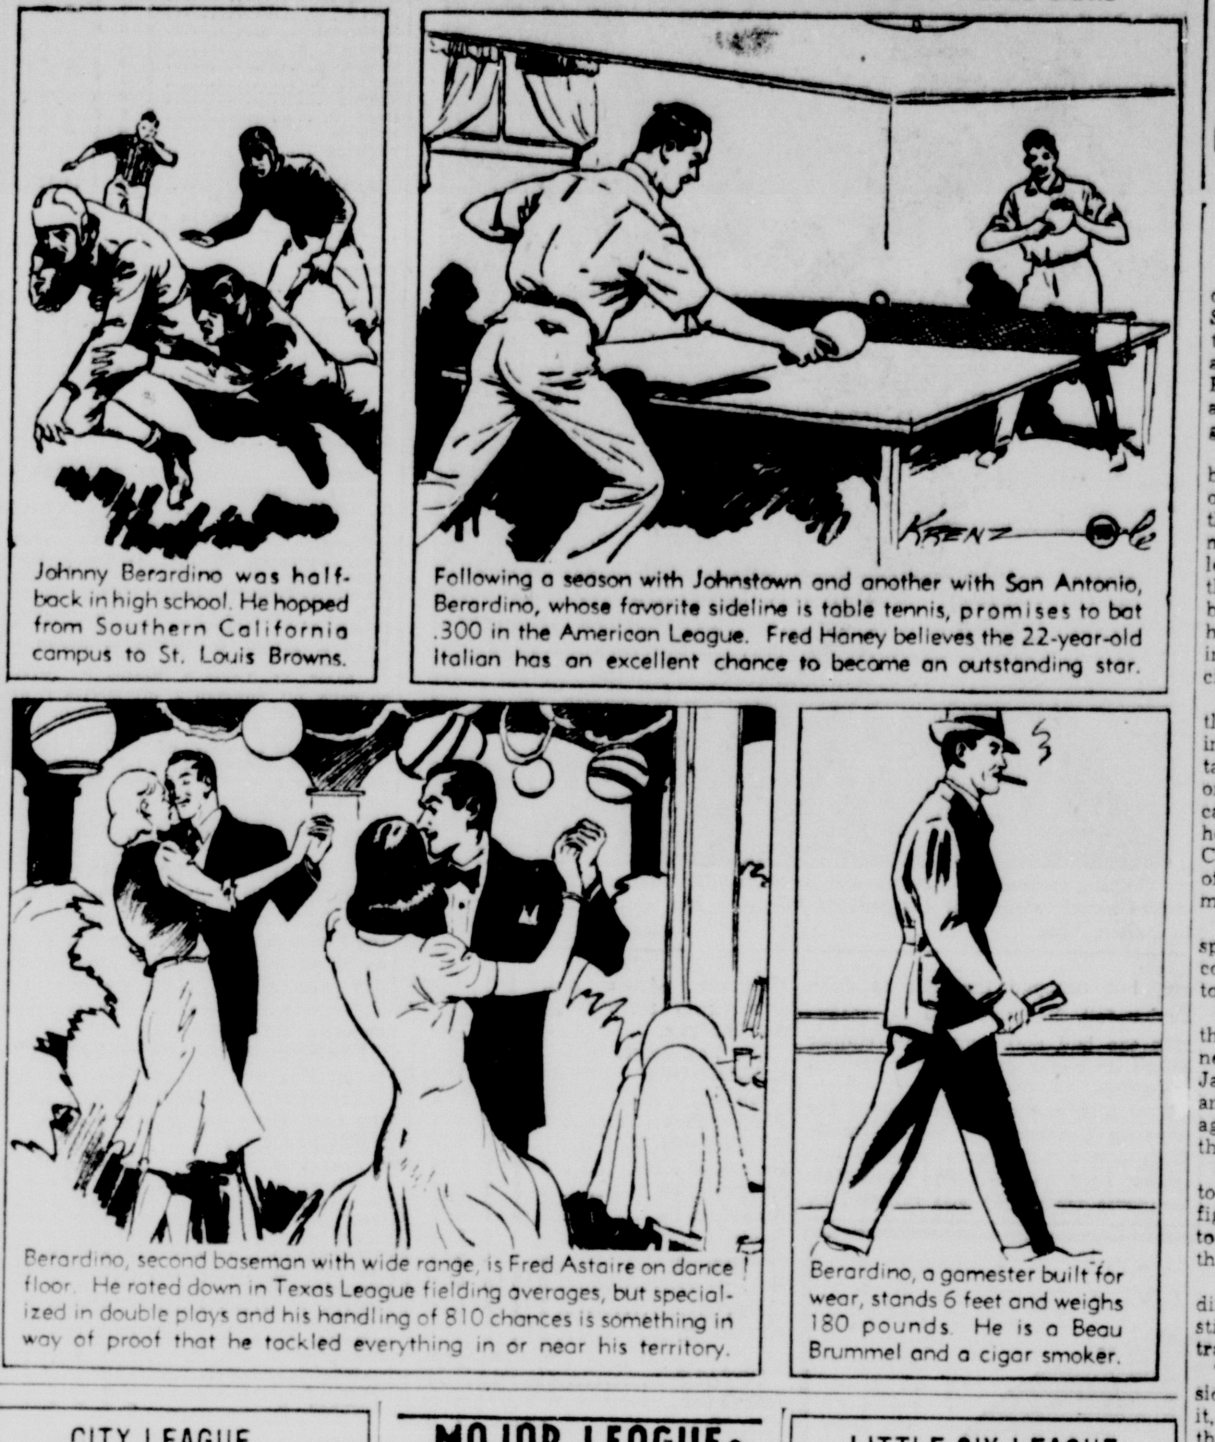
BERARDINO MAKES BID FOR STARDOM IN MAJORS



Johnny Berardino was halfback in high school. He hopped from Southern California campus to St. Louis Browns.

Following a season with Johnstown and another with San Antonio, Berardino, whose favorite sideline is table tennis, promises to bat .300 in the American League. Fred Haney believes the 22-year-old Italian has an excellent chance to become an outstanding star.

Berardino, second baseman with wide range, is Fred Astaire on dance floor. He rated down in Texas League fielding averages, but specialized in double plays and his handling of 810 chances is something in way of proof that he tackled everything in or near his territory.

Berardino, a gamester built for wear, stands 6 feet and weighs 180 pounds. He is a Beau Brummel and a cigar smoker.

LITTLE SIX LEAGUE

The Little Six baseball league swings into its second half schedule today with games at Crowville, Jones and Holly Ridge, according to W. E. Coats, of Delhi, league president. All games will be double headers.

The Mer Rouge aggregation, winner of the first half title, will be at Holly Ridge; Epps will play at Crowville; and Boeuf River will engage Jones. The winner of the last half will meet Mer Rouge, first half winner, in a championship series at the end of the season.

All games in the Little Sox league are played on Sundays, with twin bills being scheduled on each playing date.

The second half schedule is as follows:

July 16: Epps at Crowville; Boeuf River at Jones; Mer Rouge at Holly Ridge. July 23: Jones at Holly Ridge; Mer Rouge at Epps; Crowville at Boeuf River. July 30: Mer Rouge at Boeuf River; Epps at Holly Ridge; Crowville at Jones.

August 6; Holly Ridge at Crowville; Jones at Boeuf River; Epps at Mer Rouge. August 13: Jones at Crowville; Boeuf River at Holly Ridge; Mer Rouge at Epps. August 20: Holly Ridge at Jones; Crowville at Mer Rouge; Boeuf River at Epps. August 27: Holly Ridge at Crowville; Epps at Jones; Boeuf River at Mer Rouge. September 3: Holly Ridge at Boeuf River; Mer Rouge at Jones; Crowville at Epps.

BAER, SCHMELING ARE DANGLED IN HEAVY FISH POND

Pair Of Maxes May Be Bait To Spur Possibility Of Nova-Galento Battle

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—They're dusting off Max Baer and Max Schmeling and dangling them out there in the heavyweight fishpond again, just in case the bait for a Philadelphia fight between Lou Nova and Tony Galento in the fall doesn't get the required nibble.

It may be the threat of bringing back either of the Mauling Maxes as opposition for Two-Ton Tony was thought up to get Ray Carlin, Nova's manager, to fall in line on the Galento fight But Ray isn't rushing for the bait, so there is the slim possibility one or both of the two ex-heavyweight kings may yet be reintroduced to our very best fistic society.

Carlin, the quietest and shyest of the fight managing fraternity, is willing to take Nova to Philadelphia to tangle with the Jersey barkeep, but only if the Pennsylvania fistic fathers call in an outside refree. It's not that he has anything against the Quaker City arbiters but he'd like to get one of the nationally recognized "thirdmen" to work this one.

You see, Ray figures he has next spring's challenger for Joe Louis. Of course, Galento may have something to say about that.

Ray is going to put his case before the Pennsylvania boxing commission next Thursday. In the meantime, the Jacobs gentlemen—Mike the promoter and Joe (no relation), Galento's manager, are impatient to get the whole thing straightened out.

So they handed Ray an ultimatum today. Either, they said, agree to the fight in Philadelphia, or we're going to give the shot to Baer or Schmeling this fall.

"Who do they think they're kidding," was Carlin's attitude. "Nova is still the No. 1 man, the biggest attraction. So I won't be rushed.

"And if the Pennsylvania commission doesn't want to see my side of it, and Mike doesn't want to bring the fight into New York—then I'll have to go elsewhere with my business."

So, it was being whispered around that maybe the Schmeling and Baer return to action may not be so far-fetched. If Baer could be induced to come back to tangle with Tony it would be a fight folks have been talking of for a long time. And Baer, who can add one and one as well as the next guy, probably wouldn't need much coaxing to take the tussle when he realizes what it would draw in Philadelphia. In that event, Schmeling could be brought across the big pond again for a shot at Nova.

NAME COACHES FOR ALL-STAR CONTEST

The coaching staff which will handle the northern squad in the annual All-Star High school football game at Baton Rouge on August 5, was announced here yesterday by Curtis Parker, Centenary college coach who heads the north's staff.

Parker chose as his assistants, Tom Cobb, his line coach at Centenary; Percy Brown, coach at Neville High school, Monroe; C. C. Crowley, Haynesville High school coach; and Lee Dobson, coach at Byrd High school, Shreveport. Crowley and Dobson will handle the tackles and ends, respectively, and Brown will coach the backfield, Parker said. Cobb has been designated the line coach.

2 HITS IN 10TH BRING VICTORY

were out. Hackney singled into center field and went to third on Pruitt's double into left field. Hank Taylor drew his second base on balls to load the bases. Murrell Jones doubled into left field, scoring Hackney and Pruitt and sending Taylor to third. Yelovic walked, again loading the bases, but Hill popped out to Amelung at first to retire the side. Woody Hargrove relieved Ray as Greenwood's hurler immediately after Jones' double.

The Crackers knotted the count with one run in the seventh. Clark walked, went to second on Woody Hargrove's hot single past Hackney and scored on John Taylor's single into center field.

In the eighth inning, after one was out, Hank Taylor lifted a high infield fly near the pitcher's mound. Amelung waited too long to see that Pitcher Hargrove intended for him to take the ball, and, when he rushed in from first, he misjudged the fly. The ball hit Amelung on the shoulder and bounced away with Taylor racing on to second. Jones singled to score Taylor and put the Sox ahead once more.

Rhodes led off for Greenwood in the ninth with a single into left field. Woody Hargrove bounced a grounder off Hackney's leg, and Rhodes went to second. Brown flied out to Hill in center field, and Rhodes went to third after the catch. John Taylor walked to load the bases. Then Amelung grounded to Yelovic who whipped the ball back to Catcher Taylor as Rhodes raced home.

Umpire Rehbein called Rhodes safe with the tying run on an exceptionally close play that drew the anger of the Sox and the fans down upon the umpire. Amelung reached first safely on the play, leaving the bases loaded.

But with Dace Davis at bat, the Sox pulled one of the strangest plays seen in the park here. Davis attempted to bunt and all runners started advancing, but he missed the ball completely and Hank Taylor, holding on to the ball, raced down the third base line to meet Woody Hargrove, who fell down trying to get back to third. Taylor tagged Hargrove and kept on running to third and caught John Taylor off second.

Hank Taylor finally tagged the runner, but dropped the ball as John Taylor fell. Yelovic raced in, recovered the ball and tagged the runner before he could get up, thus retiring the side.

Two hits, one a double, scored the winning Cracker run in the tenth. With one out, Gregory singled into center field. Crow, who came into the game when Ray was relieved by Hargrove, struck out, but Clark doubled to score Gregory with the winning run.

DODGERS BEAT BUCS

BROOKLYN, July 15.—(AP)—A four-run eighth inning enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to capitalize on Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons' effective pitching today with a 6 to 2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the deciding game of their series.

Fitzsimmons held the Buccaneers to seven hits and his outfield was not called upon to handle a single fielding chance during the afternoon.

PHILS EVEN SERIES

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—(AP)—The Phillies evened the series with the Cubs today when they smacked Bill Lee and Charley Root for 14 hits and a 8-5 victory before 3,000 fans.

It was Big Bill Lee's tenth defeat of the year, one more than he lost during the entire 1938 season.

Merrill May led the Phillies' attack with three singles and a double.

CHISOX TROUNCE A'S

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—Pitching himself out of repeated jams in the last six frames, Johnny Rigney, young White Sox right-hander, defeated the Philadelphia Athletics today, 7 to 3.

Rigney fanned seven and yielded as many hits. In the fourth he set the A's down in order after the bases were filled with none out. He held the A's to one run after they opened the sixth with three straight singles and wiggled out of a bases-filled spot with one out in the ninth.

Jonesville

The members of the Methodist W. M. S. entertained the members of zone six at the church. Mrs. Luther Denham of Ferriday, the zone leader, was in charge of the meeting. Rev. Jerome Cain of Good Pine gave the devotional. An interesting talk by Mrs. H. V. Dunford, district secretary, was enjoyed as well as a vocal solo by Miss Eula Routh Wurster. Mrs. Denham was presented with a life membership in the society for her small daughter. At the close of the meeting a delicious plate lunch was served to the 45 members present.

The members of the Baptist Y. W. A. met at the home of Mrs. Charles Fairbanks. After a very interesting program, delicious ice cream and cake were enjoyed. Those attending this meeting were: Syril Arnard, Berda Owen, Violet Marie Bennett, Sybil Phillips, Rosa Lee Webber, Alberta Fields, Bessie Cotton and Maxine Foster.

Mrs. Harold Dees was hostess to the members of her bridge club. The two tables were grouped in the living room, which was attractive with vases of cut flowers. Mrs. W. L. Frisbie won high score, Mrs. Barney Cain second and Mrs. Dees cut the consolation. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed by the eight club members.

Mrs. L. C. Spencer entertained the members of her bridge club in the home of Mrs. H. W. LeTissier. The prizes were won by Mrs. C. E. Enete, Mrs. R. P. Boyd and Mrs. L. C. Spencer. After the games, delicious refreshments were enjoyed by Mrs. John Wurster, Mrs. E. H. Scott, Mrs. C. E. Enete, Mrs. Henry Uttinger, Mrs. R. P. Boyd, Mrs. S. L. Marvin and Mrs. H. W. LeTissier.

Mrs. Bettie Adams and Miss Hazel Beard accompanied Mrs. Nick Floyd and daughter to their home in Tyler, Tex., for a week's visit.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—Wheat prices were fractionally lower at the start of trading today reflecting declines at Liverpool and scattered rains and cooler weather in some districts of the domestic grain belt.

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed quiet, 10 points lower. Sales 272; low middling 8.20; middling 9.35; good middling 9.90; receipts 2,286; stocks 403,330.

AVERAGE COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton at 10 southern spot markets today was nine points lower at 9.32 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days was 9.48 cents.

New York

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Favorable weather influenced some selling in cotton futures today but traders generally held off for some definite news on export subsidy plans. Prices ranged 7 to 8 points lower at the close.

Active liquidation by Bombay brokers in October delivery and hedge and local pressure were responsible for the dip. Support was limited to scale down trade demand and some mill and Wall Street absorption.

Oil And Gas News

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—Issuance of 34 permits for drilling operations and the completion of eight oil wells, with total initial daily production of 2,865 barrels, was announced today by the Louisiana department of conservation.

Five of the completions were in south Louisiana, all west of the Atchafalaya river. Seven of the drilling permits were for locations east of the Atchafalaya river.

The completions, announced in the weekly report of the conservation department, ranged from May 20 through July 12.

Daily estimated production for the week ending July 8 was 203,048 barrels for the gulf coastal section and 71,705 for north Louisiana, totaling 274,753 barrels.

The completions follow:

Charenton field, St. Mary parish, Pan American Production company, South Coast No. 5, 318.28 barrels.

Cotton Valley field, Webster parish, Hunt Oil company, Stewart et al No. 1, 351.78 barrels.

Eola field, Avoyelles parish, Sun Oil company, E. A. Townsend No. 1, 601.46 barrels.

East Hackberry field, Cameron parish, the Texas company, State-East Hackberry No. 26, 518 barrels, and same field, the Union Sulphur company, Caldwell No. 8, 620 barrels.

Horseshoe bayou, St. Mary parish, the Texas company, St. Mary Parish Land company No. 2, 360 barrels.

Little creek, LaSalle parish, H. N. Saurage, A. T. Dean No. 3, 25 barrels.

White Castle, Iberville parish, Shell Oil company, Inc., A. Wilberts and Sons No. 13, 70 barrels (distillate).

For south Louisiana, east of the Atchafalaya river, the following permits were issued:

East Baton Rouge parish, three permits to William Helis et al.

Iberville parish, one permit to Standard Oil company of Louisiana and Gulf Refining company.

Lafourche parish, Marshland Oil company.

Plaquemines parish, the Texas company.

Terrebonne parish, the Texas company.

PAPEETE QUIETS DOWN

PAPEETE, Tahiti.—(AP)—This gay tropic seaport is sometimes pictured as a place of perpetual whoopee, but actually it quiets down as completely as any other spot. By government decree all noise stops now at 10 p.m.—and that goes not only for barrooms and streets but even for radios and phonographs in private homes.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Stocks slightly mixed; selected issues advance. Bonds lower; all groups slant downward. Curb narrow; some specialties bought. Foreign exchange quiet; New York closed; Boston rates steady. Cotton depressed; light scattered selling. Sugar, coffee closed.

CHICAGO—Wheat about steady; corn firm. Cattle steady. Hogs steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Few traders appeared for today's short stock market session but the list maintained a good undertone.

While fractional gains were well distributed at the close, there was an assortment of minus signs in evidence.

The ticker tape napped during the greater part of the proceedings. Transfers for the two hours approximated 200,000 shares.

That business news for a long time has been appreciably better than the market was suggested to financial observers by satisfactory second quarters earnings results from American Telephone, Bayuk Cigar, General Baking, Alpha Portland Cement, McAndrews and Forbes and United States Pipe and Foundry.

Steels were resistant throughout as most statistical quarters looked for another upswing in next week's mill operations. At Buffalo the production rate was expected to jump 4 1-2 points and a rise of 1 1-2 points was believed in the cards for the Pittsburgh sector.

Some attention was given the motors, although early settlement of the General Motors strike was thought likely. Helpful too was this week's rebound in output of new cars.

The president's message on neutrality legislation was without much market effect, brokers said, in view of word from Washington that this controversy probably would not interfere with early adjournment of congress. Foreign affairs again were a negligible influence.

Bonds and commodities were a trifle mixed throughout.

Among stocks Loft once more was a lively performer, edging to a new high for 1939. Supported also were United States Steel, Bethlehem, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Eastern Airlines, American Telephone, Western Union, J. C. Penney, Pennsylvania, United States Pipe and Foundry and Bayuk Cigar.

Inclined to hesitate were General Motors, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Air Reduction, International Harvester and Douglas Aircraft.

Ahead in the curb were Lockheed, Gulf Oil and Northern States Power "A." Electric Bond and Share and Niagara Hudson Power slipped.

Livestock

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—(USDA)—Livestock prices were steady today after the week's rather sharp decline that reflected increased receipts and lagging consumer demand due to hot weather.

A few hogs weighing 220 to 280 pounds sold at 6.30 to $7 but the trade was light, there being only a small number on sale. The quotable top was 7.00. Hogs lost 10 to 35 cents this week, with heavier weights showing the greatest decline.

Burdening receipts caused medium weight and heavy steers to drop 25 to 40 cents during the week. Some good to choice yearlings, however, advanced 25 cents. Spring lambs and yearlings dropped fully $1.25 per hundredweight.

Salable hogs 100; direct 2,000; market nominally steady on limited supply available; few around 220-280 lbs. 6.30-7.00; shippers took none; estimated holdover 100; compared week ago; weight averages 240 lbs. and down 10-25 lower; heavier butchers and packing sows mostly 25-35 off.

Salable cattle 400; calves 100; compared Friday last week: Receipts burdensome and medium weight and heavy steers 25-40 lower; closed very dull at maximum decline; good to choice fat steers scaling 1,100 lbs. upward predominated; comparable long yearlings and light steers 25 lower, but good to choice grade 750-950 lb. yearling steers and light heifer and mixed yearlings strong to 25 higher.

Salable sheep 1,000; direct 2,000; compared Friday last week: Spring lambs and yearlings fully 1.25 lower, having regained only small part of otherwise very sharp downturns; sheep fully 25 lower; week's spring lamb top 10.25, paid early, closing top 9.35, top on low day 9.25.

Circle 1 and 2 of the Baptist W. M. S. held their weekly meeting at the church. After the song, "Rescue the Perishing," Mrs. W. C. Volentine offered the opening prayer. Mrs. J. C. Hines, mission study director, presented the introduction and the first chapter of "Helping Others To Become Christians." Following this there was a general discussion of evangelistic work to be done this month. Mrs. R. C. Baygent conducted a short business session in which reports for the past quarter were discussed.

The Caldwell Center Home Demonstration club held its July meeting in the home of Mrs. Lewis Grant. Each member present answered to roll call with a new idea about canning. Miss Caldwell distributed booklets giving recipes for pickles and relishes. She told recipes for green tomato mincemeat and marmalade, and gave a discussion and demonstration of some of the recipes found in the booklets.

Mrs. Frank Love read a timely article on "Snakes You Ought To Know," in which a description of the most common poisonous and harmless snakes were described. Mrs. Isaac Stamper read a poew, "If I Knew You And You Knew Me." Mrs. Grant conducted a true and false test in which Miss Caldwell was winner of the prize.

The hostess then served refreshments of sandwiches, cake and iced drinks to Miss Caldwell, Mesdames Frank Love, Vella Mixon, Isaac Stamper and J. C. Hines.

Mrs. M. D. Baldwin was complimented on her seventy-first birthday when her daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Mathis and Mrs. Henley Biggs, and her granddaughter, Mrs. C. M. Mouser, entertained in the home of Mrs. Mathis.

Mrs. Baldwin was quite surprised when, on her return from Clarks, she found the living room filled with guests who had come to help her celebrate her birthday.

A contest was introduced in which Mrs. T. L. Johnston won a prize.

The gifts, which had been kept out of sight, were then brought in by Mrs. Baldwin's great granddaughter, Beth Mouser, and her grandson, Otis Baldwin Biggs. These were opened and passed for the guests to view.

Each guest drew a number and went to a table where they found a corresponding number with a favor attached. Following the cutting of the birthday cake, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to Mesdames W. S. Howell, W. M. Elliott, A. D. Eglin, S. M. Love, E. M. Grayson, J. W. McKeithen, J. J. McKeithen, W. O. McKeithen, T. L. Johnston, F. G. Johnston, J. A. Warner, J. S. Gordy, W. R. Humphries, A. L. Humphries, J. A. Christian and R. P. Taylor.

Those sending gifts but unable to attend were: Mesdames A. Wells, E. O. Eglin, Martha Ann Lively, W. H. Thomas and Misses Agatha Thomas and Mildred Grayson.

The business and social meeting of the Methodist Missionary society was held at the home of Mrs. William McLean, with Mrs. Clark Rankin as co-hostess. Mrs. Frank Stewart, leader of the program on Christian social relations, called upon Mrs. Nelson Michaud, who gave a most interesting report on "Widening Our National Outlook." Meditation was offered by Mrs. Will Hackett.

During the business session reports were read from the three Hodge missionary circles, the treasurer's report was given and Mrs. T. G. Dennis reported from the Missionary Bulletin.

Following the meeting a pleasant social hour was enjoyed and delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch were served by the hostesses to the following members:

Mrs. Nelson Michaud, Mrs. Charles Palmer, Mrs. Will Hackett, Mrs. C. W. Etter, Mrs. D. B. Boddie, Mrs. Ernest Spruce, Mrs. Frank Stewart, Mrs. J. B. Boss, Mrs. John Michaud, Mrs. T. G. Dennis and Mrs. Wayne Dennis.

Mrs. Paul F. Stinson was hostess to the members of the Art club in her home.

At the conclusion of an enjoyable social hour, Mrs. Stinson served delicious refreshments, consisting of fruit sherbet and cake, to the following:

Mrs. Tommie Cox of Crossett, Ark., Mrs. Howard Hearne, Mrs. Henry Stovall, Mrs. H. M. Gatlin, Mrs. Loyd Parker, Mrs. Stanley Lewis, Mrs. H. W. Ayres, Mrs. D. D. McDonald and Mrs. E. L. Mobley.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Deason was the scene of a party when the Methodist Missionary society assembled there for a suprise party and miscellaneous shower, honoring Mrs. Mack Chennoult, the former Ann Lancaster, whose marriage of over a year came as a complete surprise to her many friends.

After a clever flower romance contest was enjoyed by all, the proud recipient opened and displayed her many beautiful gifts, presented to her in a large and attractive basket by Sonny Boy Snedger and Betty Lou Lancaster, followed by the presentation of an exquisite corsage by little Harrison Miller, III.

Delicious punch and cookies were served.

Gerald Mitchell entertained a group of his young friends at a weiner and marshmallow roast on the lawn of his home, honoring his cousin, Lillian Smith of St. Joseph, who is his guest. About twenty guests enjoyed Gerald's hospitality, including the honoree and Billy Dent of Oakley, Miss., and Rufus Snedeger of Ft. Worth, Tex.

Mrs. Robert Gilbert entertained members of the Baptist Junior G. A. and their dates with a swimming party at the local pool. Following the swim a picnic supper was served.

In the party were: Mackie Sue Delcoure, Bob Howell, Etta Lea Emmons, Bobbie Ray Russell, Rose Mary May, Glenn Johnston, Mary Francis Kraft, Charles White, Laverne Meek, Dewey Furr, Jr., Mildred Rogers, Laurence Nowlin, Gloria Anne Bradford, Fred Cameron Jackson, Naomi Harris, Sam Bass, Hazel Dean Gilbert, Billie McDermott, Bobbie Ray Delcoure, Bobbie Jean Gilbert, Darrell Delcoure, Katherine Brown, Bettie Sue Christian, Mrs. Gladys Christian, Mrs. C. H. Mallory, Mrs. Milliard Delcoure and Mrs. Robert Gilbert.

Rita Francis De Priest of Houston, Tex., who is the guest of Mrs. Mae Box for the month of July, was complimented by Mrs. Box who entertained a group of young people in her honor at Hotel White.

At the conclusion of the games an ice course was served to the following: Rita Francis De Priest, Anne Brown of Monroe, La Verne and Mary Beth Lewis, Hershall Howell, Frank Conerly, Clifford and Johnnie Sellers, Jimmie and Billie Harrison, J. E. Steeley, Carl Martin, Earl Beasley, Mrs. Henry Massey of Alexandria and Mrs. Mae Box.

Mr. Wallace Stopher of Baton Rouge, Caldwell parish school band director, and 35 members of the Columbia, Grayson and Clarks school bands were entertained by the Clarks band mothers.

The social was held at the conclusion of a public concert given by the band at the local athletic park, under the sponsorship of the local P.-T. A. unit. Iced drinks were served, and the party went to the local swimming pool park for a swim. In the late evening ice cream and cake were served the group.

More than thirty members attended the Baptist Women's missionary meeting, held at the church. Rev. Paul Jones, pastor, delivered an interesting sermon on "Soul Winning."

Dr. and Mrs. Fred H. Mecom had as their recent guest Mrs. Mecom's niece, Anne Brown of Monroe.

Dr. and Mrs. S. G. Hines, S. G. Hines, Jr., Mrs. Durwood Pettijohn, and Billy Gilbert Pettijohn spent a week camping on Lake Bruin, near St. Joseph. This week they are enjoying a motor trip through the Rio Grande valley in Texas.

Miss Betty Thomas has gone to Camp Ki-Ro-Li, near Monroe, where she is to remain for several weeks.

Recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Thomas were Mrs. Thomas's sister, Mrs. Max Sax, and sons Ralph Cryer and Bobbie of St. Louis, Mo.; her mother, Mrs. Clarence Young, and Mrs. J. H. Rainey and son J. H. Rainey, Jr., of Cleburne, Tex.

INDIANS TO BEGIN THREE-DAY DANCE

Swarthy Tribesmen Abstain From Food And Water During Long Ritual

By John F. Chandler

FORT HALL, Idaho, July 15.—(AP)—Indian drums are calling swarthy tribesmen from the mountains and valleys of the Fort Hall reservation to the parched sagebrush lowlands for the rigorous three-day dance to the sun.

There the crippled and sick will seek cure from their ills in a strenuous 72-hour religious ritual beneath the sun's sweltering rays, abstaining the while from food and drink.

It is the most sacred of the many annual dance rites conducted by the Bannock-Shoshone people and draws Indians and whites alike to witness the primitive procedure.

At sundown on July 20, tribal chieftains will lead the dancers into circular willow dance arenas and around the mystic center pole, a green tree trunk "planted" for the occasion to symbolize sturdiness and long life.

Then follows a weird and harrowing ceremonial handed down through generations.

To the accompaniment of throbbing tom-toms, the modulated wail of Indian women and men chanting ancient tribal songs, the half-naked dancers shuffle monotonously to and from the edges of the willow enclosure, eyes fixed on the center pole.

Shrill eagle-bone whistles in the mouths of the dancers lend an eerie note.

Through the night can be felt the tense excitement from the quickened step of the bobbing Indian participant and the faster tempo of the drums heralding the approaching sunrise.

A streak of red creases the purple fringe of the distant Blackfoot mountains and the watchful medicine man signals a sudden halt of the drums. The dancers line up facing the east for the impressive, hour-long sunrise ceremony.

A rapid drum throb rolls again and the "waving up" rites to the sun begin. With arms extended eastward and hands grasping white eagle feather wristlets, the dancers motion jerkily in an upward swing as if to help the sun over the horizon.

At Bannock creek an Indian interpreter quotes Sam Bell, 90-year-old medicine man, in this chant after the sunrise:

"My Father God. You made the sun.

"I want you, Father God, to help us. That is what we are here for, so we may have good health and drive out sickness.

"Father God, you know our sickness, and when the moon comes again bring us health."

Then the long day begins, the monotonous shuffle of bare feet in the dust, parched lips and self-denial from any form of drink.

BIRTHS

PRISON DOORS OPEN FOR SMUGGLER

Heavily veiled, Mrs. Edgar Lauer, who smuggled gowns from Europe, leaves a New York prison, her three-month sentence completed. With her is her husband, who resigned from the New York supreme court bench after her guilty plea.

MARRIAGES

RIGGS-PAUL

FERRIDAY, La., July 15.—(Special)—A marriage of much interest in this section took place at 4 p.m. July 8 at the residence of Rev. J. H. Hamilton, pastor of the Baptist church, when Miss Barbara Nell Paul of Monterey, clerk in the office of Parish Clerk of Court V. P. Campbell at Vidalia, became the bride of John Riggs of Wildsville, La.

The marriage was attended by Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson and relatives of the bride and bridegroom. The bride is a graduate of the Monterey High school, while the bridegroom, who is employed here by the Union Compress and Warehouse company, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Riggs of Wildsville, and is a graduate of the local high school. After a short bridal trip they will make their home in Ferriday.

LONG-CHAUVIN

FERRIDAY, La., July 15.—(Special)—Miss Ruth Chauvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Chauvin of Ferriday, was married to J. L. Long at the office of Parish Superintendent of Education J. E. Burris, who is justice of the peace for this district. Both are well known in Ferriday, where the bride attended school. They will make their home here.

More than 650 registered for the Nova Scotia Summer school at Halifax, held chiefly to enable teachers to make permanent licenses they had received from the Nova Scotia Normal college.

torial group supporting this idea had decided against pushing for action at this time.

The strikes, he said, had proved "embarrassing" to the effort to amend the relief act.

The widespread walkouts are in protest against the New York requirements which Murray had proposed to change. These regulations had the effect on requiring some skilled WPA workers to work much longer to earn the same monthly pay they received under the old prevailing wage rule.

Mayor George A. Leach of Minneapolis telegraphed an appeal to Attorney General Murphy for "cooperation" of the federal government in handling the situation in his city. He said that "certain labor elements have openly revolted against the federal government" and asserted that "nothing short of federal intervention can restore law and order."

Up to early afternoon, justice spokesmen said, the telegram had not been received. The department took the view that at the moment its only function was to investigate whether there had been violations of a federal statute making intimidations of WPA workers a criminal offense.

Dr. Smith still remains in jail under 24 indictments ranging from forgery to embezzlement and falsification of public records. Bail for him totals $79,500.

The falsification charges against him are based on alleged acts when he served as president of the university board of supervisors. Specifically he was charged with altering the board minutes to raise his and Jackson's salaries, pay Caldwell a two per cent commission on all university construction, and of having fixed board minutes to make it appear as if the board had approved a trading account for a nonexistent endowment fund.

"This has been only the beginning," District Attorney Sanchez said today when he outlined work to be undertaken by the parish grand jury next week.

One of the questions to be taken up will be "what Baptists can do to avert war and promote peace." It will be handled by a commission headed by Principal N. J. Nordstrom of Stockholm.

STERLING TALKS PRESS FREEDOM

President Of Newspaper Editors Appraises Constructive Criticism

PALO ALTO, Calif., July 15.—(AP)—Freedom of the press is a "privilege to be cherished and not a license to be exploited," Donald J. Sterling, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said tonight.

Sterling, managing editor of the Portland, Ore., Journal, appraised "constructive criticism directed against us" in a speech prepared for delivery before a newspaper men's meeting at Stanford university.

"Newspaper have the right to be judged in comparison with the average mill run of publications and not with the few that may not measure up," Sterling told the midyear editorial conference sponsored by the California Newpaper Publishers' association and the Stanford university division of journalism.

The newspapers that fall below par "persistently draw the fire of zealous critics who by the very nature of their criticism confound propaganda with news," the editor said.

"Unfortunately some people do not think through the meaning of freedom of the press. They prefer to regard it as a self-assumed property asset of the publishers. This is an error. All responsible newspaper men and women regard freedom of the press as a privilege to be cherished and not as a license to be exploited."

Sterling advised editors to consider news broadcasting, radio facsimile newspapers and other new forms of news dissemination as allies, rather than competitors.

"During a strike which compelled the suspension of the three Portland daily newspapers for five days, the usual volume of newscasting was carried on. * * * I followed these broadcasts carefully and you have no idea how flat and futile they were with no detailed newspaper accounts to sustain them," Sterling stated.

He cited criticisms of newspaper-unfairness and control by advertisers," and said there doubtless were cases where the counting room influence affects the newsroom policy. This is shortsighted. For whenever the private interests of the proprietor submerges his public interest his influence is of necessity constricted and his profits too. This is not pollyanna poppycock, but just common sense."

As for the charge of unfairness in the presentation of news, Sterling advised examination of "all the newspapers which we individually represent for a given day and you will be impressed with the similarity of play given the news of that day. Our collective news judgment is so much the same that standardization tends to stamp our products."

grand jury, and to let them see what will happen to them if they tell the truth."

WPA CONSTRUCTION CHIEF IS DISMISSED

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—Mark L. Monget, WPA construction superintendent at Louisiana State university, was discharged today by James H. Crutcher, state works projects administrator, following charges Monget "had knowledge of misuse of materials and WPA labor on L. S. U. projects."

Crutcher suspended Louis A. Hall, WPA area timekeeper in Baton Rouge in the same case.

"I have just received information from Paul Hansen, agent in charge of the WPA division of investigation for this region that Monget had knowledge of misuse of materials and WPA labor on L. S. U. projects," Crutcher said in an explanatory statement.

"Hall apparently has been lax in his duties as supervising timekeeper. Following out policy in such matters, I have therefore taken this administrative action."

George Caldwell, former university construction superintendent, his assistant, Eugene Barksdale, and James Marshall, WPA foreman at the school, already have been arrested on charges growing out of the multiple investigation of WPA and other activities there.

Crutcher's office tonight said that Monget had been employed at the university for about three years. Crutcher himself declined to comment. Assistants said that he acted on Hansen's report without detailed knowledge of the case, which facts remain in Hansen's hands.

The WPA recently reported that $3,682,025.54 had been expended since 1935 on WPA-L. S. U. building projects, of which the federal government provided $1,399,942.92 in labor and materials for twenty building projects, 17 of which have been completed.

WPA officials here tonight said they were unable to say whether the offense charged against Monget was linked with similar charges against Caldwell, Barksdale and Marshall, or whether it was possible criminal action would be taken against the discharged superintendent.

"That is up to Hansen and the investigators," one official said.

Headlights grow dimmer as cars grow older because of increasing resistance caused by corrosion at all the connections between battery and bulbs.

CANDIDATES FREE OF POLITICS URGED

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—T. S. Neal of Shreveport, past president of the Louisiana Real Estate association, suggested today that candidates "free from political taint" be drafted to run for all major offices in the 1940 state election.

Neal recommended that representatives of churches, civic and other non-political bodies call for a state convention at which "the right type of men" would be drafted for public office.

He was here en route from Shreveport to the Mississippi gulf coast for a vacation.

A pilot now must have at least 1,000 hours before he is even considered for training as a first officer.

JOGGING ALONG LIFE'S ROAD—

Sooner or later, a man, if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take.

He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul—that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses more than that.

He learns that all men have to eat burned toast for breakfast now and then, and that he shouldn't take the other fellow's grouch too seriously.

He learns that carrying a chip on his shoulder is the easiest way to get into a fight.

He learns that the quickest way to become unpopular is to carry tales and gossip about others.

He learns that it doesn't matter much who gets the credit so long as the business shows a profit.

He learns that buck passing always turns out to be a boomerang, and that it never pays.

He learns that even the janitor is human and that it doesn't do any harm to smile and say "Good Morning" even if it is raining.

He learns that most of the other fellows are as ambitious as he is, that they have brains that are as good as or better than his, and that hard work and not smartness is the secret of success.

He learns to sympathize with the youngster coming into business, because he remembers how bewildered he was when he first started out.

He learns not to worry when he loses an order, because experience has shown that if he always gives his best his average will break pretty well.

Monroe Socialites Taking Life Easy

Hot Days Put Damper On Activities; Mr. And Mrs. Parkes And Miss Farmer Return

By Eve Bradford

THE SEASON is as badly exploded, socially, as a Fourth of July firecracker. Everyone, it seems, has either left the far off climes or gone into a social coma. The most devout summer-in-towner is calling it quits and leaving the city in search of a breeze.

Sabbath-like calm prevails all along the social front with an occasional ker-splash as swimmers make a dramatic dive into the luscious depths of the private swimming pools. There is always some one disporting himself in aquatic accomplishments but the great majority of stay-at-homers would rather occupy a "flowery bed of ease" until summer sings its swan song.

There has been a mere handful of weddings, infinitesimal after June. There is a rumor, however, of the engagement of one of Monroe's handsomest and most eligible bachelors. The lady of his choice does not live in Monroe so friends will not be privileged to dine and wine the prospective bride.

Just in case you don't know that Monroe people are the world's greatest travelers glance over the following departures and returned vacationists: Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Faulk, Mrs. L. W. Mobley, Mrs. F. C. Shotwell and Mrs. Frank Lynn, touring the west and motoring along the famous Columbia river drive en route to California—Mrs. John Fox and children summering on the Atlantic coast at Montouk, Long Island—Mrs. Evelyn Reims, Mrs. Hattie Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Grover Holloway on board the steamer Dixie en route to New York—the Stanley Blowers vacationing in Miami Beach—Minnie Cole touring Europe—Mrs. Alden Shotwell and daughter, Betty, summering at Hendersonville, N. C.—Mrs. Robert Layton and children enjoying life at Camp Edgewater on the gulf—Mrs. Henry Biedenharn and son, Henry, Jr., touring Mexico City and vicinity—Mrs. James Steel and son, Jack, and Mrs. Groves Brown motoring westward to Los Angeles and San Francisco—Mrs. Wesley Saunders off for an indefinite visit in California—Mrs. Walter Meyer and daughter, Miss Violet Meyer, on a three months' cruise on board the Duchess of Richmond—Mrs. Ida Kaplan and daughter, Miss Patricia Kaplan, summering in San Francisco—Mrs. Dora Anish and Miss Maible Hood off for the world's fair in San Francisco—Mrs. Eugene Flournoy summering on Lake Michigan, where her son and daughters are in camp—Joseph Biedenharn off for New York to meet his daughter, Miss Emma Louise Biedenharn, landing July 17 from London, England—The John Sherrouses off for Colorado to join son John, who is studying at the University of Colorado—B. D. Hodges attending the world's fair in San Francisco—Mrs. Clifford Johnson and son, Owen, motoring to the world's fair in New York—the Douglas Parkes and Miss Marjorie Farmer home from Mexico City—the Edward Seymours vacationing in Bermuda—Mrs. Harold Mouk and Mrs. C. C. Boardman off yesterday for Kerrville, Tex., with Gay Noe, Jane Rhymes and Joan Boardman, who will spend the remainder of the summer at Camp Waldemar—the Arthur Dryburghs and daughter, Patsy, off for Manitou, Colo., the first of the week—Mrs. Bridger Thornhill summering in Hendersonville, N. C.—the Malcolm Biedenharns and two daughters off for points east the first of the month. They will visit Washington, D. C., and of course, visit the world's fair in New York—Mrs. Janet Powell, who spent two months in Los Angeles, went straight on to Detroit for the summer. She will not return home until November—Other vacationists are leaving daily for the coast, for the Ozark mountains and fishing trips on the gulf.

The W. A. Walkers have found out that man cannot live by bread alone—he must have water. They built a rustic cottage in the hills west of the river and then drilled for water but water wasn't forthcoming. Again they drilled but still no water. After the third attempt they were in despair, so now they are having water piped from a spring not too far distant from their farm. Minna Lee manages to keep cool when accompanying W. A. back and forth to the farm by wearing barefoot sandals, abbreviated skirts and hair caught up with a bright colored ribbon. They sit in the cool of the evening on their wide screened gallery listening to the symphony of the frogs and feeling sorry for those who have never experienced the joy of rusticating.

Three more converts have returned from Mexico City. Douglas and Sarabeth Parkes and Marjorie Farmer, like all other visitors from Monroe, are using all the superlatives—exotic, romantic, colorful, enchanting, alluring, seductive—in their description of Mexico City. They smacked their lips over the fruits flooding the market—avocados, mangoes, papayas, bananas, melons, coconuts—they bargained for novelties in the Thieves' Market, they knelt in old cathedrals and visited out of the way spots that had special allure for them. They spoke in particular about the people—decidedly heterogenous, ranging from the sophisticate to a weird assortment of swarthy Indian, high-type Mexican, Greek, Italian and here and there a sun-tanned American.

Byrnie Handy and "Dodo" Kellogg decided to do something about this deadly calm that has settled down over their little world and invited all the young fry to dance Friday night in the Handy home. It was an excellent idea and one that met with approval, judging from the sounds of revelry.

Hattie Taylor off for New York on board the steamer Dixie last week found herself bewildered by all the bon voyage gifts. Corsages, one for each day of the voyage, were placed in refrigeration until needed and flowers sufficient to adorn her table in the dining room during the entire trip arrived just before sailing. Other gifts of candy, books and magazines sufficient to turn the head of even a debutante, made her voyage a pleasant one indeed.

It was a gay, enthusiastic little group off last week for the fisherman's paradise, Grand Isle in the Gulf of Mexico. They were laden down with fishing paraphernalia, sun-burn lotion, mosquito chasers and plenty of vim and vigor. Foster and Helene Wallace, Lattimer and Joy Lewis, Charles and Florence Garretson and C. B. and Zanona Flinn comprised the party leaving for a week of deep sea fishing and a faithful promise to bring back some big ones.

Phi Kappa Gives Annual House Party

Summer's lethargy was broken by those gallant hosts, members of Phi Kappa fraternity, who entertained with their annual house party and barbecue at their camp on the river.

The guests were delightfully entertained during the day at the fraternity house, where frosted drinks were served. After sundown they motored to the camp, where supper was served on the long screened porch overlooking the river. A huge camp fire was built on the beach later in the evening and everyone spent a pleasant hour under the moon indulging in happy reminiscences.

Dancing for those who so desired was introduced and continued until morning. At sunrise everyone donned bathing suits and enjoyed an hour's swim in the river. A sumptuous breakfast awaited them on the cool porch. The morning hours were spent with bridge and conversation and at noon a barbecued chicken luncheon was served with cantaloupe a la mode served later in the afternoon.

Fraternity men and their "dates" present were Miss Josephine McCook and Dick Eason, Miss Peggy McCrary and B. B. McClendon, Miss Dorothy Sherrouse and Durwood Griffin, Miss Sara Hinkle and Albert Thomas, Miss Nell DeLee and J. H. McClendon, Mr. and Mrs. James Standley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas King, Miss Rosemary Cottingham and Felix Terzia, Miss Jane Landry and Albert Buckley, Miss Eileen Hunnicutt and Billy Haynes, Miss Carolyne Oliver and Louis Breard, Messrs. A. B. Gregory, Henry Colbert, Charles Barr, Ruffin Tidwell, Gremillion, Albert Newcom. Chaperons were Mrs. Leila King, Mrs. W. A. Haynes, Mrs. Frederick Austin and Mrs. Alexander Van Eldon of Chicago.

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, president of the Fifth district Louisiana Federated Club women, presented a young guest speaker, Miriam Oliver, of this city, when she conducted a meeting in Oak Grove Friday afternoon. The youthful speaker talked on the subject of "Dolls," in which she is well versed, as she is making a collection and has made a study of dolls of all nations.

Mrs. Evelyn Reims boarded the S. S. Dixie at New Orleans last week for a cruise to New York City, where she will enjoy a visit to the world's fair with friends and relatives.

Engelwood plantation, home of Mrs. Drew Anderson, was the scene of a surprise miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Robert J. Edwards, Jr., a bride of recent date.

Following the serving of delicious ice cold watermelons on the spacious lawn, Mrs. Edwards was presented with beautifully wrapped gifts.

Miss Sara Love Tabb has returned from a visit in Kosciusko, Miss., accompanied by a friend, Miss Joyce Jackson.

Many Race Models Obtained By Young Monroe Girl As She Pursues Hobby

By Eve Bradford

Dolls are generally looked upon as objects suitable for taking up the time of little girls until they are old enough to take an interest in really serious subjects such as boys. This superficial point of view has been altered since girls have started to make doll collecting a really absorbing hobby.

Miriam Oliver, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Oliver, has been collecting dolls for several years and today has a comprehensive collection that will be an everlasting joy. When her beautiful yellow hair is streaked with gray and interest in life outside her home begins to wane, she can turn to her dolls and live again in memory the happy days of her youth.

With a Japanese doll given to her by an aunt, as a nucleus, the collection has grown to astonishing proportions and includes dolls from Switzerland, Island of Sicily, Mexico, Trinidad, China, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Japan, Cuba, South America, Island of Madeira, Brazil, Island of St. Thomas. There are also numerous character dolls including the Dionne quintuplets, Shirley Temple, Indian dolls, ballet dancers, and a Rhuma dancer from Cuba.

Miriam's parents have discovered in the past year that there is more to this hobby of doll collecting than they ever dreamed. It keeps them mentally alert answering the questions asked by the eager daughter who is forever reaching out for knowledge. They wander down the by-paths together and have the pleasure of seeing their 10-year-old daughter acquiring a love for geography, for literature, history and folk-lore and an acquaintance with wonderful old things. As a result she shows you her doll collection with a full quota of intelligent comment.

There is an interesting doll made of dry corn husks and another made of rags in early colonial days. Still another is made of redwood fiber from the redwood forests of the west. Naturally the collection of this little southern girl would be incomplete without a mammy doll with bright colored kerchief, white apron and wide, full, cotton skirt.

Miriam has found out in studying dolls of all nations that people didn't always walk into a shop and buy a doll. They were made out of materials at hand and, as a rule, after the image of the people around them.

One of the stories that intrigued Miriam more than all others is the story of the Chinese doctor doll of hand-carved ivory. Centuries ago, the Chinese physician was forbidden by custom to examine his female patients. So great was the modesty among the oriental ladies they would rather have died of their illness than submit to an examination. But something had to be done, for even the doctor's crude simple methods were better than no treatment at all. Thus the doctor doll came into existence, saving the modesty of the patient and the head of the handicapped physician. Thereafter the patient or her maid, if she was a lady of great wealth or high rank, would point with a pin on a little nude figurine to just where the pain was. If the lady came herself she would talk to the physician behind curtains, thrusting her hand through them to indicate on the doll where she was ailing. It was then up to the doctor to diagnose the case and cure the patient. If he didn't succeed he was in danger of losing his fee. The Chinese doctor dolls have been handed down from generation to generation with other family treasures.

The doll that came from the island of Sicily is especially treasured as it was a gift from Mrs. Flora Potts and Mrs. Charles Wallace, who visited the island during their travels in foreign countries. The doll is an exact reproduction of the Hindu and French women who wear colorful turbans wound around their heads and wide full skirts of gaudy colors. Mrs. Potts, by the way, purchased a turban and was taught to wind it around her head by one of the natives.

The prettiest doll in Miriam's collection is the peasant doll from Czechoslovakia. In her national dress she makes a colorful figure. The national colors are red and white and are elaborately embroidered into the material. Even the ribbons are heavy with embroidery. Though only a manufactured doll, she is typical of the Czechoslovakian women who love to show their love of country by still wearing the old costumes.

When Mrs. Frederick Millsaps was a passenger on board the Rotterdam bound for Cuba last spring she purchased a Dutch doll for Miriam's collection. It was made in Holland and is typical of the Dutch women, with wooden shoes, black velvet basque and blue skirt with white apron.

Miriam delights in the fact that all her dolls are authentic. They were all purchased in their native lands and brought home as a gift. Traveling about the world is the dream of most everyone. Few can realize this dream unfortunately, but there is a wealth of consolation in viewing the things that travelers have brought back. Dolls, especially, fill that void, for they, more than anything help one to visualize what the traveler sees.

Miriam has discovered since she started collecting dolls that foreign dolls, like foreign language, helps to cement friendships and give a clearer insight into the workings of the alien mind. She enjoys regular correspondence with a little Japanese girl who sent her a beautiful doll in exchange for one made in America.

Miss Barrett Weds Robert Edwards, Jr.

A wedding in which the sincere interest of relatives and friends in this section of the state is centered was that of Miss Gladys Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Barrett of this city, and Mr. Robert "Jack" Edwards, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Edwards, Saturday evening, July 8, at 5 p.m. at the Methodist parsonage, with Rev. W. C. Scott performing the beautiful double ring ceremony in the presence of members of the family.

The bride wore a lovely navy marquisette model with navy accessories. A corsage of yellow valley lilies completed the ensemble. Mrs. George Cox, the bride's attendant, wore a white model with black accessories, and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Mr. John Brown of this city, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride and groom are both popular in the Twin Cities, where they both finished school at the Ouachita Parish High school.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards left for a brief honeymoon to an unannounced destination, and are now at home to their friends at Englewood plantation.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rinehart and Mrs. Audie Moffett and daughter, Miss Sara Elizabeth Moffett, have returned from a motor trip in the east and a visit to the World's fair in New York.

Miss Morin To Wed Francis V. Barnett

Marriage Of Popular Couple Will Take Place At Methodist Church On August 31

Interest is centered today in the announcement made by Mr. Earl P. Morin of the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Miss Alice Joy Morin, to Mr. Francis Victor Barnett.

The wedding will take place on August 31 at the First Methodist church, this city.

Miss Morin, a young woman of charming personality, is a graduate of the Tennessee State Teachers' college in Memphis, and has made her home in this city for the past several years with her sister, Mrs. H. C. Aehle, and Mr. Aehle.

Mr. Barnett is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. He is associated with the United Gas company in the capacity of district chief engineer with offices in this city.

Readers Clique Holds Meeting

Mrs. Clay Olbon entertained members of the Readers Clique in her home Friday afternoon. Mrs. X. Holt, president, presided. Mrs. Fred Hemler, Mrs. Cecil Blanchard, Mrs. John Whitfield, Mrs. X. Holt and Mrs. Clay Olbon were appointed on the program committee for the coming year.

After the business session, an interesting study on "Recreation Rooms" was given by Mrs. G. L. Morgan. "Recreation Rooms," Mrs. Morgan said, "in the south either are built or we turn our garage or our lawn into places for summer pleasures since we usually have no basements. In building a recreation room have a cement floor painted a bright deep blue and covered with a smart plaid sisal rug in blue, white and red. Curtains should be of blue cotton with an amusing Tyrolean design in gay reds, greens and white. Furniture should be sturdy in construction and genuinely comfortable. Currier and Ives prints make good pictures for the walls.

"Badminton is an excellent game for the suburban yard or lawn. Outdoor schuffleboard, a lazy game for hot days, can be played on the sidewalk, driveway, or any other smooth hard surface over which the disks can be pushed. Toss ball is gentle fun for young and old. It's another good family game, ideal for hot days when little activity is desirable. Lawn bowls, or 'bowling on the green,' was a favorite sport in Revolutionary days; and it deserves to enjoy popularity now. It's a fine game for summer afternoons and evenings, and requires little preparation if a long lawn area is available. Archery, a wholesome exercise, can be enjoyed by all ages, for it's not too strenuous and yet it's significant in improving posture and bearing. Archery is adaptable to almost any available space. Volley ball is a splendid game for two or more people. Croquet an old game, down and then up in popularity, always has been good fun for the family. So let's stay in our own back yards this year. Let's make real use of them. The games mentioned take little equipment and some of them are adaptable to even the smallest back yard.

"Also in keeping with summertime I would like to give these suggestions called 'Cool Little Touches.' When friends drop in on a blistering hot day it's flattering to watch them sink down into one of your chairs with sighs of relief and gatefully exclaim, 'How heavenly cool you keep it!' Of course you know very well it's not a bit cooler in your house than in theirs. It's simply that you've gained a cool refreshing air by little touches here and there. Blossoming plants in white pots near the fireplace, slip covers in simple stripes or clear summer hues do delightful jobs of camouflaging warm weather. Slip your good lamp shades into hat boxes and deck your lamps in ruffled summery shades, also you can buy them in cool white-flowered chintz to please your color harmony. For an airy change in your bedroom concoct a plain cotton net bedspread deeply flounced on either side. Use it over an old-time patchwork quilt, charming thru net. Then make more net into lacy summer curtains."

Tallulah Garden Club Holds Meeting

The Tallulah Garden club buffet luncheon, an annual event of the summer and one of the most enjoyable meetings of the year, was held at the Tallulah Community club with Mrs. John Potts of Monroe and Mrs. Elizabeth Amacker of Lake Providence as out-of-town speakers. A variety of summer flowers from the homes of the members brightened the long tables, laden with food served buffet style.

Mrs. W. R. Gilfoil, the president-elect, presided, and Mrs. W. M. Murphy served as toastmistress. Mrs. W. L. Rountree, accompanied by Mrs. M. A. Phillips, sang "Last Rose of Summer," and Mrs. Amacker gave two readings from Robert Burns in the Scotch dialect. Mrs. Potts, who recently returned from a trip to the exposition in San Francisco and to Hawaii, gave a graphic account of her experience and gave a most interesting description of the gardens and flowers of the "Paradise of the Pacific." A note of merriment introduced in the quiz, conducted as a burlesque district school by Mrs. Horace Maxwell and Mrs. Murphy was an additional feature.

Members of the club and guests in attendance were Mrs. H. N. Alexander, Mrs. D. H. Allen, Miss Annette Beers, Mrs. R. K. Boney, Mrs. W. D. Buford, Mrs. W. L. Rountree, Mrs. Charles Coltharp, Mrs. Clarence Crow, Mrs. J. H. Devine, Mrs. George Eggleston, Mrs. W. R. Gilfoil, Mrs. C. E. ⁂

The many friends of Mrs. Frederick Williamson, who is a patient at Our Lady of the Lake hospital, Baton Rouge, will regret to learn that her condition is extremely critical. Mrs Williamson underwent an emergency operation at the hospital a week ago Wednesday for intestinal constriction. Complications that developed have retarded her recovery, it was stated by attending physicians, according to word received here. Her brother, Dr. Paul Herron of Oak Ridge, is at her bedside, as is Mr. Williamson.

Mrs. M. A. McHenry and Mrs. Neil McHenry motored to Bella Vista, in the Ozark mountains, where they will occupy the Central Savings Bank cottage for two weeks. They will be joined over the week-end by Mr. Neil McHenry and two daughters, Misses Martha Wilton and Marguerite McHenry.

Mrs. R. L. Ross and son, Bobbie, are enjoying a visit in the Ozark mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Guthrie have returned from their wedding trip and will be at home for the time being with Mr. Guthrie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, at their plantation home, Grecian Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Reardon are enjoying a visit in New York City, and are guests at the Hotel Commodore.

Miss Nelson To Wed Edward N. Johnson

Local Girl Will Become Bride In Home Of Grandmother In Arkansas Late This Month

Claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Nelson of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Lela Mae Nelson, to Mr. Edward N. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Johnson of West Monroe.

The wedding will take place the latter part of July at Grandview heights, the home of Miss Nelson's grandmother in Mena, Ark. Miss Nelson was prompted by sentiment to select her grandmother's home for her wedding as her parents were married there 25 years ago.

Miss Nelson, member of the younger set in this city, is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school and Whitworth college, Brookhaven, Miss., where she specialized in music and graduated cum laude.

For the past two years Miss Nelson has been teaching music in this city. She is a member of the National Guild of piano teachers and of Delta Kappa sorority.

Mr. Johnson is a graduate of the Louisiana Tech High school and attended Northeast Junior college and Louisiana Tech. He is employed by the government in the office of the Farm Security administration in Little Rock.

Several charming pre-nuptial affairs complimenting Miss Nelson were given last week. Miss Elizabeth Benton entertained with a miscellaneous shower on Monday. Miss Sara Guy entertained informally on Tuesday and Mrs. Edgar entertained on Saturday with a conversational hour.

Miss Michie Marries Yotis Lynn Pinkston

Wedding Solemnized At Home Of Bride's Parents In Mer Rouge On Ninth Of July

Claiming prominence among July nuptial events and joining two prominent southern families was the wedding of Miss Catherine Michie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Michie of Mer Rouge, and Mr. Yotis Lynn Pinkston, at the home of the bride's parents at 10 o'clock in the morning, July 9, with Rev. Leslie K. Young of the Episcopal church officiating, in the presence of friends and relatives.

An improvised altar with overhanging arch of southern smilax and Shasta daisies formed a distinctive setting. Cathedral tapers added to the beauty of the altar. At vantage points tall floor baskets filled with late summer flowers, orchid phlox and summer hydrangeas against a verdant background.

While the guests were being seated a pre-nuptial concert was beautifully rendered by an aunt of the bride, Miss Bessie Hall, of Bastrop. "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Sweethearts" were rendered. Mrs. C. W. Montgomery, a cousin of the bride, sang in splendid voice "I Love You Truly."

Miss Frances Michie, the bride's sister, served as maid of honor. She wore a sheer navy blue model with accessories of chartreuse.

Mr. Erin Pinkston of Mer Rouge served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful navy blue lace model with accessories of blue. She carried an ivory prayer book with a cascade of orange blossoms and valley lilies.

The bride's mother wore a handsome gown of navy sheer.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Pinkston motored to the gulf coast. Later they will be at home to friends in Mer Rouge.

THE RUNAWAY

BY

KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 25

"Oh, this is such fun, planning!" Becky laughed. "A year ago I was working in Rheingolder's, and now—opera, and Florida and a drawing room to California! Doctor Dinsmore brought the tickets home last night—"

"And what does he think of this idea?" said Duane Fox.

"My going west?"

"Well, and marrying Larry?"

"Oh, I only hinted. I said 'if' and 'if' and 'if.' I said I wanted to be free. But I didn't say anything definite about Larry simply because I'm not free. Not yet. You see, Dr. Dinsmore doesn't know Larry. He's met him—you remember, Larry? That night when you and I were talking by the fire and the others were playing games. But then he only thought of him as a man Barbara liked."

Duane Fox chuckled. "He'll have to come to know you better, Larry," he said.

"You said it," Larry agreed on a quiet little laugh of his own.

Becky felt her skin prick for a second on an inexplicable feeling of discomfort. She could not see Larry's face, for she was seated on the arm of his wide chair, but she could look at the other man. Something about him frightened her for just a fraction of time; she remembered it afterward and wondered about it.

Duane Fox was about Dr. Stephen's age, but he seemed older, she thought, because of a certain careless disorder in dress. Where Stephen was erect, business-like, frowning in concentration upon some problem, Duane was lax and indifferent or contemptuous, interested supremely and primarily in himself, and secondarily in art as he saw it.

As a portrait painter he had had a certain vogue many years earlier, had made large sums of money rapidly and easily. He had studied in Paris. For years he had collected bronze and copper trifles, filled his walls with not quite good pictures bought for almost nothing at sales in Brittany and Flanders. In conversation he was racy, amusing, often vulgar and sometimes shocking, but his was a personality that carried off with good grace what might have been offensive in another type of man.

Of women he had nothing good to say, although his frank and rambling recollections testified to the fact that there had been many in his life. A beautiful English model, an Austrian woman doctor, a Russian dancer, countless affectionate little Parisiennes.

Becky couldn't help liking even if she didn't admire him. From the moment of Larry's introduction, when Duane, who was suffering from a serious eye trouble, had peered at her with his heavily glassed eyes, she knew he had put her in a class quite apart from the rest of her sex.

He showed her and Larry in a hundred practical and generous ways that he was delighted with the prospect of the introduction of a new niece, and even of a small noisy boy, into the family. With the rehabilitation of the lodge in mind, he had seen painters and plasterers immediately after Larry's confidences regarding Becky, and on the evening before this very day, he had had a long talk with Larry as to the actual details of the affair.

"We'll go way down past Good Ground and the Moriches," Duane had said; "we'll find some old place that'll seem more like a home to her. I can turn in a few bonds and launch you, and if I were you I'd persuade her to make it Paris for six months or a year, and leave the child in the west. Better for him, and better for her trying to make a go of it with a kid and an old codger like me in the picture. Then, say in the fall, or maybe next spring, come back and we'll house-hunt. Meanwhile I'll hibernate here, listening to the radio and getting too fat, and having my little chuckle to myself in the dark!"

Becky thought of Stephen now when some faint intonation in Duane Fox's laugh made her wince deep within her soul. Stephen, the finest product that American soil after three hundred years could boast, cultured, traveled, brilliant, loving everything that was good in letters, music, life; Stephen whose line had given eminent men to statesmanship, to science, to social science of every description, would never like Duane. She knew that Duane was the synical, lazy, clever, irresponsible type.

"Stephen's as dear as a father," she said to herself. "Dearer. I'll never fail him."

"Now what are you thinking about?" Larry demanded. Becky came out of a dream with a start.

"Thinking that I must go!" Becky said. She went to lay her hand on the older man's full big hand as it rested on the arm of his winged chair. "Don't get up," she said. "And good-bye. You've been awfully good, for a woman-hater, to Larry and me! I'll not see you again until I've gotten things straightened out at home. But I'll come back!"

"And we'll put a secret marriage over on them, Becky," Laurence said as he and she emerged into the last cool light of the February afternoon. They had decided to walk the three miles to Dinsmores'.

"But, Larry, you wouldn't want me to get a divorce one minute and be married the next?"

"Why not?"

"Well, it's just too—too sudden. Too rash, too unadvised, too sudden. I've been too precipitate all my life. Give me time to—to get my breath, to try to realize all that's happened!"

"You certainly don't think you're going to get much time to breathe, running round Europe with the Lees?"

"Europe!" she said in a dream.

"Becky, play fair with me," he pleaded. "I'm in love with you. I'm counting the days until we can be married. Don't let this old boy Dinsmore throw a monkey wrench into the works."

"I think it's perhaps a fortunate thing that someone slows us up a little, Larry!" They had reached the Dinsmore doorway now. Becky, breathless and rosy and exhilarated by the rapid walking, stood on the step above Larry and framed his handsome dissatisfied face in her two gloved hands. "Barbara doesn't know anything about this," she said. "Dr. Dinsmore agreed with me that it would be much simpler to let any explanation, at least as far as I'm concerned, wait until I come back. You'll be seeing less and less of her, and she'll be seeing more and more of other men—"

"You mean you haven't told her!" He was outraged.

"I mean I haven't had a chance. She's hardly ever home, you know. You see her almost as much as I do."

"I don't see her at all," he said darkly. "I think you might have told her. It leaves me in a deuce of a situation to have you go away and leave me here holding the bag!"

"Larry," Becky laughed, her fresh cold cheek against his, "whenever I see Barbara she wants to talk of you, ask me if I've seen you. It'd be utterly impossible suddenly to burst out with 'Oh, I like him too. As a matter of fact, when I get my divorce, he and I are going to be married!'"

Larry was not proof against the fresh cold kiss with which she finished speaking. He caught her to him, and for a moment they clung together, breathless and laughing.

"God, don't I see you again?"

"I've been thinking how we might manage it. If you could be at home in the studio tomorrow at about four I'd stop in. For just about two minutes though!"

"I'd be anywhere!" She loved him in this fiercely devoted mood. Her power over the tall casual man she had met so short a time before was a continual marvel to her.

The next day, driving into town with Becky, Dr. Dinsmore said, "You're pretty sure you love Moulton, Becky?"

She laughed, with the little sound in the laugh that only women who laugh and know themselves loved ever reach. "Pretty sure!"

"He makes a fair income?"

"His uncle is going to help us at first. We'll all be together in a perfect bohemian mix-up!" Becky explained, shyly eager. "The idea is that Larry and I spend a little time in Paris, just as a sort of honeymoon, and then come back and find some place farther down the island where we can settle. Mr. Fox—Duane Fox isn't painting now, because—What is it?" The last words were interjected on a note of fright.

"What—what did you say?" Stephen asked quickly. "What name did you say?"

"His uncle, Duane Fox," she repeated, bewildered and frightened. "Why? Do you know him?"

He had recovered himself. "Yes, I knew someone of that name once," he said somewhat breathlessly. "It was many years ago, but it must be the same. I'm sorry to have frightened you, my dear. He—this man, Duane Fox, is your Laurence's uncle?"

"The uncle who's done everything for him. He adores him. Larry didn't have much of a chance, you see; his people were dead, and he'd hardly known this stepbrother of his mother when Duane sent for him and—well, his whole life changed."

She talked on and Stephen listened, or seemed to listen, and it was with an abstracted manner that he left her when they reached the hospital, merely reminding her that she was to call for him there at half-past twelve.

Becky went off on her shopping round alone; her list included little gifts for her father and mother, for the four brothers, for Sophy and Anya. It was fun.

When he came down from the hospital to the car she looked at him sharply. He looked very tired, but he smiled at her affectionately. He was not keeping his late office hours today; he was to have four operations tomorrow morning and wanted to go home for a rest.

"And you're not coming into town with Gibbs and me tonight," Becky stated firmly.

"Oh yes; I must. They're bringing this Spuyten Duyvil case into town, and I've got to see her again. I operate at seven tomorrow."

"Then you'll stay in town tonight?"

"Oh yes. And you, unfortunately, won't!" Stephen said with a whimsical half-smile. "You'll be rushing past Albany and Buffalo . . . Becky?"

The last word was said with a change of tone. Becky knew he was going to say something . . . something. . . . Her heart closed on a little spasm of fear.

"Becky," he repeated, "are you to see Laurence Moulton again?"

"Oh—" Her expression turned to one of consternation. "Oh, I was to have seen him!" she exclaimed. "I forgot. I thought I would be going out alone earlier, and I said I'd stop at the studio for a minute, just to say good-bye! He'll have been waiting—it's almost four now!"

"How hard would it be for you to—" Stephen interrupted himself and fell silent. After a while he began again.

"Becky, if I asked you, could you do something for me?"

Color rushed to her face; she faced him squarely. "Do you think there's anything I couldn't do?" she asked.

Stephen laughed, flushing a little in his turn with touched pleasure. "I believe you would. It isn't that that stopped me," he said hesitatingly. "It's whether I have a right to ask it."

"You!" The simple monosyllable, half-whispered, was sufficient answer. But still he was doubtful.

"It would be for you as well as for me," he presently began again, finding word with difficulty. "It would be this: Would you—would you break with Laurence Moulton?"

GRIFFIN STUDIO, IN NEW LOCATION, TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE TOMORROW

FIRM CELEBRATES 25TH ANNIVERSARY IN BUSINESS HERE

Friends And Patrons To Be Permitted To Inspect Modern Plant

Griffin studio, now located in its new home on DeSiard street, directly opposite the Paramount theater, will hold open house for its friends and patrons tomorrow between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 and 10 p.m.

By registering visitors will make themselves eligible for five presents to be given away by the studio.

The occasion for the celebration is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the studio and the management took the opportunity to permit the public to inspect the modern studio, rated as one of the finest in the south.

The studio, which was established by the late J. E. Griffin, and is now owned by Mrs. J. E. Griffin, engages in all phases of photography. Besides making portraits and doing commercial work, it engages in photo finishing and carries a complete line of amateur supplies.

The studio is agent for Eastman, Agfa, Zeiss and Leica cameras and, moreover, handles movie cameras, projectors and accessories. Its personnel thoroughly understands the use of cameras; and when one is sold, the purchaser has the advantage of receiving expert instructions on its proper use. This, of course, assures the buyer of better pictures.

Too, Griffin studio carries a full stock of picture moulding and displays a wide selection of both antique and modern type frames.

Since its establishment a quarter of a century ago, Griffin studio has constantly kept pace with the times. No expense has been spared in equipping the new location with the latest facilities that contribute toward fine photography. This modernization, however, has not resulted in any advance in prices by the establishment for its regular work.

Griffin studio has long been recognized for the unsurpassed quality of its commercial photography. The progress of northeast Louisiana for the past 25 years has been recorded by the commercial photography department of the studio.

The management of the studio feels that its years of fair dealing with the public has won for it the respect and esteem of the public. Its negative files date back for years. Pictures made a decade or more ago can therefore be reproduced without delay.

During the years since its establishment, the studio has won for itself a distinct place in the business life of Monroe and northeast Louisiana.

TECH LECTURES WILL BE GIVEN

Three Specialists Are Scheduled To Deliver Addresses This Week

RUSTON, La., July 15.—(Special)—Three specialists in different phases of conservation are scheduled to speak at Louisiana Tech next week in connection with the college's special lecture program of the summer session.

Henry Bull, representative of the forestry experiment station at New Orleans, will discuss "Popular Findings of the Forest Service," at 1:30 p.m. Monday. He will substitute for E. L. Demmon, director of the New Orleans forestry station, who is unable to fill the engagement, it was announced.

Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock an address on "Game Preserves of Louisiana" will be given by E. A. McIlhenny of Avery Island, a noted Louisiana naturalist.

Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the United States soil conservation service, Washington, D. C., will speak at Tech Friday at 7:30 p.m. on "What the Soil Conservation Service Means to the Farmer."

Dr. Bennett's appearance at Tech is expected to draw one of the largest crowds of the lecture program in which 25 state and national leaders are participating. The Minden office of the SCS is cooperating with Tech in inviting persons to hear Dr. Bennett's lecture, according to H. B. Martin, area conservationist at Minden.

NEVILLE HIGH GETS U. S. AID

Allotment Granted For Funds To Complete Stadium On Campus

Information received here from the office of Representative Newt V. Mills stated Saturday that approval had been made of an allotment of $10,160 for the completion of the stadium on the campus of Neville High school.

Mayor H. H. Benoit expressed pleasure when informed of the allotment, stating that this sum together with an earlier federal appropriation and some money by the city, will doubtless now make it possible to complete the construction.

The work is at this time 80 per cent completed, the mayor said, and will provide the Neville High school with one of the best stadiums that any high school in the south possesses.

The lastest appropriation is to be used for work including filling, leveling, grading, sodding, building a running track and performing incidental and appurtenant work.

Vidalia in Concordia parish also received approval of an allotment of $5,569 to improve the water supply, mains and system while a third allotment of $10,498 is for Waterproof, Tensas parish, for the construction of drainage facilities and sidewalks along streets of the town.

PUBLIC FORUM

OUR FLAG

To the Editor:

On the front page of your July 12 issue you published an Associated Press dispatch under "Traffic Violator Donates for Flag," this being a Russian-born grocery operator who, when tried for a violation of traffic laws in Pittsburgh, remarked: "One satisfaction for a citizen and a war veteran is to be tried in a courtroom where there is an American flag. I notice you don't have one here. I would like to donate $5 toward the purchase of a flag. I'm sorry I can't make it $20. The trouble is the American people are not flag-conscious. That's the reason we have so many Communists." My! What an indictment.

I am positive that more of the present and coming generation would be flag-conscious if only that emblem was displayed at all public gatherings, and it should be. When we attend graduation exercises at our high schools and colleges and fail to see the Stars and Stripes or hear even one verse of our national anthem, we wonder just why? We need not be surprised at the spread of communism and other 'isms when we fail to demonstrate our patriotism. Mere addresses just won't get the job done.

Respectfully,
A. E. FISHER, M. D.

MODERNISTIC PHOTOGRAPHER

After two years with Paul Linwood Gittings, one of the outstanding photographers of the nation, Durwood Griffin has returned to Griffin studio and is featuring "portraits in the modern manner."

Griffin Studio Features Modern Manner Portraits

New Department Added, With Durwood Griffin In Charge Of Work

Ever aware of new developments in the field of photography, Griffin studio, located on DeSiard street, directly opposite the Paramount theater, has taken another step forward in the constant progress that has marked its growth. It has added another department, one featuring "portraits in the modern manner."

This new phase of photography, in charge of Durwood Griffin, is an addition to its regular line of portraits.

Mr. Griffin is of the new school of photography, one of the group of young moderns who is determined to do things different and better, to improve on the past. This group feels that each subject is a different individual and should be photographed as such; that each subject must be studied carefully to determine how to make the finest possible portrait of that individual; that a truly fine portrait cannot be made in three or four minutes.

Not being satisfied with just "taking pictures" year after year, as are so many photographers, Mr. Griffin decided to prepare himself for a place among the foremost men in his chosen profession. For two summers he attended the Professional Photographers association school in Indiana. There he studied under the finest camera artists of the country and gained invaluable experience. It was at this school, during the second summer, that Mr. Griffin met Paul Linwood Gittings, A. R. P. S.

Mr. Gittings is recognized as one of the world's leading photographers. He was chief cameraman for Bachrach, Inc., for 11 years prior to his establishing a business of his own. Mr. Gittings is an authority on modern photography and conducted demonstrations at several conventions of the photographers' association. At the association's school he was attracted by the natural flair Mr. Griffin possessed for the modern type portraiture and offered him a position as cameraman in his studio.

For nearly two years, Mr. Griffin remained in the employ of Gittings, Inc., where he gained a wealth of experience. Only recently he returned to Griffin studio, where he now features the type of work he had done for Gittings.

Mr. Griffin features "high-key" portraits; that is, portraits made with a great volume of light. This enables him to make "fast exposures," thus obtaining better expressions. Especially is this true of children. Mr. Griffin doesn't limit himself to head poses, but makes half and three-quarter length poses on every subject. Elizabeth Arden stage and screen make-up is used on women. Make-up does not alter the appearance of a person, but it does add a great deal toward making a more flattering portrait.

While most photographers are not anxious to tackle family groups, Mr. Griffin has had wide experience in this phase of work. While with Gittings he made a number of sittings in homes, including many family groups.

Mr. Griffin, in returning to Monroe, has brought to the city the finest in photography.

JULY CAMPUS MEETS PLANNED

Bus Drivers To Assemble And Folk School To Be Held At State Normal

NATCHITOCHES, La., July 15.—(Special)—Plans for two meetings on the campus of the Louisiana State Normal college here this month were announced today by officials of the State Teachers' college.

The third annual northwest Louisiana district bus drivers' conference will be held here on July 27, and the third annual folk school for Natchitoches parish is scheduled for July 31 and August 1 and 2. Both meetings will be held in Caldwell hall with assemblies scheduled for the main auditorium.

Opening with a parade of buses through the main section of the city, the bus drivers convention program will include an address of welcome by President Albert A. Fredericks and lectures by Jess W. Hair, state supervisor of health and physical education; R. S. Bogan, chief of Baton Rouge fire department; J. S. Slocum, supervisor of Rapides parish schools; E. G. Ludkte, state supervisor of trade and industrial education; Colonel E. P. Roy, director of safety; and Dr. T. H. Harris, state superintendent of education.

In addition to the bus drivers from 14 parishes in the northwest section of the state, all public school janitors, parish superintendents, supervisors and principals have been invited to attend the one-day meeting. Luncheon will be served the visitors at noon the day of the conference by the college.

Headed by Mrs. Samuel Levy of Natchitoches, the local parish folk school will include a series of 30 addresses on farm problems. Visitors to the school from distant points in the parish will be accommodated in the dormitories on the State Normal college campus and meals will be served in the college dining hall. A free barbecue will be served at noon the last day of the school.

Inspirational addresses for the three-day school will be delivered by E. Weldon Jones of Shreveport, superintendent of Caddo parish schools; James B. Aswell of Natchitoches, journalist and planter; and B. E. Sackett of New Orleans, member of the federal bureau of investigation.

Special divisions of the folk school here will include a baby department, kindergarten and junior boys and girls sections. A baby clinic will be conducted during the school by the Natchitoches parish health unit headed by Dr. W. W. Knipmeyer.

GUARDSMEN TO LEAVE FOR CAMP

Local Units Will Make Trip To Beauregard By Train Today

The annual encampment of the Louisiana national guard will open at Camp Beauregard today and will last through July 30.

Members of the Service company, the Monroe unit, of the 156th infantry, commanded by Captain George W. Trousdale, left Monroe Friday over the Missouri Pacific railroad to make the needed preparations for the encampment.

The local units, also members of the 156th infantry, the Company G rifle unit, commanded by Captain Louis F. Rolleigh, and the medical detachment which will be in charge of Captain C. Prentice Gray, will leave here this morning at 6:50 o'clock over the Missouri Pacific railroad. Captain W. L. Bendel will not go to camp, his place being taken by Captain Gray.

In years past, the men have gone to camp by motor, but this plan will not be followed this year.

National guard units, Company F from Ruston, and Company H from Minden, will not join the Monroe men this year but will proceed direct to Camp Beauregard also by rail.

On Sunday, July 23, "Governor's day" will be observed, and many people from all over the state will attend and see the formal inspection made of the guardsmen.

HAYES ERECTING EXHIBITION HOME

Frame Now Up For Residence; Public Invited To View Building

A residence in the average-price bracket, designated the Twin Cities Exhibition Home, is in course of construction at 307 Mitchell lane in West Monroe. It is being erected by H. R. Hayes Lumber company of that city primarily for the purpose of demonstrating to the public the ease with which a $3,700 dwelling can be built through the assistance of the Federal Housing administration.

The frame of the house is now up and when it is completed it will be occupied by a Twin City family. Their monthly payments under the FHA plan, including taxes and insurance, will be no more than the rental of an average Monroe or West Monroe home.

The home, which will be modern in every detail, is being erected on a lot fronting 50 feet on Mitchell lane and extending back 150 feet. T. A. Sanders, manager of the H. R. Hayes Lumber company, invites the public to visit the house throughout the course of its construction in order to see the high quality of materials and workmanship required under FHA regulations.

The public will be advised weekly of the progress of construction in the news and advertising columns of the Sunday World.

One story in height and of frame construction, the home will have two bedrooms, a living room, a dining room, a kitchen, a bathroom and a screened living porch. It will have built-in features throughout and an asbestos roof.

The home will incorporate colorful interior decorations. It will have Venetian blinds matching the color scheme of each room.

Twin City craftsmen are being used exclusive in the erection of the home.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
St. John And Grammont Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Pastor's Associate

These have been truly great days—eight great days in revival services at the First Baptist church under the direction of Rev. Luther J. Holcomb, evangelist from Nashville, Tenn. The interest has increased from the very first service and people have been saved and united with the church at nearly every service. We are expecting the services Sunday to be a fitting climax to the preceding week. Rev. Holcomb will occupy the pulpit both hours Sunday, bringing his last message Sunday night. The teachers and officers of the Sunday school are putting forth every effort to contact their members for a great attendance Sunday. We invite every one to enjoy the last services of Rev. Holcomb with us. Baptismal services will be held Wednesday night in connection with the prayer meeting.

"The weather makes no difference" is a good motto for these days. It does not prevent our going where we want to go—so why not go to church? The churches of the Twin Cities welcome all our citizens and every citizen should support the church by his presence at the hours of worship. This church joins the other churches in inviting all citizens to worship the Lord today.

Sunday school 9:45 a.m., and B. T. U. and Brotherhood 7 p.m. B. T. U. leaders' meeting 6:30 p.m. The pastor will preach at 10:50 a.m. and 8 p.m.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Life" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 16, 1939.

Golden text: Amos 5:14. Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light." (Ps. 36.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The life-giving quality of mind is spirit, not matter." (page 517).

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth And Glenmar Sts.
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

Two boys were talking together about Elijah's ascent into heaven in a chariot of fire. One boy said: "Wouldn't you be afraid to ride in such a chariot?" "No," said the other, "not if God drove." There is nothing to fear if one lives by the laws of God. And those who delight in the laws of God are happy and fearless. The laws of God are not so many dont's condemning us, but guide-posts to direct us on a happy journey. God knows the way. Let us have joy in God's commands.

Services for Sunday, the sixth after Trinity, are at 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. The rector will journey to Rayville, where in St. David's church Evensong will be said and sermon preached at 4 p.m.

There will be amid-week Eucharist in Grace church at 9 a.m.

The church is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate.—The Rector.

'The Church With The Lighted Steeple'
Walter C. Scott, Minister

The minister will occupy the pulpit at both services on Sunday. The sermon them for the 11 o'clock service will be "Times of Refreshing," from the text found in the sixth verse of the 85th Psalm. Come and worship with us. We would not have God withdraw His blessings during the hot summer months so let us not forsake the assembling of our ourselves together to worship Him.

The third quarterly conference will be held at the church Monday evening, July 17, at 745 o'clock, with Rev. W. L. Doss presiding. All officials of the church are urged to be present.

The young people of Monroe and Ruston districts will be at Camp Ki-Ro-Li this week for their camp. Splendid courses are being offered, with great opportunities for worship recreation and fellowship. Methodist young people, ages 15 to 23, should avail themselves of this opportunity. Next week, July 24-27, there will be the camp for adults of the Monroe and Ruston districts. The intermediates have just closed out a most successful camp with an attendance of 80.

The Woman's Missionary society will meet at the church Tuesday for the program and business meeting combined, as the business meeting falling on July 4 was postponed.

The Philathea class will have the monthly social and business meeting Wednesday evening on board the Brown Kraft, enjoying a boat ride with Miss Winnie Riggs, Mrs. G. L. Morgan and Mrs. Herbert Todd the hostesses.

Multiplied millions of people never consider the value of the church and its services until there comes some great trouble into their lives. Why not consider the church and its ministry while we are well and happy and can do our part in the progress of this, the greatest institution on this earth? If you are a visitor to our city, we will welcome you to our Sunday school and church services. If you live here in this parish you should get the habit of church attendance. Our services are friendly and inspirational and there will be waiting for you a trained teacher in every class in the Sunday school.

Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m. under the direction of R. M. McClendon. Special music at every service directed by G. C. Williams, assisted by Miss Madia McClendon and a well-trained choir. Services at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. If you appreciate gospel preaching, attend our services and you will come again.

THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont At Catalpa
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

Realizing that all of us are vitally and sincerely interested in the welfare of our nation, and believing that the time has come for us to do some straight thinking, it is our purpose to think with you this Lord's day about two pertinent subjects. "That Which Exalts a Nation" is the theme of the morning. And "That Which We Can Do for Our Nation" is the subject of the evening meditation. Your presence will mean much, and we invite you to worship with us. If you are unable to attend the services of the Holy Sanctuary, will you hear us by means of our local radio station, KMLB?

The Sabbath school needs you. Will you join us in the study of Holy Writ? "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman who needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." The men meet in the Paramount theater; the other classes are held in the church buildings.

Our mission is to so present the gospel that hearers will accept the Redeemer and the people within the fold be constrained to seek to effect His will in daily walk and conversation.

A hearty welcome awaits you at any worship service!

Mr. Wilson Ewing, Publisher,
News-Star--World,
Monroe, La.

Dear Mr. Ewing:

While we consistantly advertise in your newspapers with consistant gratifying results, we could not let the occassion pass without telling you of the marvelous response to our REMODELING SALE advertisements in the Monroe News-Star, July 11th, and Monroe Morning World, July 12th.

Wednesday morning our store was packed and jammed with hundreds of our regular customers and scores of new faces, in fact, so many people that it was almost impossible to accommodate them despite the extra added sales people we employed for this event.

During our 15 years in business in Monroe, this was the largest and most successful sales event in our history, and we attribute it entirely to the pulling power of your newspapers.

Our business has continually grown until it has become necessary for us to have a larger store. We believe you will be pleased to know that this week we have let contracts for the remodeling and complete air-conditioning of our store and in addition have leased the two stores next door to our present store which will be combined into one large store giving us twice the floor space we formerly had, giving Monroe one of the finest women's shops in the South.

We feel that your newspapers have been a big part in our success and we shall continue to be a consistant user of large space to tell the people of Monroe and the Monroe trade area the latest in fashions for women and children at Bella Scherck Davidson's Women's Shop.

Thanking you, we are

Sincerely yours,

Bella Scherck Davidson

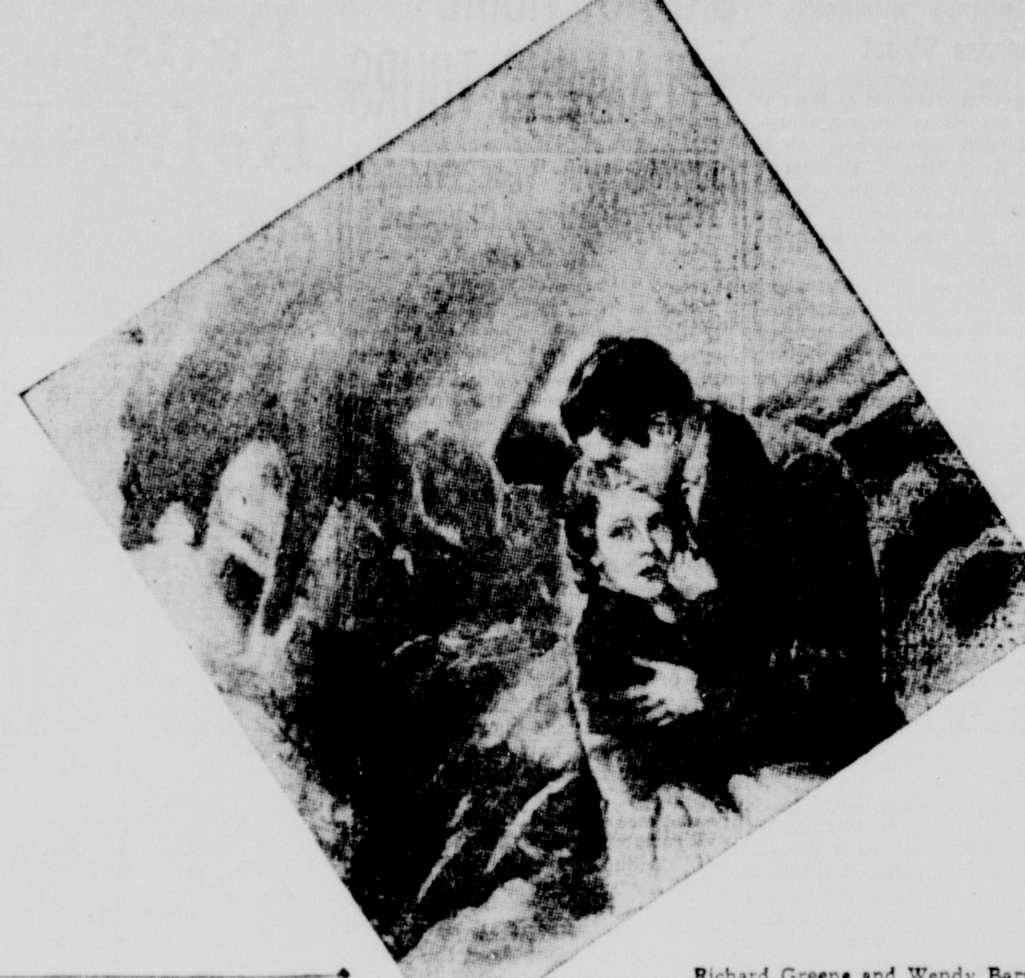
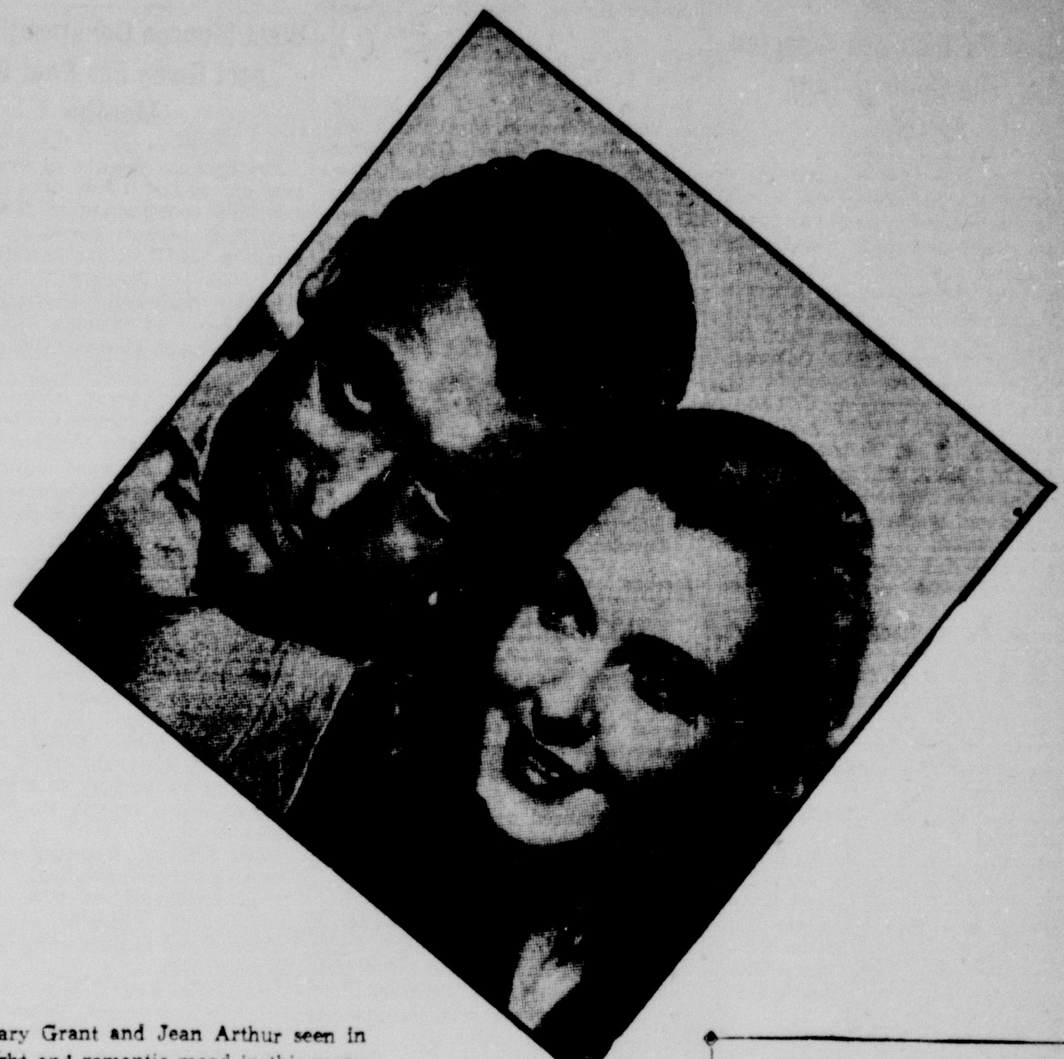
'It's A Wonderful World' Opens At Paramount Today



Richard Greene and Wendy Barrie as seen by a studio artist in 20th Century-Fox's production of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," showing Wednesday only at the Capitol theater. Basil Rathbone plays the role of Sherlock Holmes, master detective of fiction.

Profiles of Paul Muni as Jaurez and Bette Davis as Carlotta, distinguished co-stars of "Juarez," showing as the midnight show attraction at the Paramount theater Saturday.



Cary Grant and Jean Arthur seen in light and romantic mood in this scene from "Only Angels Have Wings," feature attraction showing at the Paramount theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Also featured are Rita Hayworth, Richard Barthelmess and Thomas Mitchell.

Colbert And Stewart In Mad Comedy

Fresh And Breezy Romance Has Plot Packed With Suspense

A NEW comedy theme, bringing a delightful new team in unusually novel and daffy complications, comes to the screen of the Paramount theater today when "It's a Wonderful World" makes its local debut starring Claudette Colbert with James Stewart in the male lead.

Catching the elusive spirit of Claudette Colbert's academy award hit, "It Happened One Night," the new romantic comedy strike out into new zany channels both in characters and plot. Stewart is an All-American football player cast as a private detective hired to keep an irresponsible, oft-married millionaire playboy out of trouble. Miss Colbert is, of all things, a poetess. When the millionaire playboy is murdered and Stewart is innocently involved, Miss Colbert joins forces with him in solving the murder. The complications run wild, the work of the amateur detective is more than weird, and Stewart even socks Miss Colbert on the jaw. But it all romps to a happy, if unexpected ending.

Involved in the hilarious doings are Guy Kibbee, Nat Pendleton, Frances Drake, Edgar Kennedy and Ernest Truex.

Adding excitement to the comedy angles, the story offers a number of hairbreadth escapes, topped by Stewart's mad leap into a river from a speeding train while handcuffed to Pendleton. It has a performance of "What Price Glary?" in which Stewart wears blackface. In another scene Miss Colbert, believing she is in the hands of a desperate criminal, sets fire to her car with a cigarette lighter. There are a couple of spine-tickling murders, with a third barely prevented, and the hectic action moves through a series of no less than forty-seven sets encompassing the high spots of New York.

Directed by W. S. Van Dyke II, who lists among his successes "Stand Up and Fight," "Marie Antoinette" and "The Thin Man," "It's a Wonderful World" was produced by Frank Davis who has given the screen such films as "Lord Jeff" and "The Devil Is a Sissy."

HOT WEATHER CAUSES LESS DEMAND FOR TOYS IN WPA SHOP

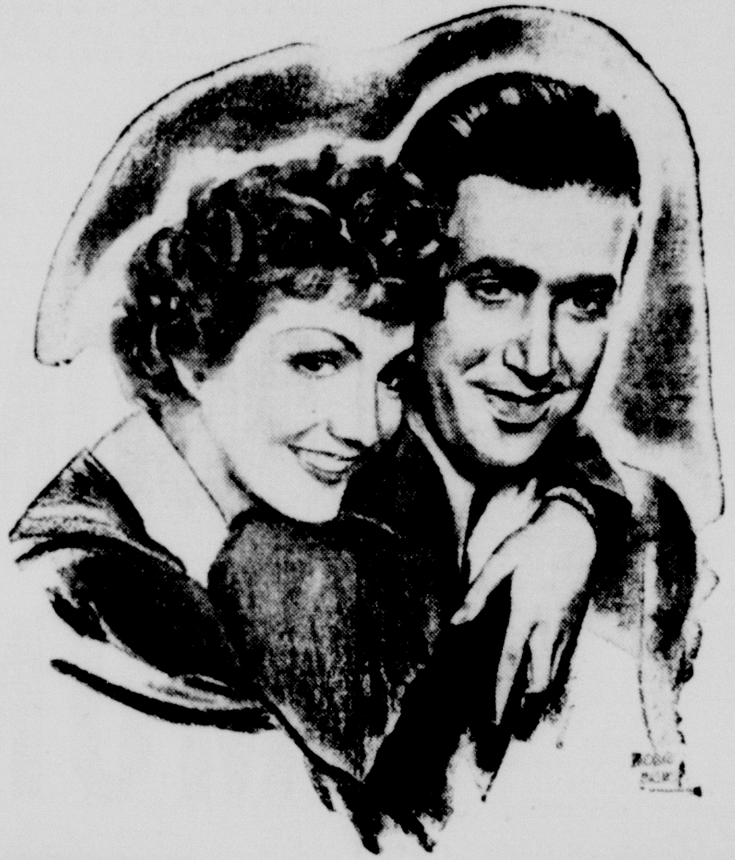
Although the hot weather seems to be lowering the demands of parish children for toys provided by the WPA toy shop in the 100 block of Washington street, the staff of the shop is busy these days making and remodeling toys which will be loaned to children.

More than a dozen rag dolls have been made recently by the staff, and lumber donated by several local lumber companies has been used to make additional playthings. The staff recently mended 49 articles of clothing and nice pairs of shoes which were donated. The articles have been turned over to the Ouachita parish welfare department for distribution.

The toy shop is open every day, with the exception of Saturday and Sunday, from 8 o'clock in the morning until 3:15 p.m. Children take out slips similar to those in public libraries for the toys they borrow and must have either their parents or guardians sign them. They are able to borrow any toy in the shop for a week.

Rubber-band guns, tricycles, scooters and wagons were said by the director of the shop to be most popular with child patrons, but the new rag dolls and calico cats also are proving popular.

Oliver Hardy and Harry Langdon comedy stars of "Zenobia," playing at the Capitol theater Tuesday only. James Ellison and Jean Parker are romantically teamed, but . . . who is Zenobia?



A cuddlesome moment from "It's a Wonderful World" in which Claudette Colbert and James Stewart are to be seen on the screen of the Paramount theater today, Monday and Tuesday.

Leslie Howard and Wendy Hiller in a scene from "Pygmalion," feature attraction showing at the Capitol theater Thursday only.

Lucille Ball and Allan Lane have a big dramatic assignment in "Panama Lady," adventure romance, which casts them as the hero and heroine of events in an exotic environment, shows at the Capitol theater Friday only.

A grand frontier love that grew with the building of the first transcontinental railroad is shared by Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea, handsome screen couple, in "Union Pacific," plays today and Monday at the Capitol.

The admission of 10 cents will be used to help pay expenses of members who will go to the Baton Rouge short course.

Great Epic Of Old West At Capitol

'Union Pacific,' With Great Cast, Is Outstanding Spectacle

BARBARA Stanwyck, in a role completely different from any she has previously attempted, and Joel McCrea, as a character strongly reminiscent of the one he portrayed last season in "Wells Fargo," are co-starred in the romantic leads of "Union Pacific," Cecil B. DeMille's grand-scale interpretation of the building of America's first transcontinental railroad.

Although the popular Miss Stanwyck has played roles as varied as middle western farm-woman, New England factory wench and Park avenue debutante, her Mollie Monahan in "Union Pacific," which Paramount will show today at the Capitol theater, marks something totally new in the Stanwyck repertoire. She is a daring, warm-hearted, fiery girl of the west, the daughter of the "U. P.'s" first engineer, the postmistress of "end of track" and the little sister of the husky railroad builders. She is equally at home outwitting western sharpers, comforting the homesick Irish laborers, battling Indians on the warpath or engaging in high-powered romance.

Mollie's romantic interest in "Union Pacific" is one Jeff Butler (played by the handsome McCrea), a brave and reckless trouble-shooter whom the Washington government has assigned to help keep order along the right-of-way. The two meet at "end of track," the gaudy, brawling, settlement that moves ever westward with the railroad, and their romance moves as swiftly forward as the phenomenal railroad itself.

Although Indian attacks, corrupt officials and hostile nature can all be dealt with, Mollie and Jeff meet a real difficulty in Dick Allen (Robert Preston), a smooth young western adventurer who has teamed up with a crowd of sharpers to sabotage the railroad. In love with Mollie, Dick has the double incentive of ruining Jeff's work and stealing his sweetheart at the same time.

When the irresponsible Dick goes so far as to help rob a pay train, upon which the "U. P." vitally depends, the good-hearted Mollie marries him to save him from the law. But before the railroad is finished Dick's own crimes remove him from the scene, leaving the track to romance clear for Jeff.

A dozen other popular Hollywood players will be seen in equally unusual roles in De Mille's production. Akim Tamiroff, the roistering Russian actor, is "Fiesta," a rowdy Mexican railroad cop who brings his own kind of law and order to the west at the point of a bull-whip. Lynne Overman holds up the comedy end of the picture as a hard-as-nails fur-trapper and pioneer. Brian Donlevy is the sharper who is hired by financiers to sabotage the project.

CEMETERY WILL BE GIVEN ATTENTION

Liberty Baptist church, near Marion, will have a cemetery working July 18 when the public is invited to come prepared to make a day of it. Each one is asked to bring a large, well filled dinner basket.

The same church will have a revival that will start today at the church. This evening there will be a singing convention held at Linville in the school gymnasium. The public is invited to attend.

WILL MAKE VISIT

Edward Whittington, 1217 South Second street, will leave today for a 10-day visit with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whittington, in Crystal Springs, Miss. The boy's uncle will return with him at the end of the visit.

'LOST' CEMETERY LOCATED

FORT DAVIS, Tex.—(AP)—Fort Davis cemetery is "found" once more after being "lost" on official records. Years ago it was located, in recordings, as 890 varas from a cedar tree. A varas is a unit of measurement. A clerk in copying notes made it 89 varas and for years it thus was "out of place" in the record books.

Perryville Resident Owns Gun Won From Buffalo Bill

By W. L. Griffin

PERRYVILLE, La., July 15.—(Special)—The story goes that Buffalo Bill was an expert shot when it came to plucking off Indians with a rifle, but according to James M. Hamilton, 55-year-old store clerk of this community, he was evidently a poor shot at clay pigeons.

This fact was brought to light recently when Mr. Hamilton exhibited a rare old gun that he says his father, J. M. T. Hamilton, of Meridian, Miss., now deceased, declared he won in a shooting match with the famous westerner as one of the contestants.

The gun was a prize awarded at a shooting match held at a fair in Meridian in 1889. The match was open to all comets. When the score was counted there were four men left to shoot for the gun, a man named Dr. Carver, a pal of Buffalo Bill, Buffalo Bill, a Jim Shacklfield and the elder Mr. Hamilton. In the finals, Dr. Carver was the first to miss, then Buffalo Bill. Mr. Hamilton and Shacklfield were in a tie until the 88th shot which Shacklfield missed. In the end Hamilton made a perfect score of 100 hits out of a possible 100, receiving first prize, the gun.

The gun is now regarded as an heirloom of the Hamilton family. A very fragile part of the mechanism was broken a few years ago and the manufacturer has long since gone out of business, thereby making replacement parts unobtainable.

It was manufactured and patented in 1882 by the Spencer Firearms company. The unusual mechanical design of the gun makes it very unique in the way it is built. It is a 12-gauge, pump action, having no visible hammer, yet a procedure of cocking the gun must be gone through before it can be fired. This is accomplished by pushing forward a trigger-like mechanism that works in front of the trigger in the trigger-guard. When it is fired and the empty shell thrown from the barrel the hull is thrown over the shooter's head to his back by the unusual design of the ejecting mechanism.

Mr. Hamilton states that he has never seen another gun exactly like it.

NO WPA STRIKES REPORTED IN AREA

J. T. Bullen, area engineer of the WPA in Monroe, stated Saturday that no strikes have been reported in his area in connection with WPA workers.

He said that outside of Monroe in his area one or two cases have been reported when workers have stopped work but that there has been nothing that could be termed a strike in connection with their action.

WOMAN'S SHOP TO BE MODERNIZED

Work Starts Tomorrow; Firm To Continue Business Across Street

While its present location at Walnut and DeSiard streets is being modernized and enlarged, the Woman's shop, consisting of Bella Scherck Davidson's women's wear shop, Alice Henry's hat shop and Touchstone beauty salon, will continue business, uninterrupted, across the street.

Transfer of the establishment to its temporary quarters will be completed today and it will be open for business as usual tomorrow morning, at which time workmen will get down to their preliminary tasks on the permanent location. The contractors hope to have the place ready for reoccupancy within six weeks.

The building at Walnut and DeSiard is to be thoroughly modernized and enlarged by approximately one-third. It will front 60 feet along DeSiard and extend back 109 feet on Walnut.

When the building is completed, the beauty salon will be in the rear, instead of the front, and will have entrances both from the store and on Walnut street. The modernized establishment will also incorporate the space formerly occupied by Joe's Electric Shoe shop.

Gray structural glass, with black trim, will be utilized on the front of the building, which will have a vestibule, flanked with display windows, leading off the sidewalk. There will be two entrances, with a central feature window between. The vestibule flooring will be of terrazzo.

The interior, too, will be of modernistic design, featuring blonde woodwork and direct and indirect lighting. It will be arranged roughly in the shape of a horseshoe. To the left, as one enters, will be the Alice Henry hat shop, back of that the office and service department, then a series of stock cases. The rear of the store will be devoted to ready-to-wear. To the right, in that area, will be the children's department. In front of that will be more stock cases, then a French room, devoted to the display of evening dresses and more expensive merchandise. And directly opposite the hat shop will be the sports wear department. An island display near the front of the store will feature lingeries, bags and accessories. Fitting rooms will be conveniently arranged on either sides of the store, toward the rear.

The shop will be air-conditioned throughout.

The Woman's shop has been in operation in Monroe for 16 years, 12 of them at its present location.

BAPTIST HOME PLANNING TOURS

Children Will Visit Principal Denominational Churches Of State

Three groups from the Louisiana Baptist Children's home will leave next Saturday for their itineraries throughout the state. When they have returned on August 6, the entire state will have been covered, programs having been given by the local children in a large majority of Baptist churches of Louisiana, stated Superintendent B. F. Wallace.

Of the groups to leave next Saturday, one will be by school truck furnished by J. C. Byram and accompanied by Superintendent Wallace. The children will visit Baton Rouge, Bogalusa and other nearby towns to give programs daily.

Scoutmaster Carl Brown will take his troop from the home for a trip through central Louisiana, while Rev. L. A. Materne, field representative of the home, will take a group to DeRidder and its immediately vicinity.

Superintendent Wallace returned with a group Saturday which had been away since July 1, visiting Caddo parish and other northwestern parishes of the state. Rev. Materne will return with his group from the present trip on Monday.

Today, Superintendent Wallace plans to present children from the home at the Vivian Baptist church at 11 a.m. and at Ingleside Baptist church, Shreveport, tonight. They will then return home and the groups will remain there until next Saturday, when new itineraries will be initiated.

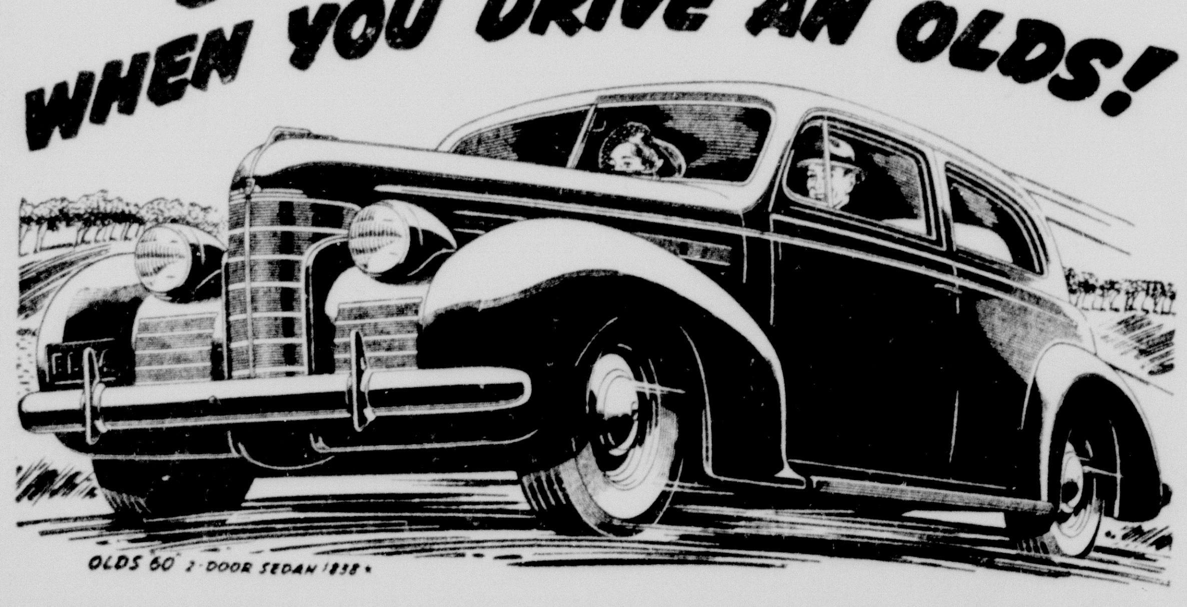
IT'S A LONG TIME BETWEEN PUMPS—WHEN YOU DRIVE AN OLDS!



RECORDS PROVE OLDSMOBILE ONE OF AMERICA'S LEADING ECONOMY CARS!

YOU'D NEVER THINK a car as big and powerful as Olds would be a gas miser. Yet, that's just what Oldsmobile is—a fuel saver if there ever was one. With Olds, you spend less time (and money) in gas stations and more on the open road. The big 90 H. P. Econo-Master Engine of the Olds Sixty gives you a wealth of live, eager power to master any kind of going. Yet, because it is precision-built and pressure-lubricated, because it embodies such advanced features as a high-efficiency cylinder head, completely cooled cylinders and pressure-cooled valves, it gets the utmost out of every drop of gas and oil. That's why an Olds Sixty was able to win first in its class in this year's Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run with an average of 21.4 miles per gallon over a tough 315-mile course. Come in and let us prove to you that Olds gives you quality plus economy!

YOU'LL GET A BETTER DEAL FROM OLDSMOBILE!

That's what our customers are saying all over town. Bring your present car in for appraisal and find out why. It will never be worth more than it is today, so why not get top value for it in trade on a big, new, money-saving Olds!

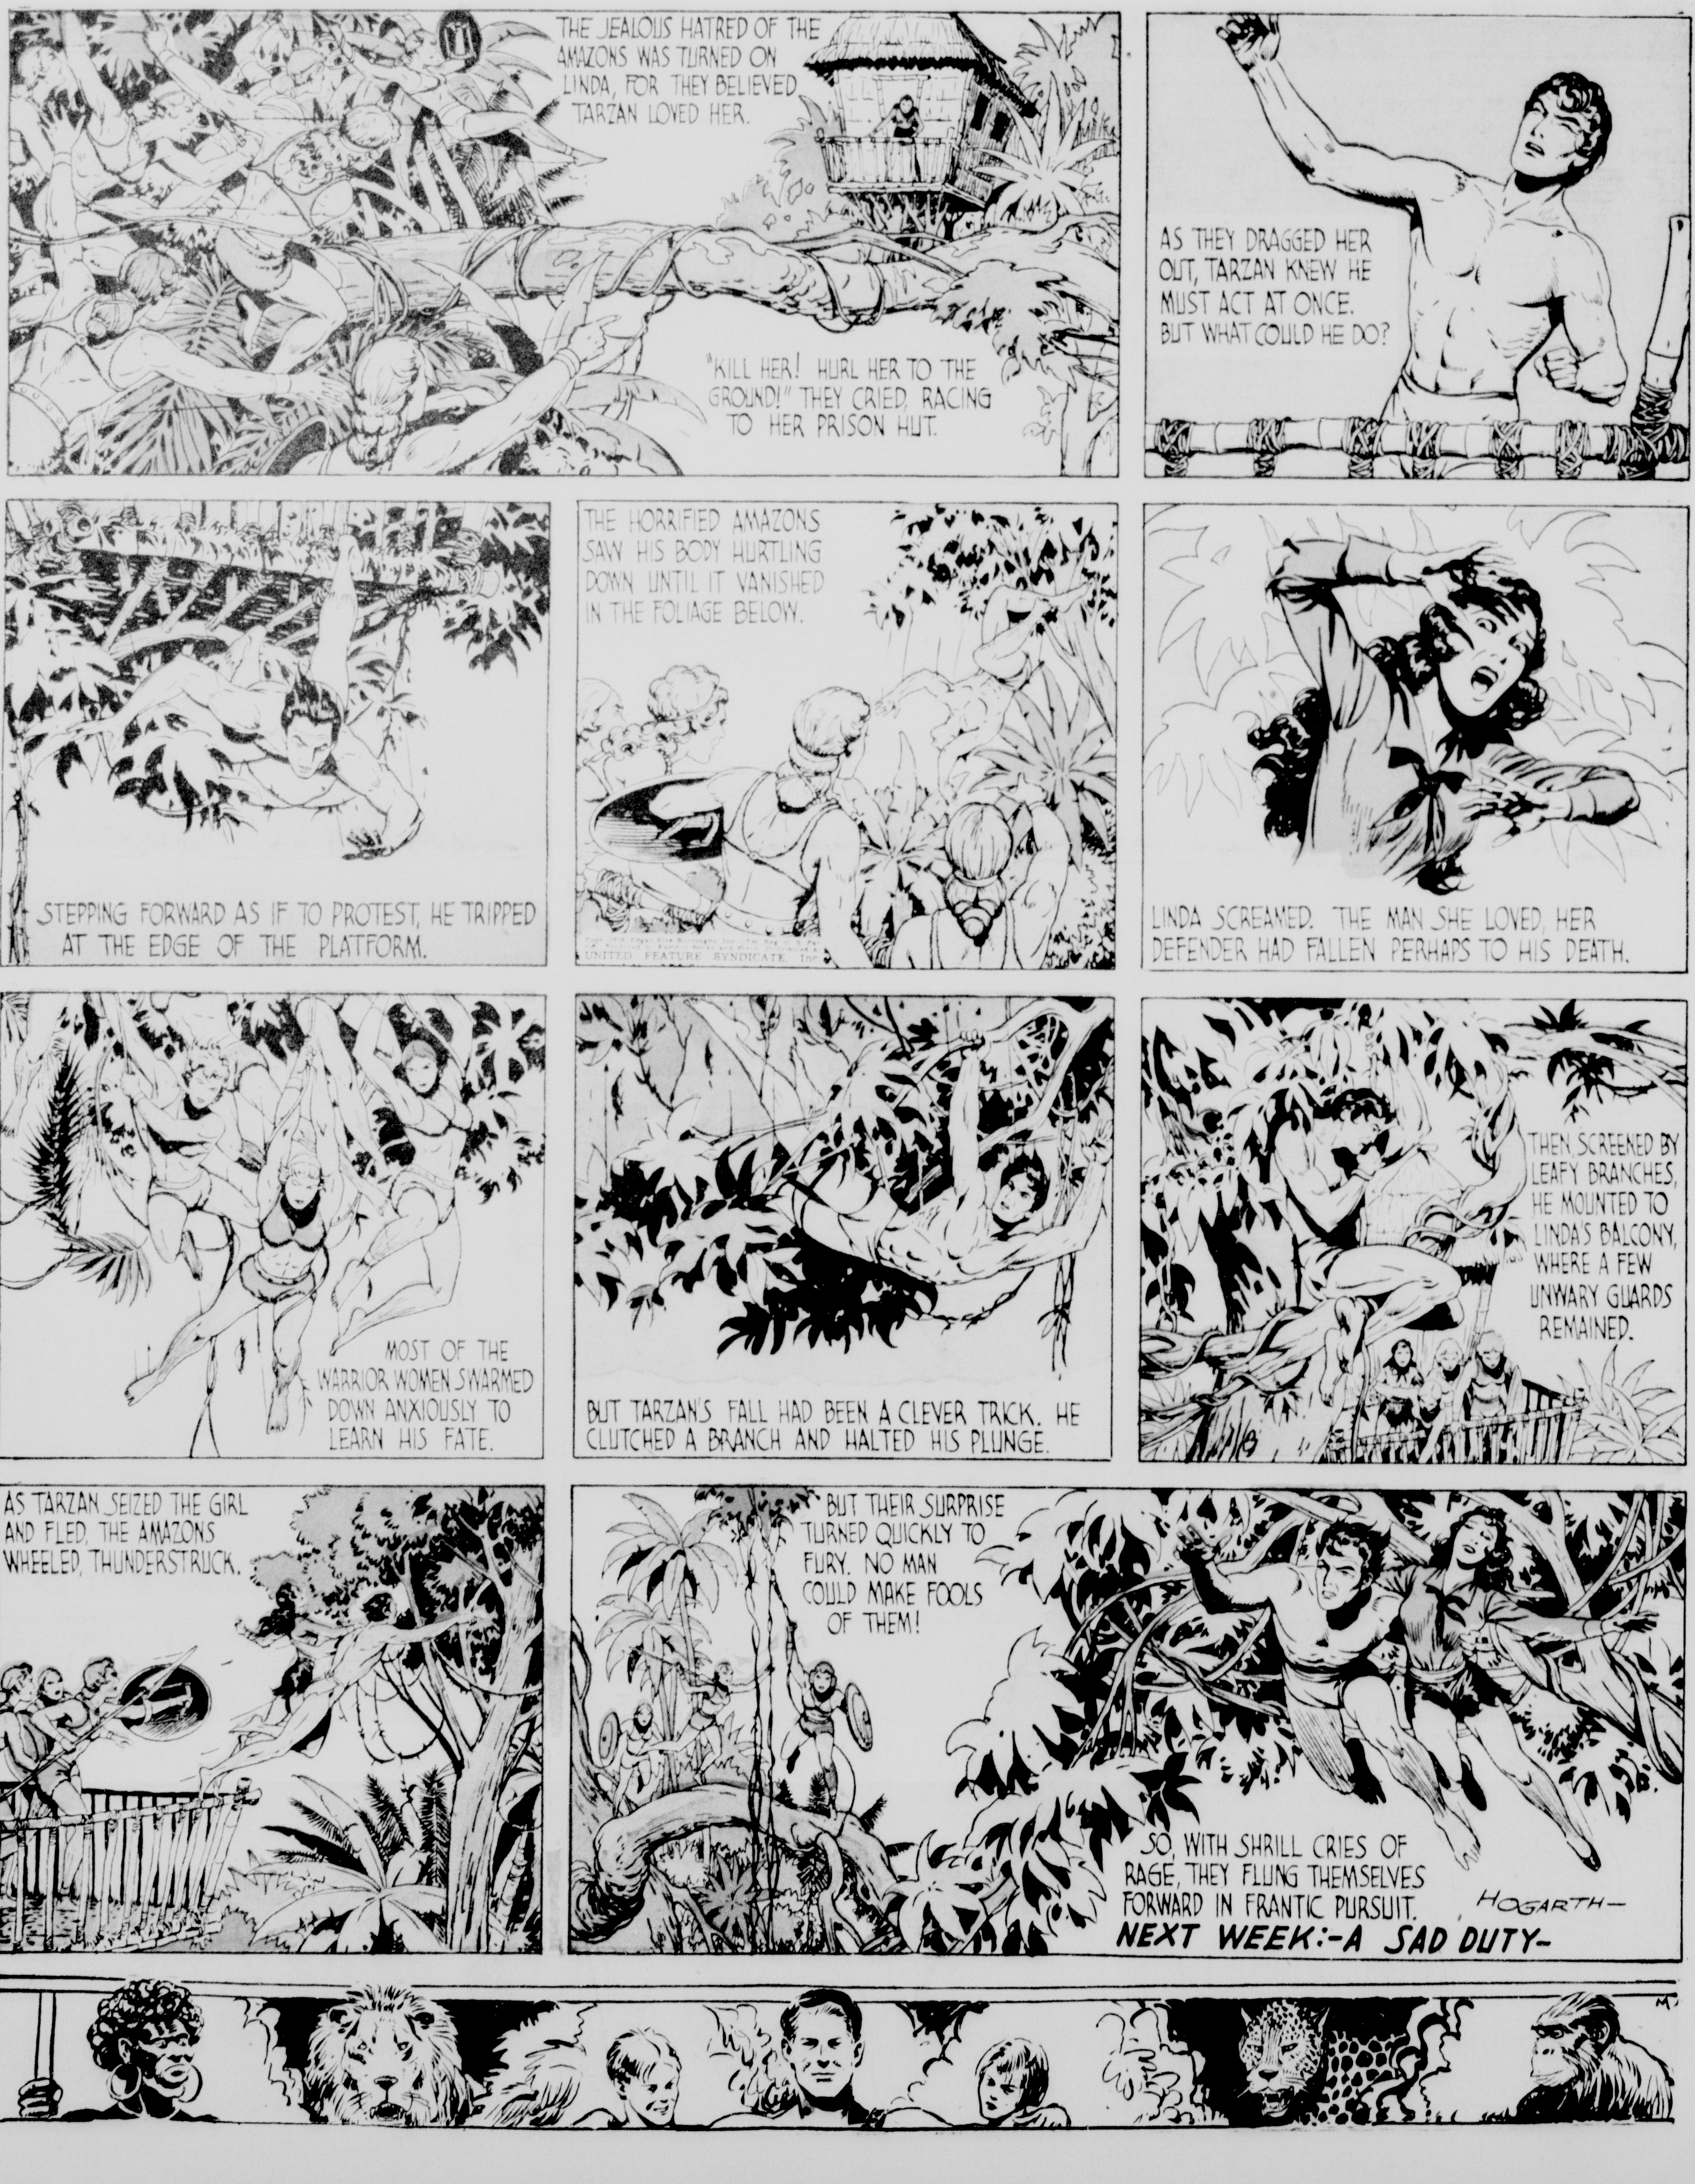
TARZAN'S FALL



THE JEALOUS HATRED OF THE AMAZONS WAS TURNED ON LINDA, FOR THEY BELIEVED TARZAN LOVED HER.
"KILL HER! HURL HER TO THE GROUND!" THEY CRIED, RACING TO HER PRISON HUT.
AS THEY DRAGGED HER OUT, TARZAN KNEW HE MUST ACT AT ONCE. BUT WHAT COULD HE DO?
STEPPING FORWARD AS IF TO PROTEST, HE TRIPPED AT THE EDGE OF THE PLATFORM.
THE HORRIFIED AMAZONS SAW HIS BODY HURTLING DOWN UNTIL IT VANISHED IN THE FOLIAGE BELOW.
UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE, Inc.
LINDA SCREAMED. THE MAN SHE LOVED, HER DEFENDER HAD FALLEN PERHAPS TO HIS DEATH.
MOST OF THE WARRIOR WOMEN SWARMED DOWN ANXIOUSLY TO LEARN HIS FATE.
BUT TARZAN'S FALL HAD BEEN A CLEVER TRICK. HE CLUTCHED A BRANCH AND HALTED HIS PLUNGE.
THEN, SCREENED BY LEAFY BRANCHES, HE MOUNTED TO LINDA'S BALCONY, WHERE A FEW UNWARY GUARDS REMAINED.
AS TARZAN SEIZED THE GIRL AND FLED, THE AMAZONS WHEELED, THUNDERSTRUCK.
BUT THEIR SURPRISE TURNED QUICKLY TO FURY. NO MAN COULD MAKE FOOLS OF THEM!

EUROPE ENJOYS CALM WEEK-END; ALL WATCHFUL

German Mouthpiece Says America Chosen As Arms Workshop Of 'War Party'

By Associated Press

Comparative calm characterized the international scene yesterday, ushering in what on the surface promised to be one of the quietest week-ends the world has seen in recent months. Nevertheless anxious eyes watched two trouble zones—the orient and Danzig.

All the world's big powers were making the most of the lull to prepare for any upheaval.

Britain was one of the busiest. Starting her first peace-time conscription in modern times, Britain mustered 34,000 youths into her new conscript army. They were the first of 200,000 to be called for six months' training.

Addition of these recruits was the latest British move in the past week to place manpower and resources on virtually a war-time footing for any eventuality.

Preparedness moves and a British-French display of strength during France's Bastille day celebration Friday were timed also to impress Rome and Berlin at a moment when Japan was struggling for domination of the far east and the Danzig problem remained unsettled.

Britain talked of more babies taking a cue from its French allies who [illegible] Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in advocating increased birth rates to hold their places in the sun.

Hitler spent the week-end celebrating German art week at Munich. He speaks today but is expected to devote his remarks to art and not international politics.

Top-flight Nazis gathered with Hitler at Munich indicated Germany was standing pat on the Polish question and intends to have Danzig become a part of the Fatherland "as soon as convenient." Nobody would predict when that would be.

The mouthpiece of the German foreign office declared President Roosevelt's special message and Secretary Hull's statement to congress on neutrality legislation showed the United States was chosen as "the arms workshop of a definite war party."

The publication, commenting on the president's efforts for revision of the arms embargo, asserted:

"The war party (obviously alluding to Britain and France) would build its own war industry on American soil with American workers and American raw material whereby the cash and carry clause would be easily circumvented."

Danzig itself was a picture of serenity. Boys and girls of the Hitler youth organization frolicked at sports events and picnics while Nazi leaders awaited the return of Albert Forster, local leader, from talks with Hitler. Danzigers believed Hitler instructed Forster to be patient.

In France, Premier Daladier took personal charge of inquiries into alleged German espionage operations. His first step was to warn the press of severe penalties for publication of unauthorized information.

The first newspapers to appear after the order published reports that French secret police inspectors had gone to London to confer with Scotland Yard and military intelligence officials who have cooperated closely in Daladier's investigation.

Evidences of British-Japanese bitterness were seen anew in many parts of China as the two powers started negotiations in Tokyo through which Japan hopes to compel British co-

DR. J. EDWIN SLICER DIES IN SHREVEPORT

SHREVEPORT, La., July 15.—(AP)—Dr. J. Edwin Slicer, 57, Shreveport physician, died of an apoplectic stroke here early today.

Dr. Slicer, born November 30, 1881, at St. Joseph, La., was educated there and later took his medical course at Tulane. He began the practice of medicine at St. Joseph, coming to Shreveport about 1911. In 1913 when the Youree hotel was opened he became resident physician, a position he held continuously until his death with the exception of the period when he was in the army medical service during the World war.

He was a member of the state charity hospital board for several years and at one time served as chairman. However, he resigned from the board a few years ago and had no official capacity with the hospital at the time of his death except as an honorary member of the staff.

Surviving is his widow, the former Miss Jeannette Hill.

Temperature Shoots To New High For Summer As Residents Swelter

The mercury in the Monroe area shot to a new high for the summer yesterday when the government thermometer at Selman airport located east of the city chalked up a maximum of 105.4 degrees.

Strangely enough, it was hotter in the wide open spaces of Selman field than it was in downtown Monroe. The United Gas company's thermometer at the city hall recorded a maximum of 104.5. Ordinarily the city hall mercury goes considerably higher than at the airport.

Friday's maximum at the airport was 103.2.

TEMPERATURES PASS 100-DEGREE MARK

By Associated Press

Temperatures above the 100-degree mark, highest in years in some localities, baked Louisiana and Mississippi yesterday.

An official maximum of 105.4 at Monroe was the highest reported in Louisiana. A cool breeze late in the day offered some relief to sweltering residents there.

Jackson, Miss., recorded an official 104, topping all marks since June 6, 1936.

Natchez reported its 103 degrees, "highest in years."

New Orleans saw the mercury soar to 99 by noon. It lingered at 98 during the afternoon, then slid down slowly.

BAPTISTS STRIKE AT PERSECUTION

World Congress May Take Action On Religious Intolerance

ATLANTA, July 15.—(AP)—A Baptist affirmation that religious persecution is a "crime against God and man" was quoted today as an indication of the approach of the sixth Baptist world congress may take on the question of religious intolerance.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, Atlanta chairman of arrangements, forecast an attendance of 50,000 from 60 nations for the congress beginning next Saturday and said it would be the "largest and most significant" religious meeting of 1939.

As a characteristic exposition of Baptist principles, Dr. Newton cited the following statement of the late Dr. E. Y. Mullins of Louisville, Ky., officially adopted at the Baptist congress in Berlin in 1934.

"The government which persecutes men for religious beliefs commits a crime against God and man. * * *

"While we have no sympathy with atheism, or agnosticism or materialism, we stand for the freedom of the atheist, agnostic and materialist or irreligious convictions. * * *

"So also the Jew and the Catholic are entitled to protection in the exercise of their religious liberty."

An early arrival was Dr. C. J. Tinsley of Sydney, president of the Australian Baptist union.

"There need be no doubt," he observed, "what the church action will be on religious liberty—a subject now very vital in the hearts of so many nationals.

"It will be an outright affirmation of our unbroken record of insistence

Second Dollar Day Of Year Scheduled For Wednesday

With Monroe's leading merchants participating, the second citywide cooperative Dollar day of 1939 will be held Wednesday. Advertisements calling attention of the public to bargains being offered by the various stores taking part in the event will appear in Tuesday afternoon's News-Star and Wednesday morning's World.

Like the first Dollar day of the year, which took place March 1, the one Wednesday is being sponsored by the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe. The first event was unanimously termed a thorough success by the establishments that participated in it.

Cooperating merchants can be identified by the large red Dollar day placards displayed in their show-windows. Further attention will be called to the event by banners strung across DeSiard street in the business section.

The Dollar day Wednesday will feature summer merchandise, things that the residents of the Monroe trade area will find useful and desirable during the remainder of the warm season. The participating merchants have been preparing for the event for several weeks and they assure the buying public of outstanding bargains. They plan to make Wednesday's Dollar day even more attractive than that of March 1.

All advertisements in connection with the Dollar day will appear simultaneously in The News-Star and The World and the public is urged to read the announcements of the stores carefully to facilitate shopping.

H. R. Saenger, chairman of the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce, stressed the fact that the coming Dollar day is not an event merely for Monroe residents, but for West Monroe people and everybody living in the local trade area. "Everyone living in this vicinity should make an effort to come to Monroe on Dollar day and take advantage of the reduced prices prevailing on that day," he said.

HOPE OF RESCUE VIRTUALLY GONE, INSPECTOR SAYS

Explosion Believed Touched Off By Some Kind Of Spark; Ten Escape

PROVIDENCE, Ky., July 15.—(AP)—John Daniels, Kentucky's chief mine inspector, expressed fear tonight that the death toll in a mine gas explosion would reach 28, as hope waned that nine of the men would be found alive. It previously was announced 19 miners were dead.

"With all that carbon monoxide gas down there," Daniels said, "it doesn't look like they have any chance."

The men were entombed last night 200 to 250 feet underground and approximately two miles back from the opening.

Daniels made the statement after conferring with 12 exhausted rescue workers who were brought to the surface late today at the Duvin Coal company's soft coal mine about a mile north of here. One of the squadmen was overcome before the party emerged, but soon was revived.

Another squad immediately was sent down to carry on the rescue efforts in the pit which was described as being filled with "bad air."

Earlier, F. W. Rockman, [illegible] of the company, said that 19 miners had perished, but expressed belief the remaining nine might be saved. He said if they had "sealed in" behind an air-tight door, they might have enough "good" air to last "three or four days."

Fred Ferguson, director of the Indiana bureau of mines, assisting in rescue work, however, declared the nine had "only one chance in a thousand" of being found alive.

The disaster was the second to strike

MRS. JAS. EVANS IS FATALLY SHOT

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict Death Caused By Self-Inflicted Wound

Death apparently occurred instantly for Mrs. Hattie May Evans, 29, wife of James A. Evans, living on the Nutland road, late Saturday when a charge from a 410 shotgun entered the left side of her chest. A coroner's jury reported the wound was self-inflicted, Dr. Irving J. Wolff, parish coroner said. No reason for the act was given.

Mrs. Evans' body was found by her husband and an aunt about 6 o'clock. Its condition indicated that Mrs. Evans had been dead only a short time.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Dixie Funeral chapel.

Mrs. Evans is survived by her husband; mother, Mrs. W. M. White of West Monroe, four sisters, Mrs. Beulah Pickford and Miss Willie May White of Shreveport, Mrs. Viola Donovan of Monroe and Miss Minnie Belle White of West Monroe; and four brothers, Dalas, Willis, Lewis and Clarence White of Monroe.

Pallbearers will be W. M. McDowell, F. M. McHenry, Groves Brown, O. S. Hill, A. P. Kitchen and J. W. Huitt.

WIND STORM HITS IN CALHOUN AREA

Wind of almost hurricane force and lasting 40 minutes struck Calhoun and vicinity early Saturday night, Sidney Stewart, head of the Louisiana Experiment station at that place, reported. Only minor damage was caused, he said.

Other reports were that several trees had blown down across the highway about two miles west of Calhoun. No reports of injuries were received.

Mr. Stewart said the wind was not in the form of a tornado, as it blew straight instead of twisting. More than an inch of rain, which was badly needed, fell at Calhoun.

Strong gusts of wind also blew in Monroe, accompanied by an electrical storm, which plunged the city into darkness for a brief time.

WPA WORK HALTS IN MINNEAPOLIS AFTER RIOTING

Group In Congress Abandons Efforts To Change New Relief Law

ONE MAN KILLED AND 17 OTHERS HURT OR GASSED

Senator Murray Says Strikes 'Embarrassing' To Amendment Proponents

(By Associated Press)

Fatal rioting at Minneapolis in the WPA strike was followed yesterday by an administration order closing all projects in that city and the abandonment of efforts by a group in congress to amend the new relief law.

Regional WPA officials said that with the approval of Colonel F. C. Harrington, national WPA commissioner, they were closing all work projects in Minneapolis for the time being. They added that the work quotas might be given to other parts of Minnesota.

The announcement came twelve hours after rioting near a sewing project had resulted in the death of one man and the injury or gassing of 17 others.

Meanwhile, Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, author of an amendment which would restore the prevailing wage scale to relief projects and terminate the new 130-hour work month requirement, said the sena-

CONGRESS EAGER TO END SESSION

Administration's New Lending Program May Be Shelved Until Winter

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Congress was adjournment-bent today, many members convinced that neutrality legislation is dead for the session and that the administration's new lending program might be shelved until next winter.

"About two weeks more, I would say," was the way one veteran of the senate who knows all its ins and outs, moods and impulses, put the situation.

However, he was ready to agree that his forecast depended largely upon what the administration decides to do. If it should conclude to fight it out on neutrality, for instance, cnogress, in his opinion, might as well make up its mind that it will be here until "Thanksgiving or maybe even Christmas." But he, together with many of his colleagues, was decidedly of the opinion that no such decision would be forthcoming. The general feeling was that the administration, having made its position plain, for the record, by the combined messages of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull on yesterday, would let the situation rest at that.

Hull repeated arguments he has made for repeal of the present neutrality law's mandatory embargo on arms shipments to belligerents, and the president endorsed the secretary of state's views, adding in a message of his own that "in the light of world conditions" it was "highly advisable" to act at this session.

It was apparent, however, that the situation in congress was unchanged and even some advocates of the ad-

COOPER SAYS SALES TAX MUST BE PAID

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Collector of Revenue W. A. Cooper warned today that the sales tax is still in effect in Louisiana and that those who do not pay it when it is due will be forced to pay penalties.

Talk of repealing the tax in its entirety has been heard from many sections of the state since Governor Earl K. Long took the oath of office on June 26. Governor Long himself has stated that he is considering a plan for substituting the bracket system of collection for the tokens now in use and expressed the opinion that the major portion of the opposition to the tax was the use of tokens.

"The number of reports received by June 30 was off 1,500 from the previous month," Cooper said. "So far as I know there is no plan for repealing the sales tax. So long as the tax is in effect I will exert every effort to collect it and those who do not pay it when due are making themselves subject to the penalties which are imposed on delinquent returns."

'I Was Fired Because I Would Not Lie For Higher-Ups'---Monget

Man Discharged By Crutcher Says Only Offense Was Telling Truth

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Mark L. Monget, discharged today as WPA construction superintendent at Louisiana State university, made public the following statement:

"I was fired not for any wrongdoing of my own, for I have done no wrong, but I was fired because I refused to lie to cover up for some of the higher-ups. I was discharged immediately after it became known that I had given a full and complete statement of everything I knew to federal investigators.

"My summary dismissal is intended as a warning to other employes and possible witnesses before the federal

3 KILLED, 5 HURT IN PLANE CRASH

Coast Guard Craft, Rescuing Sick Sailor, Falls In Attempting Take-Off

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—A coast guard hydroplane which flew 150 miles out to sea today and picked up a sick sailor from a scientific vessel, crashed in taking off again, killing three men and injuring five others.

The plane sank before the three bodies could be recovered; the five other men were rescued by the ship, the ketch Atlantis from the Oceanographic institute at Woods Hole, Mass.

Medical aid for the survivors, the extent of whose injuries was not learned immediately, was rushed tonight on the coast guard cutter Campbell, after the cutter Pontchartrain, with no medical facilities, had stood by the Atlantis several hours.

The sick man, for whom the hydroplane left New York this morning, was Temple Priest, 36, former Boston real estate man, who had gone to sea for his health and had been stricken with pneumonia.

He was killed when the plane crashed, along with Lieutenant William Lee Clemmer, skipper of the plane, and John Radan, Jr., aviation pilot of Bessemer, Pa.

When the plane crashed, the Atlantis made futile attempts to place a line on the plane and then rescued Russell D. Hayes, a yeoman of Patchogue, N. Y.; Frank L. Evers, radio man of Brooklyn; Carl Simon, mechanic of Williamsville, N. Y.; Charles R. Whelan, mechanic of Brooklyn, and Walter B. Salter, also a Brooklyn mechanic. Hayes and Evers were reported as suffering fractures of the spine.

Two coast guard planes which arrived later were warned by Captain Frederick McMurray of the Atlantis not to land.

Priest, a native of Watertown, Mass., shipped on the Atlantis as a seaman to recuperate from ill health. It was his first trip to sea. He was employed by an aviation company in Falmouth, Mass., and is survived by his widow and a son, Benjamin, 5.

JAPAN COURTING FAVOR OF U. S.

Continually Pictures England As Villain And America Condoning Friend

TOKYO—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Some of Japan's leading public men are searching assiduously for means of mending the tatters in Japan's relations with the United States; business leaders, especially, are eager to patch things up with America.

This movement has considerable public support. The Japanese people have given ample evidence of their wish to retain the United States' friendship and their hopes are encouraged by official policy of withholding much information of American-Japanese friction.

All this fits in well with government policy. If there is one bogey Japanese leaders fear more than others it is the possibility of concerted policy and action in the Far East by the two great Anglo-Saxon nations to oppose Japan's ambitions to dominate east Asia. Ever since the invasion of China began two years ago, there has been a studied effort to differentiate between the treatment of Britain and America in China and to cultivate in the minds of the people a distinction between the two English-speaking nations. Japanese diplomacy seeks to keep the two apart.

Britain is consistently pictured as the chief villain of the piece; America as the understanding and condoning friend.

There are many evidences of the anxiety of the Japanese people to believe this. Some leaders would have Japan even turn her back on her totalitarian pals—Germany and Italy—and cast her lot entirely with—not the so-called European democracies—but the United States. When an American cruiser last spring brought home the body of Hiroshi Saito, former ambassador who died in Washington, it was the occasion of a great outpouring of popular sentiment of gratitude to and friendship for the United States. Japanese were anxious to believe it meant all was forgiven—the sinking of the Panay and the closing of China's Open Door to America trade.

When the American ambassador, Joseph Clark Grew, left Japan in May for a trip home, Japanese newspapers and magazines were fulsome in praise of his work and expression of wishes for his return.

Shortly thereafter Ryutaro Hagai, ex-minister of communications, was commissioned to write an "open letter" to President Roosevelt, outlining Japan's aims and objectives and entire position in the Orient today.

In private talks, important Japanese go much further when they discuss the growing movement for a rapprochement with the United States.

This does not embrace all sections of the government and the nation. Japan, despite her appearance of intenso solidarity, is a complex of groups with sharply opposite beliefs, ideas and principles.

Under pressure of the Chinese war, the right-wing elements are in the saddle today. But the influence of the others cannot be discounted, and it is in these groups that the belief

Commerce Body Calls For Thorough Probe Of Graft

The senior and junior boards of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe, in a joint session held Friday, by resolution congratulated President Roosevelt, Governor Earl Long, Attorney General Murphy and all inquisitorial bodies of the federal and state government in their announced intention to ferret out corruption which is charged to high state officials and to the diverting of public money to private use.

A similar resolution had been previously passed by the Association of Commerce in New Orleans and by the Chamber of Commerce in Shreveport.

The resolution, which was passed unanimously, reads as follows:

"Be it resolved by the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe:

"1. This association extends its heartiest congratulations to President Roosevelt, Governor Earl K. Long, Attorney General Murphy, the department of justice, the treasury department, the federal grand jury and the East Baton Rouge parish grand jury for the investigations now being made which have brought to light corruption by certain high officials in the state of Louisiana who have been diverting public money to their private use.

"2. The scandal resulting from the revelations of this investigation to date has spread throughout the nation to such an extent that the confidence of business men of the country has been shaken in anything pertaining to Louisiana, and the honest business men and citizens of Louisiana have been placed in an intolerable position. The only way to restore confidence essential to the welfare of the business interests of this state is to bring to light every instance of graft, corruption and irregular practices in public office and bring to justice every person responsible therefor.

"3. Every instance of dishonesty in public office should be revealed and prosecuted, so that confidence of the people of Louisiana in their government may be restored. A full and

EVIDENCE TAKEN DURING INQUIRY WILL BE POOLED

Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge Will Be In Charge

Lorio Resigns As Medical Society Head, Suspended From L. S. U. Post

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Scores of federal investigators combing the state for evidences of law violation were called to New Orleans tonight for a day-long conference tomorrow with Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, of Washington, where evidence will be pooled preliminary to grand jury action expected Monday.

Rogge, who has charge of the criminal division of the department of justice, was due here late tonight from Chicago to head the widespread federal probe into which treasury, justice, postal, congressional, interior, WPA and PWA agents already have been drawn following startling disclosures of irregularities thus far centered around Louisiana State university.

United States District Attorney Rene A. Viosca tonight said these agents and officials would spend all day tomorrow going over all evidence gathered by all agencies and that presented to the grand jury by scores of witnesses as a preliminary step to expected indictments. Viosca refused even to guess when the first federal indictments would be returned, though indications have been they were expected momentarily.

Meanwhile having thoroughly dispelled belief of some who feared it would be a "whitewash" body, the East Baton Rouge parish grand jury today sent for former Governor Richard W. Leche to appear Monday and tell what he knows of irregularities at Louisiana State university preceding resignation of James Monroe Smith as president three weeks ago, and the circumstances of his resignation.

Armed with a grant of $5,000 to extend its activities, District Attorney Dewey Sanchez said the jury's investigation would "be continued and broadened." The money was provided by the parish police jury today at the grand jury's request.

Dr. Clarence A. Lorio, close friend, lieutenant and consultant physician to Huey P. Long on his deathbed, resigned his presidency of the Louisiana State Medical society today following his indictment last night by the grand jury, together with E. N. Jackson, business manager of the university. Both men were immediately suspended from their university connections by Dr. Paul M. Hebert, acting president. Lorio was university physician and member of its board of supervisors.

The men were charged with embezzlement of university property and having in their possession embezzled and stolen university material. Both indictments also linked the men with George Caldwell, former superintendent of construction at the university, whom Leche employed to build tenant houses, a barn and other improvements at his estate at Covington, La., where he now is resting.

Leche subsequently said he paid Caldwell by checks which he could produce "if there is anything wrong." Caldwell also has been arrested by federal authorities on charges of having diverted WPA resources at L. S. U. to private use. He was released

VIEWS ON BUSINESS IN CAPITAL VARY

BATON ROUGE, La., July 15.—(AP)—Business men gave varying opinions today on trade conditions here since the Louisiana State university scandal broke three weeks ago.

"I don't believe it has affected our business at all," said the manager of the state capital's largest department store. "We're getting ready now for our fall buying and we expect to buy more than ever."

"Jittery and unsettled" was the description of conditions given by Henry Cohn, manager of a principal men's clothing shop.

Roy Heidelberg, manager of the capital's largest hotel, bearing his name, estimated business at his hostelry, gathering place for politicians, has been at a 12½ per cent increase during the past three weeks.

J. E. Dame, manager of a branch here of a national department store chain, said: "Business varies considerably in the summer months; however, business has dropped off some in the past three weeks."

Dame said orders totaling $1,404 were cancelled at his place following Governor Earl K. Long's edict that in cases where both man and wife were employed by the state at salaries exceeding $100 one would be discharged from state employ.

A grocer said his business had remained practically the same.

Mr. Saenger reported for the retail merchants' division. He said that there were last year three good will tours made. This year one has been held with success. A dollar day will be conducted on July 19 and a total of three are planned this year. He specially emphasized the value of a consumers' survey that is now being made in which 900 women, 200 in the Twin Cities and 700 in 13 cities in northeast Louisiana outside of Ouachita parish, have been asked to express their opinion of the Twin City stores as trading centers. They are asked to register what they like and dislike about them and to suggest how conditions can be improved if deemed best. He said this survey will be exceedingly valuable and will furnish a cross-section of what the other fellow may think about us.

Mr. Masur told of the assurance of three buses to carry students to and from the Northeast Junior college this fall, and that a fourth will be secured if business warrants. The matter of a trade school for Monroe also was discussed and it was explained that this will require action by the next session of the state legislature.

Mr. Orchard explained that it is desired to purchase a multigraph machine that will be able to reproduce photographs and which will be used exclusively for the issuing of the Chamber of Commerce bulletins. The cost will be $345 but will be such as to give the membership of the Chamber a close-up view of what is being accomplished by various projects. After discussion, the members voted to purchase the machine.

SOLONS NEUTRAL IN MISSISSIPPI

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Whatever position the state's two United States senators may take in the coming Mississippi Democratic primaries, her representatives in the lower house apparently intend to continue a hands-off attitude.

Senator Pat Harrison is known to be interested in more than one candidate for governor in the first primary, August 8, and although he is not on record in this campaign, he is expected to plunge pell mell into the campaign preceding the run-off voting three weeks later.

As to where his support will go depends on the results of the first primary.

On the other hand, Senator Theo G. Bilbo, "strong as horse radish" for Paul Johnson for governor, said he would "sniff the battle from afar," at least during the first primary "unless my enemies drive me into the fight."

"If they let me alone," he said, "I won't make any speeches. But, my enemies can make me get into the fight."

Harrison already has said he would return to Mississippi to vote August 8 and that he would remain in the state until after the run-off primary, whether congress had adjourned by then or not.

Like the senators, all the congressmen will return home to vote since there is no provision for casting absentee ballots in Mississippi.

"I reckon I've got my hands full up here," said Representative Wall Doxey, "and haven't had time to keep up with all the politics going on now. All I know is what I see in the papers. Of course, I'm going home to vote."

And that about expressed the viewpoint of John Rankin, who said he was concerned just now with the distress caused by recent floods in his district and the TVA battle.

"The people of Mississippi are thoroughly capable of selecting their own officials without any suggestion from me," Rankin added.

Representative Will Whittington also made it clear he was not openly advocating anybody's election.

"I'm planning to return to Mississippi to vote in the primary," was all he would say.

And Representative A. L. Ford thought "the people have been nice enough to me without my asking them to vote for somebody else. I'm going home to vote just like every citizen should."

Representative W. I. Colmer proved to have positive convictions on the subject. He said he would follow his "usual" course of staying out of other people's campaigns. He, too, will go home to vote, "since that is the duty of every citizen."

But, try to get him to say how he'll vote!

Ross Collins, too, declined to get into a discussion of the elections down home.

"I'm going home to vote, too," he said, "but I've adopted a strict hands-off policy."

Representative Rankin turned his thoughts to the new United States supreme court this week.

"In front of the building," he said, "they made no provision to take care of the water. The water that falls in front of the supreme court building runs 79 yards before it reaches the street, after flowing across the sidewalk, and everybody who walks along that sidewalk in front of the building has to wade that water day in and day out because of lack of provision to take care of it."

He also charged the supreme court room was "too small to accommodate the public," and that the acoustics were "miserable."

And, he added, slyly:

"I understand that a majority of the members who are now on the bench, and who were serving at the time they moved into this building, voted against doing so. I am told that on the proposition of moving into this building the court did so by a divided vote of 5 to 4."

He said he thought it was a mistake to move the supreme court out of the capitol building.

Four Million Starvelings

"What are we to do [illegible] a welfare official [illegible] with the 1,466 half-starved [illegible] parish? These children can not be given [illegible] for dependent children since they have fathers [illegible] are [illegible] as able-bodied."

It is [illegible] that there are four million such half-starved children in the United States—not in China, but in the rich [illegible] United States where there is so much food that the [illegible] farmers not to grow food. [illegible]

What about these half-starved children who have fathers [illegible] can't provide for them?

Most fathers [illegible] care for their children, but there is a large [illegible] care. There is a large number [illegible] children go half-fed than to work [illegible] a home garden to put flesh on their [illegible].

There is a sizable number of fathers who are not fit for fatherhood [illegible] fit for liberty. They do not know the meaning of liberty. They think liberty gives them the right not to do anything they do not wish to do, not to shoulder any responsibility they wish to shirk.

And there is also a sizable number of fathers who are bewildered. They do not know what to do with liberty. They want to live in freedom, but freedom confuses them. They can not function in freedom. The only way they can get along is to have someone definitely plan their lives, and tell them [illegible] what to do and make them do it.

So these fathers of many half-starved children who are bewildered by liberty, or who do not worry about responsibility, who won't work if they can help it, and if they do work, drink or gamble away their earnings, should have their lives planned and directed by local officials whose business it is to see that fathers who can not care for their children or will not shall do so.

Every community should have its supervisor whose business is to see that fathers of undernourished children get [illegible] and use their earnings to feed their families, [illegible] fathers with garden land at their disposal plant kitchen gardens, and do other things within their power to nourish their children.

And there should be teeth in the laws that create these supervisors. Fathers who will not cooperate in the care of their children should be dealt with severely. They should be put to work by the authorities on public projects and their wages paid to their families. A man who lets his family go hungry because he won't plant a hill of beans should be considered a culprit who should be punished.

It would not take long to get the idea going: "Well, anyway, I must have a kitchen garden, or the supervisor will be around here and ask me 'How come.'"

Ignorance, indifference, laziness, bewilderment—these causes and many others make some persons not know what to do with liberty. There is such a thing as too much liberty.

We have made a fetish of liberty. Liberty is fine; it is wonderful. All men are entitled to liberty who know what to do with it and will do something with it. But when men do not know what to do with liberty, or refuse to do anything with it, then that is something to do something about.

REAL AID FOR AGRICULTURE

A logical aid to the solution of the problem of agricultural surpluses, is increased consumer consumption. That such aid is practical and possible has been dramatically illustrated during the past two or three years, in the many consumer-producer campaigns conducted on behalf of "distressed" crops by tens of thousands of American retail stores.

The campaigns were inaugurated by the food chains. Afterwards organized independents joined in. So did variety, hardware, mail order stores and others.

Beef, lamb, fresh fruits, canned fruits, nuts, poultry, citrus fruits, beans, dairy products—these are but a few of the products on whose behalf, at the request of the farmers concerned, American retailing has gone to the bat. And in most cases it has knocked out home runs. In no case has it struck out. During the campaign periods, ranging in length from a few days to weeks, consumption has been greatly increased at prices fair to all involved.

Furthermore, it has been proven that these drives were effective not only during the campaign time. Consumers discovered new appetites and learned the pleasure of more varied, better balanced meals. And they kept on buying.

When the farmer and the retailer get together, everyone, including the consumer, is benefited.

NEUTRALITY THE AIM

Revision of the neutrality act is being urged by administration supporters as a deterrent to Europe's war mongers. The idea is that an implicit tieup with France and Great Britain may prevent an outbreak of military strife.

But why should American foreign policy be predicated upon possible European developments?

A neutrality act should be designed with a view to keeping America out of war, not with a view to mixing into the affairs of another continent.

The World war proved that close connections, financial or otherwise, make neutrality virtually impossible. Let America recognize that fact and avoid the fatal errors of two decades ago.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON. Three things seem to be on the dirt farmer's mind these days. They are tractors, landlords and the WPA.

Written in lead pencil, misspelled and ungrammatical often enough—some hundreds of the most interesting documents imaginable repose in the files of the department of agriculture's bureau of agricultural economics. The bureau gets them more or less by accident, but they are an invaluable cross-section of the farmer's state of mind.

Every year the bureau sends out a questionnaire to some 22,000 farmers. Each farmer fills it [illegible] information about population changes in his particular [illegible] section and returns it; that way the bureau can get a pretty accurate check on rural population shifts.

But a lot of these farmers turn the questionnaire over before mailing it, and write down their own comments on the farm problem, the state of the nation or life in general.

State-By-State Complaints

A Kansas farmer, for instance, writes as follows:

"There is a [illegible] existing on farms in this locality which can work no good. I am contributing to the evil along with the rest. Five of the farms listed in this report are usually vacant or occupied by temporary residents wholly or in part on relief. What takes their place? The farmer who has a better [illegible] rents another farm, buys a tractor and combine, puts a larger area in small grain, and runs two farms instead of one. It may be modern but it doesn't have a very bright future."

And an Illinois farmer says:

"[illegible] hired man is hired the year around at $40 per month. Says he [illegible] WPA [illegible] hours off [illegible] plenty of [illegible] looking for surplus [illegible] stuff and get paid for following the lines of least resistance."

An Iowan [illegible] this:

"[illegible] necessary [illegible] to use tractors and farm at least [illegible] Hired help [illegible] to secure [illegible] WPA [illegible] operators are turning to labor-saving machinery [illegible]."

A Texan [illegible] about the questionnaire:

"[illegible] these things? The government [illegible] these people. The WPA either can't [illegible] there wouldn't be a bar[illegible] years."

One Hits Human Weakness

I examined some [illegible] of these documents. Over and over these notes recur—[illegible] tractors [illegible] farms being combined into large ones [illegible] tenants [illegible]. But some blame pure human cussedness. [illegible] after discussing various reasons for the [illegible] makes this observation:

"There [illegible] too lazy to work. He gets in an [illegible] patent medicines or some other worthless [illegible] of suckers to bite on the bait he has to offer. The [illegible] a farm in these days is considered of no consequence. A [illegible] to slap a good stiff tax on."

But [illegible] gloom. Let an Iowan close the story:

"Very few changes in this locality. Very few closing-out sales. All farmers seem quite content."

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 15—There's significance in the failure-to-arrive of three movie stars—Lionel Stander, John Garfield and Melvyn Douglas—who had been billed for a San Francisco fund-raising appearance on behalf of Harry Bridges, alien labor leader facing deportation for alleged Communistic activities. Messrs. Stander, Garfield and Douglas being men who pride themselves on their independence, would of course deny it, but it is very obvious that the picture industry's bosses are at long last bringing pressure to bear on stars who insist on sticking their famous noses into bitter controversies which do not, primarily, concern Hollywood.

And it's high time that someone took steps to squelch them for unquestionably they are making enemies for the entire industry. Mind you, I'm not saying that Harry Bridges should or should not, be deported. I'm not saying that the sympathies of these militant stars are well-placed, or misplaced. I don't pretend to know anything about such issues, but I do know from a multitude of letters received, that every time a Hollywood celebrity identifies himself with a red-hot, major controversy, he offends thousands of people. Those people promptly take out their resentment by boycotting pictures in which the star appears. That isn't healthy for the other members of the cast, and it isn't healthy for the movie industry, which just now is fighting a desperate battle for survival.

It seems to me that motion picture stars owe their first loyalty to the business that provides their livlihood—not to some pet "ism" that has excited their emotional responses.

Idol Chatter: News that James Cagney has landed a big pay boost is not surprising—he's always been centsative about his profession. In need of a good picture to revive fading prestige: Robert Montgomery. You'd be surprised if you knew how zealously Garbo follows the advice of her pet fortune-teller. Watching Gracie Allen trying out a new gag always makes me think of that old catch line about the "wheels of industry spinning around. Nominated for the friendliest personality award: Olivia de Haviland. Gary Cooper looks more like my idea of the typical American every day he lives. Cause and effect: Mae West's walk—and my sudden yen for an Hawaiian vacation. Things I never expect to see: Charles Boyer without a worried expression.

There's an interesting story behind the fact that Lind Hayes, recently signed by Paramount as a result of his fine performance in "Million Dollar Legs," chose Peter Hayes as a screen name when studio czars objected to his own monicker. Lind's famous mother Grace Hayes was born while her father was quite ill. He wanted a boy—wanted one so badly that the sex of his baby was concealed from him for weeks after her birth. Believing that his wishes had been gratified, he named the baby "Peter." And Grace Hayes was known by that name all through her childhood and still is to old friends of the family.

Gus Edwards, credited with the discovery of more stage and screen stars than any other one man, will resume the production of kid shows on the New York stage as soon as he completes supervisoral duties on Paramount's "The Star-maker."

Odd-Formation: If you're technically-minded, give a gasp for the 600,000 amperes of "juice" required to light the jungle set for "Dr. Cyclops" . . . Add insomnia fighters: Jeanette MacDonald—she always dons a black velvet mask on retiring in order to shut out all light . . . Human Side Of The News

[illegible] a great [illegible] As the television camera [illegible] there is a definite limit to the spread of landscape, depth and swiftly changing focus which can be managed [illegible]. The best results are obtained with fairly close-in shots, with the goings on safely in range, and under control, subject to repeated rehearsals [illegible] sary, in short, studio work, and [illegible] for some form of vaudeville seems to come nearer to anything else in meeting these specifications.

The television people are convinced that they will have to offer a mite more exciting than a speaker or a singer. They are combing every field for possibilities and that is bringing out of the old midtown actors' boarding houses forgotten men and women who used to get top-billing in electric lights, 15 or 20 years ago.

"Listen, Sam, that dude policeman act of mine had 'em rolling in the aisles. Olly Morosco comes around back and he says, 'Mel,' he says, 'I want a big piece of you. I've got a spot for you in the biggest show anybody ever pulled around here and it means a stack of dough so big you couldn't run and jump over it.' Olly would have done it, too, but you know he got all jammed up and then came those movies. But let me at this television. I'm set to see this Gilbert Seldes next week and if I don't sell him an act."

I was surprised to discover how almost unfailingly the vaudevillians blame the moving pictures for their troubles. This hostility is more marked among the old troupers, who used to get their living from the road, rather than among the younger and less traveled entertainers. Their story is that it was the picture show monopoly of theaters in inland cities and towns, rather than better entertainment which put the short-turn specialties out of business. They are happily on fire with the idea that their old enemy is done for.

I have an idea that the movies are a pretty lively corpse and that television hasn't yet put on its seven-league boots. Technicians tell me that there are tremendous problems still to be solved, and that the radio and movie magnates have no call to be losing any sleep. There is also to be noted the fact that the two latter are no longer gim-crack affairs, and will not easily be dislodged from their hard-won place as purveyors of both information and entertainment, even by such a dazzling miracle as television.

Again [illegible] than hurting the picture houses [illegible] people.

That Body of Yours

LARGE UNHURRIED BREAKFAST MAY CORRECT CONSTIPATION

"The hustle and bustle of the average person's day [illegible] this machine age, the lack of time to create a habit, improper foods or breakfast diets pandering to the almost universal desire for slenderness, insufficient fluid intake, and other factors contribute to the prevalence of constipation."

I am quoting Dr. Clayton C. Perry, Cleveland, O., in an article on constipation in "Medical World."

I believe Dr. Perry's statement that "the lack of time to create a habit" is one of the great truths as to the cause of constipation. With a great many individuals there is the hurried breakfast and no time for or thought of the intestinal habit. And so common is constipation that he states further:

"It is so rare in my experience to find a patient who is not constipated that I have come to look with awe and wonder at those who tell me that their bowels move naturally and regularly. A review of 200 consecutive case histories of patients examined in my office (except cancer patients) revealed that 129 complained of constipation and used cathartics. Among the 71 non-constipated patients, however, there were several with diarrhoea and colitis. If these cases are excluded, the number with normal bowel habits is small."

One of the conclusions come to by Dr. Perry is that a large breakfast is one of the most important factors in correcting constipation. With this conclusion most physicians will agree because a hurried light breakfast does not give the impulse to the digestive tract to move and drive wastes downward. The very weight or heaviness of a meal will, in itself, give stronger impulses to the whole digestive tract—stomach, small intestine and large intestine.

It is difficult for the average individual to sit down and eat a good breakfast in a leisurely manner, and to take time to sit down and read the paper for a few minutes after breakfast seems impossible. Yet, if this same individual were to retire a half hour earlier, and get up a half hour earlier, he could easily eat a larger, unhurried breakfast, read his paper, and reach office or factory in plenty of time.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

When a child of 14 or 15 doesn't know enough to turn on the light to see to read [illegible] continues to strain [illegible] in an attempt to read [illegible] parents [illegible] stop reading, turn on the [illegible] properly." [illegible] grown [illegible] are making mistakes [illegible] their [illegible] read them [illegible] idea of [illegible] bring themselves [illegible].

It is a parent's [illegible] to prevent any [illegible] teach him to observe the laws of health, of courtesy, of work and of life generally. [illegible] the support and help of more experienced parents. No child should be left to his own mistaken notions. But an item of the gravest importance in this matter, that guidance must be made acceptable to the preadolescent and adolescent child, or it cannot serve. Forced obedience at this age is worse than useless.

One speaks to a child about a mistake in order to have him do the right way, not just this time, but all the time thereafter. If obedience is of the forced order at this stage, the child will grudgingly do what he is made to, but he will not resolve to keep on doing it thereafter. His cooperation has not been secured because his mind was attacked instead of being invited. That makes all the difference in life.

Little children who have not reached the stage of reflective memory, whose experiences are so limited as to make their judgments negligible, must depend altogether on the guidance, direction and authority of their parents. But this stage of growth must be so set that their experiences lead to willing cooperation in the years to follow when reflective intelligence is to the fore. The experiences in obedience that a child meets with in these formative years are what lay the foundation for rebellion or pleased cooperation.

When there is no feeling of cooperation between parents and their adolescent children, no friendliness to smooth the irritations that are certain to rise in the best reared family, there is little to hope from authority save passing acquiescence to force. That serves the minute, but it goes no further. Often it lessens any chance of the parent's influence being successful in the future.

If such a situation exists between parents and children it would be the better part of discretion to try to build up the better, more useful relationship of friendliness. Go about it sensibly. Ask the child's opinion about the matter in question and talk it over with him as you would if he were near your own age. He will be quick to appreciate this attitude because it gives him the recognition that his personality is craving, and you may be able to set a better relationship.

In any case, one has to remember that the time for exacting unquestioning, prompt obedience is in the first two years of the child's life, and also, that such experiences must teach the child that this authority is just, kind and wise. Otherwise the child learns that obedience is not a matter for his comfort and happiness but something that suits the grownup. That leaves him with nothing but force to depend on for his guidance, and the parent that depends upon that is leaning on a broken staff.

For help in mastering the task of teaching your children to obey, send for Angelo Patri's booklet, "Obedience," enclosing 10 cents. Address Angelo Patri, care this newspaper, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

The Crown That Rules Nation Without a King

IT isn't worth much as royal crowns go—a jeweler probably would value its gold and jewels at about $1500—but to the people of Hungary the Crown of St. Stephen is the greatest treasure in the world. To them it is the symbol of hope, of faith in some future monarch who will restore Hungary to former greatness.

While the crown remains the nation's sole link with the monarchy, and all acts of legislature and courts are "in the name of the Sacred Crown," Regent-Governor Nicholas Horthy de Nagybanya holds the power. He is the uncrowned king of Hungary.

For 19 years he has guided the destinies of his country. His technique in seizing power and eliminating his enemies has made precedent for other dictators to follow. Trained in the relentless discipline of the Imperial Navy—he still retains the title "Admiral"—Horthy has led Hungary out of the terror of post-war revolution, has steadily strengthened the military and economic position of this last remnant of the Hapsburg empire.

Horthy has made no attempt to seize the crown for himself. Rather, he has built a greater nation for some future king to rule.

The crown that unknown king will wear is shown on the Hungarian stamp above, olive green, of the series of 1938, commemorating the 900th anniversary of the death of St. Stephen. The stamp was overprinted upon the annexation of Czech territory.

A Doberman Pinscher from Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters at Halifax traced a man who had broken out of jail here to a hide-out about 33 miles from the jail.

Farmers' cash income for the month of May totaled $508,000,000, an increase of 10 per cent on the estimate of $463,000,000 for April and $2,000,000 below the income reported for May, 1938.

Selig And Myatt Have Excellent Homes For Sale

Before buying or building, prospective Twin City home owners would do well to get in touch with Jonas Selig and Morton Myatt, licensed real estate dealers in charge of sales of all properties owned by the People's Homestead and Savings association.

Here are a few of the excellent homes they have to offer:

Six-room brick house at 1300 Park avenue. This residence has a permanent roof, textone walls and hardwood floors and is located on a corner lot 75 feet by 150 feet on paved streets. The price is only $6,500.

Six-room house at 3400 Richmond street. This one is located on a 150 by 160 foot corner lot. It has a new roof, has been newly painted and has new paper throughout. The electrical fixtures are far above the average and there are several wall and base receptacles in each room. It has a large bathroom and an extra guest lavatory, both with beautiful plumbing fixtures. Only $4,250 is being asked for this residence.

Five-room house at 601 North Fifth street, West Monroe. Located on corner lot 50 by 150 feet on paved streets. Price, $2,200.

Five-room house at 1218 Cypress street, West Monroe. Located on corner lot 100 by 160 feet with paving on Cypress. Price, $3,350. This is an excellent business location. The house could be moved to the back of the lot, leaving a corner 100 feet square for a commercial structure.

Six-room house at 1907 Jackson street. This is an unsurpassed value at $3,500.

A seven-acre tract facing Bayou DeSiard on DeSiard road. There is a large residence on this land. And besides being located in a pecan grove, it has all modern conveniences. Moreover, there are several other buildings on the tract. The price is only $7,000.

These and the many other homes Mr. Selig and Mr. Myatt have to offer may be had for a small cash payment and the remainder financed over a long period at only 5 1-2 per cent interest.

Don't delay. A home is an investment. Call Mr. Selig or Mr. Myatt. They maintain an office at the People's Homestead and Savings association and their telephone number there is 4990. Mr. Selig's residential phone is 978; Mr. Myatt's, 3382.

PART OF PLANT OF M. KAPLAN AND SON

Here you see the office and a portion of the large plant at Ninth and Adams streets of M. Kaplan and Son, one of the largest concerns of its kind in the south. It deals in reclaimed machinery, new and used pipe, structural steel and industrial supplies of all kinds. Officials of the firm are now calling gin operators attention to the fact that the establishment is in a position to fill many of their needs. It has a complete stock of belting, pulleys, pipe, pipe fittings, boiler feed pumps, boilers, engines and structural steel shapes. Gas and oil field operators will find there all the pipe they need for drilling and for lines and drilling rigs parts, as well. In front of the plant, slightly to the right of the picture, is a truck equipped with a crane. This truck is utilized by M. Kaplan and Son in moving heavy machinery. Used pipe fabricated in the modern machine shop operated by M. Kaplan and Son in reclaiming machinery was used in the construction of the two sheds to the right. The firm introduced the use of used pipe for structural purposes in this section. Such structural material is now widely used.

Lane Wilson Has What's Needed To Condition Flocks

Poultry, when given proper attention and fed with care, can be a steady source of revenue.

Now is the time to condition flocks for maximum egg production during the fall and winter, when the price of eggs is high, according to officials of Lane Wilson Seed company, 113-115 North Grand street.

They suggest that flocks should be wormed and deloused. That molting fowls should be well fed. Feathers and eggs are products of the same proteins. Consequently, if molting hens are not given a balanced ration, their egg production will show a decided decline. However, if kept in good condition and properly fed, flocks will give at least 50 per cent egg production during the summer, they say.

Growing mash should be fed pullets from the time they are six weeks old until they reach 10 per cent production. This develops them into profitable laying hens. Thereafter, they should be kept well filled at all times.

Officials of Lane Wilson Seed company advocate the use of Wayne poultry feed. They maintain that this feed is superior and gives best results. Besides handling Wayne poultry feed, the establishment carries a full stock of worming and delousing remedies.

Moreover, Lane Wilson Seed company has a poultry expert on its staff who is glad at all times to assist patrons of the establishment with problems arising in their flocks.

The expert will supply the latest information on how to worm and delouse flocks and give detailed instruction on feeding and conditioning poultry for maximum egg production.

Now Is Time To Vaccinate Flocks

Now is the time to vaccinate chickens and turkeys against fowlpox and avian diphtheria. Soon the season for the diseases will be at hand; and once they start in a flock, it is too late to vaccinate.

That is the advice given by poultry experts at Tyner-Petrus company, seed, feed, fertilizer and farm supply firm at 311 Trenton street, West Monroe.

Calling attention to the fact that poultry is one of the best paying farm sidelines when given proper attention, they stressed the fact that more chickens and turkeys are lost through fowlpox and avian diptheria than any other two diseases.

The proper vaccines for the prevention of fowlpox and avian diptheria are handled by Tyner-Petrus company. And its poultry experts will administer them free of charge for flock owners who desire them to do so.

Three Contracts Awarded Lanham

Three contracts of importance were awarded recently to Lanham Electric company, 110 Jackson street. They include the electrical work on the Grayson shop, open shortly on DeSiard street; on the addition to the Ouachita Parish High school; and in connection with the remodeling and enlargement of the Woman's shop.

Lanham Electric company, the telephone number of which is 3488, does all kinds of electrical wiring, commercial and residential; engages in every form of electrical installation; handles household appliances and fixtures; and operates an electrical repair shop second to none.

The repair department particularly excels in putting fans in first class condition. It is equipped to recondition any kind of fan—ceiling fan, buzz fan, exhaust fan or attic fan. You can rely on a fan to give maximum performance when it has been overhauled by Lanham Electric company.

If your troubles are electrical, call Lanham Electric company. Incidentally, members of the firm suggest that now is the opportune time to modernize your home electrically. It can be done at an amazingly moderate cost. Estimates on such jobs are cheerfully furnished, without obligation, by the firm.

Acousticon Will Restore Hearing

No matter to what degree you are hard of hearing—and, according to the United States public health service, only half of the population of the nation has full hearing—you can overcome your handicap with an Acousticon.

Acousticons may be had in this area from Acousticon Institute of Shreveport. Air conduction, non-amplifier sets may be had for as little as $47; bone conduction sets, for $75.

All Acousticons are fully guaranteed and are periodically serviced by Acousticon Institute of Shreveport. V. Nesbitt, manager, will be in Monroe tomorrow, and longer if his presence in the city is required. He will be at Hotel Frances, where he will be glad to confer with the hard of hearing residing in Monroe and vicinity.

If you are hard of hearing, you should visit Mr. Nesbitt at Hotel Frances. The hearing devices he will demonstrate for you have the approval of the council of physical therapy of the American Medical association.

Deafness is more than a handicap. But although it is such, it can be rectified with an Acousticon. An Acousticon will enable you to regain your mental and physical balance. It will relieve all you come in contact with of the strain of loud talking.

Deafness is a source of worry, sadness, sorrow, financial losses and even tragedies. If you are a victim—and many are without being aware of it—you should take steps to remedy the affliction.

See Mr. Nesbitt tomorrow, while he is in the city conducting demonstrations of Acousticons and servicing those already in use. He visits Monroe each month. The Shreveport address of Acousticon institute is 231 Ricou-Brewster building.

Pole Trailer Made By Frost Popular

No better pole trailers, which are particularly adapted to logging purposes, are built than those manufactured in West Monroe by Frost Trailer and Supply company, located at 1214 Cypress street.

Frost pole trailers are in use throughout north Louisiana and south Arkansas, and truck operators and lumbermen swear by them. They are sturdy, built to take the punishment that their uses demand.

Another popular trailer made by Frost Trailer and Supply company is its light stock and cattle trailer. This trailer is especially designed for operators of small farms.

Frost Trailer and Supply company doesn't confine itself to these two types, however. It builds a number of other kinds; and, in fact, it will manufacture any kind to order.

Moreover, the concern handles a complete line of trailer parts and equipment, including the famous Midland power brakes, and engages in repairs to all makes of trailers.

Buy your trailers where they can be conveniently serviced. Frost trailers are fully guaranteed to stand up under the tasks for which they were designed.

Fans Repaired By Bernelle-Nettles

The place to get your electric fans overhauled is Bernelle-Nettles Radio and Electric service, operated in connection with Bernelle's garage at 311 Ouachita avenue. The establishment engages in reconditioning of electric motors of all kinds, in rewinding and otherwise repairing armatures and in overhauling both home and auto radios.

All work done by Bernelle-Nettles Radio and Electric service, like all work done by Bernelle's garage, is guaranteed. And both concerns are noted for the moderateness of their charges.

The garage is equipped and staffed to handle any kind of automobile repair job, from changing a spark plug to rebuilding the machine. As an indication as to the completeness of its equipment: The garage has a lathe that enables it to restore injured brake drums to factory specifications. This alone enables it to save motorists plenty money.

For the convenience of the public in general, as well as its steady patrons, Bernelle's garage remains open day and night and a competent mechanic is always on duty. Moreover, it operates one of the most dependable wrecker services in the city.

Terms to suit can be arranged on all major jobs at Bernelle's garage. So when in distress on the highway or byways, just call telephone number 2044.

BACKFIRE BLAMED FOR AUTO BLAZE

Backfire was blamed yesterday for a fire in the automobile of Louis Johnston at 2300 Louisville avenue late yesterday morning, according to Monroe firemen who extinguished the blaze in a short time.

Firemen were also called to the home of George McMullen, 106 Eighth street, yesterday afternoon when an awning was ignited. The fire was confined to the awning, firemen said.

Late Friday night firemen extinguished a blaze at the First Baptist church, colored, 321 North Eighth street.

Three [illegible] the third frame gave the Crackers the lead. Harold Gregory beat out an infield hit. Ray fanned but Taylor Clark singled into center field sending Gregory to second. Gregory scored on Manager "Dusty" Rhodes single into center field and Clark went to third. Woods Hargrove got a [illegible] single past Hackney at second scoring Clark and sending Rhodes to third. Rhodes scored on Winford B[illegible] sacrifice fly to Hill in center field.

The Crackers scored once more in the fifth when Woods Hargrove beat out a grounder to Conway in deep short, went to second when Hank Taylor dropped a third strike on Brown and scored on John Taylor's single into center field.

The Sox also added one more run in their half of the fifth when Hank Taylor walked, went to third on John Yelovic's single and scored on Bob Hill's single.

Two more runs in the sixth inning gave the Sox a 5-to-4 lead. After two

Dallas And Quincy Golfers Match Strokes Today Over 36 Holes For Title

OKLAHOMA CITY [illegible]

[illegible]

Both players needed an extra hole [illegible]

Alexander, whose [illegible] his drive [illegible]

Todd overcame Steele's three-stroke margin and squared his match at the 22nd, only to see Steele grab the lead again at the 34th. The Texan caught him again on the 35th and they went to No. 1 for the third time after halving the 36th.

On the extra hole, the pressure caught Steele and he three putted. Todd was down with a par four to win the match.

Alexander was on the green with his second shot on the extra hole, but he also got the jitters and missed a three-foot putt, losing the match.

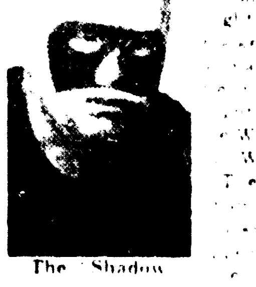
NEWCOMER WILL MEET GERMAN IN THURSDAY'S CARD

Dorsette To Tackle Von Bromberg; Local Amateurs In Curtain Raiser

Having been besieged with requests from fans for a return match between Sailor Watkins, the [illegible] Amarillo, Tex., grappler, and the irrepressible [illegible]



The Shadow

[illegible]

For the semi-[illegible] the promoter [illegible] Dorsette, native of [illegible] Von Bromberg, the German [illegible] Dorsette will make his [illegible] appearance here in the [illegible] matman, a [illegible] opponent to snare in legal holds and a danger as opponent for any grappler who elects to slug in the clinches. His powerful though short arms are like battering rams.

The semi-final will have a 30 minute time limit, two falls to win, in order to give 15 minutes of the program to a curtain-raising battle between Blackie Adams, 188, Brown Paper mill employe and a local business man. Identity of the latter amateur will not be revealed until the starting time of the match, in compliance with his own request.

Adams, known in baseball and general sports circles, has quite a following of friends and boosters who are expected to turn out to see him perform.

The evening's program will start at 8:30 o'clock.

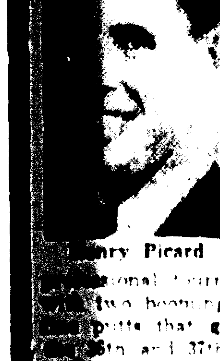
ICARD DEFEATS NELSON FOR P. G. A. TITLE

NS IN BIRDIES FINISH TO WIN UP IN 37 HOLES

ry Gives Hershey, Pa., olfer A Place On American Ryder Cup Team

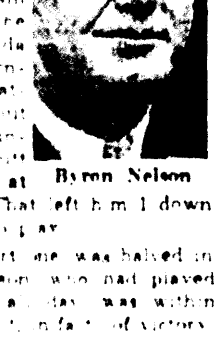
By Bill Boni

[illegible] YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Hand-[illegible] Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., [illegible]ing more fight than an aroused [illegible]otus and a better finishing kick than Glenn Cunningham, let loose with all he had on the closing holes today to beat out United States Open Champion Byron Nelson 1 up in 37 holes, and win the National P. G. A. golf championship.



Henry Picard

Before a gallery of 1,500 that saw one of the toughest yet one of the friendliest finals in the history of the [illegible]sional tournament, Picard won [illegible] two booming tee shots and two [illegible] putts that gave him birdies on [illegible] 36th and 37th holes. The lanky [illegible] had the shots when he needed [illegible] and the courage to make them. [illegible] even Babe [illegible] never came [illegible]rough better in [illegible] clutch."



Byron Nelson

Picard, whose victory was worth $1,100 and a place on the United States Ryder cup team [illegible] will meet the British in Florida in November, turned the tide of battle [illegible] by coming out of a trap and canning a 25-foot putt to [illegible] a half at the [illegible]th hole. That left him 1 down with two holes to play.

The 35th, a short one, was halved in [illegible] 3s and Nelson, who had played sensational golf all day, was within [illegible] hole [illegible] of victory. Nelson had the honor off the 36th [illegible] and hit a beauty that split the fairway. But Picard, knowing he had [illegible] it here, let loose with a terrific [illegible] that [illegible] ten yards [illegible] of the green, 300 yards away.

Nelson, playing first, laid one up [illegible] of the cup. Picard followed with a chip that stopped six [illegible] of the hole and laid his man [illegible] stymie. Nelson putted and [illegible] ball went wide. Still Picard had to sink his putt to square the match. The gallery hushed. Picard sighted along the line, tapped the ball, and it dropped in for a birdie 3.

It was Picard's honor off the 37th tee, and again the big six-footer gave it all he had. There was a slight slice on it, though, and the ball dropped into a group of galleryites lining the fairway, headed for a sand trap, but instead caromed off a news reel truck.

To give Henry room to play his approach, Nelson's drive had split the middle of the fairway, the truck backed up. As it did so, one wheel rolled over Picard's ball and pushed it down into the dirt. They had to call for a special ruling and Henry was informed he had the right to pick it up and drop it over his shoulder.

Meanwhile, Nelson had played his approach, six feet from the pin. Picard looked at that, took out his number 8 iron, and put his own ball within 10 feet of the flag.

Henry studied that putt carefully. He walked up the line to the cup and back again. He kneeled down to study the conformation of the green, something he rarely does. Then he hit it and, with never a waver from its proper line, the ball went straight for the cup.

That left Byron squarely on the spot but, in the friendly atmosphere that had surrounded the entire match, he looked the putt over, then turned to the gallery and said:

"Would anyone like to putt this one for me?"

With that, he stroked the ball. It rolled up, then veered wide of the cup. The week-long tournament, which produced an unprecedented number of sub-par cards and three days of extra-curricular fireworks over Denny Shute's status, was at an end.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, July 15—(AP)—Jimmy Grippo and Melio Bettina each dropped five grand on the Conn fight. . . . It was closer than that. . . . We picked Conn, but still think Bettina shaded him. . . . Baseball men say the Cards will be back in the thick of things in another month. Ray Blades has the hitters and runners and needs only a little pitching luck. . . . Morrie Arnovich's admirers are still wondering what a guy has to do to get into the All-Star game. . . . Well, why don't they ask Gabby Hartnett?

Embarrassing moment: Alex Fidler, the Cedar Rapids, Ia., athletic trainer, worked for 10 minutes massaging the right arm of a Three-Eye league hurler before the guy complained: "If it's all the same to you, mister, I'm a southpaw! ! !"

The World-Telegram came out today for night baseball in the Polo Grounds and Yankee stadium. . . . Note to bookies: Art Rooney, the Pittsburgh plunger who cleaned up on Conn at 1-3, will pass up the Saratoga meeting. . . . Suppose you noticed the Cubs are batting a poor last in the latest N. L. averages. . . . Home games at Washington will not be broadcast next year, but Clark Griffith will sell the out-of-town rights if anybody wants 'em.

Today's guest star: Roy Shudt, Troy (N. Y.) Record: "The only National leaguer who saw one of Bobby Feller's fast ones was Babe Phelps—and Umpire Magerkurth had to show it to him."

Note to Linus Frey: Manager Bill McKechnie says you are the most underrated player in the National league. . . . Bettina, who went into the scrap the underdog, was a 5-13 favorite after he won the first five heats. . . . Bettina still is the champ in Beacon. . . . They sent him to New York with three bands, but welcomed him home with four.

Protection: Jimmy Wilson's fine-looking 16-year-old son, Bobby, is making the eastern trip with the Reds. . . . He's a catcher, too. . . . To protect his amateur status, wise old Bill McKechnie is giving him spending money in stamps.

Heard and seen: Al Simmons trying to tear a telephone out by the roots in the lobby of the Copley-Plaza at Boston. . . . Urchins in front of the Garden pointing out Jack Miley, the hefty sports writer, as Paul Whiteman. . . . Professor Tom Swope of the Cincinnati Post looking in the cup for his lost golf balls on the swank St. Andrew's course in Westchester. . . . Frankie Parker's remodeled forehand failing to impress the eastern tennis critics. . . . Nat Fleischer, just back from Venezuela, reporting crowds lined up in Central and South American cities to see the Louis-Galento pictures.

Joe Cronin, whose Red Sox had just knocked the Yanks off five in a row, met Joe DiMaggio after the All-Star game. . . . Joe asked Joe: "How does it feel to look at some pitching you can hit, Joe?"

BEE PLAYER GOES TO 3RD PLACE IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Athletic Swatsman Moves To Same Berth In American During Short Week

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—This week's accolade for the most improved batting in the major leagues goes to Buddy Hassett of the Boston Bees in the National and Bob Johnson of the Philadelphia Athletics in the American.

Bob Johnson

Buddy Hassett

During the short week caused by the all-star game, Hassett managed to swell his batting percentage 24 points to .343 and move from ninth to third among the National league batters. In the same time Johnson lifted his mark 14 points to climb to third ranking in the junior circuit.

Johnson was the only newcomer to the American league's hitting set, taking the place of the Yankees' Bill Dickey. Similarly there were only two changes in the National as Jim Brown and Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals dropped out and Merrill May of the Phillies and Harry Danning of the New York Giants took their places.

The lead in the two leagues remained with Morrie Arnovich of the Phillies in the National and Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees in the American. Arnovich lifted his percentage four points to .380 while DiMaggio, batting at a pace incomparable in recent years, raised his sensational .420 to a stratospheric .432, getting 12 hits in 24 times at bat.

ROOKIE BEAUTIES READY TO BLOSSOM

By Earl Hilligan

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—An unusually large number of baseball's spring rookie beauties apparently are ready to blossom into the game's hardy perennial class.

Year after year scores of first year youngsters bloom brilliantly in southern camps and then fade quickly after the season opens. This year, however, a large group of "kids" battling successfully for regular jobs have put up such a consistent fight that it appears likely many will rank as established major league stars for seasons to come.

The American league's rookie crop, rated last spring as one of the best in years, is holding up well under the hot summer sun and a test which has extended to the schedule's half-way point. The two outstanding junior circuit newcomers are Boston's Ted Williams and Barney McCosky of the Detroit Tigers.

Williams, rangy outfielder, had a batting average of .310 through Thursday's games and his total of 70 runs batted in led the league. McCosky, playing the Detroit outfield since the season started, was hitting .321 and had driven in 25 runs in 71 contests.

Other American league first-year players who have refused to fold up include Outfielder Charley Keller of the Yankees, hitting around .300 and driving in runs consistently; Jim Tabor, Boston's third baseman, who has driven home 52 runs in 67 games; Joe Gallagher, of New York and St. Louis; John Berardino, St. Louis Browns' classy second baseman; Atley Donald, New York's young pitching sensation who won 10 straight games without a loss; and Philadelphia's Joe Gantenbein, a smooth fielding infielder.

In the National league, Merrill May of the Phillies hit .314 through 65 games in which he smashed home 34 markers. Two other Phillies, First Baseman Jack Bolling and Outfielder Legrant Scott, also have been playing well. Eddie Miller of Boston, up from Kansas City, has been acclaimed as one of the finest fielding youngsters to come up in years, while Pittsburgh's Fern Bell hit around .300 through 39 contests.

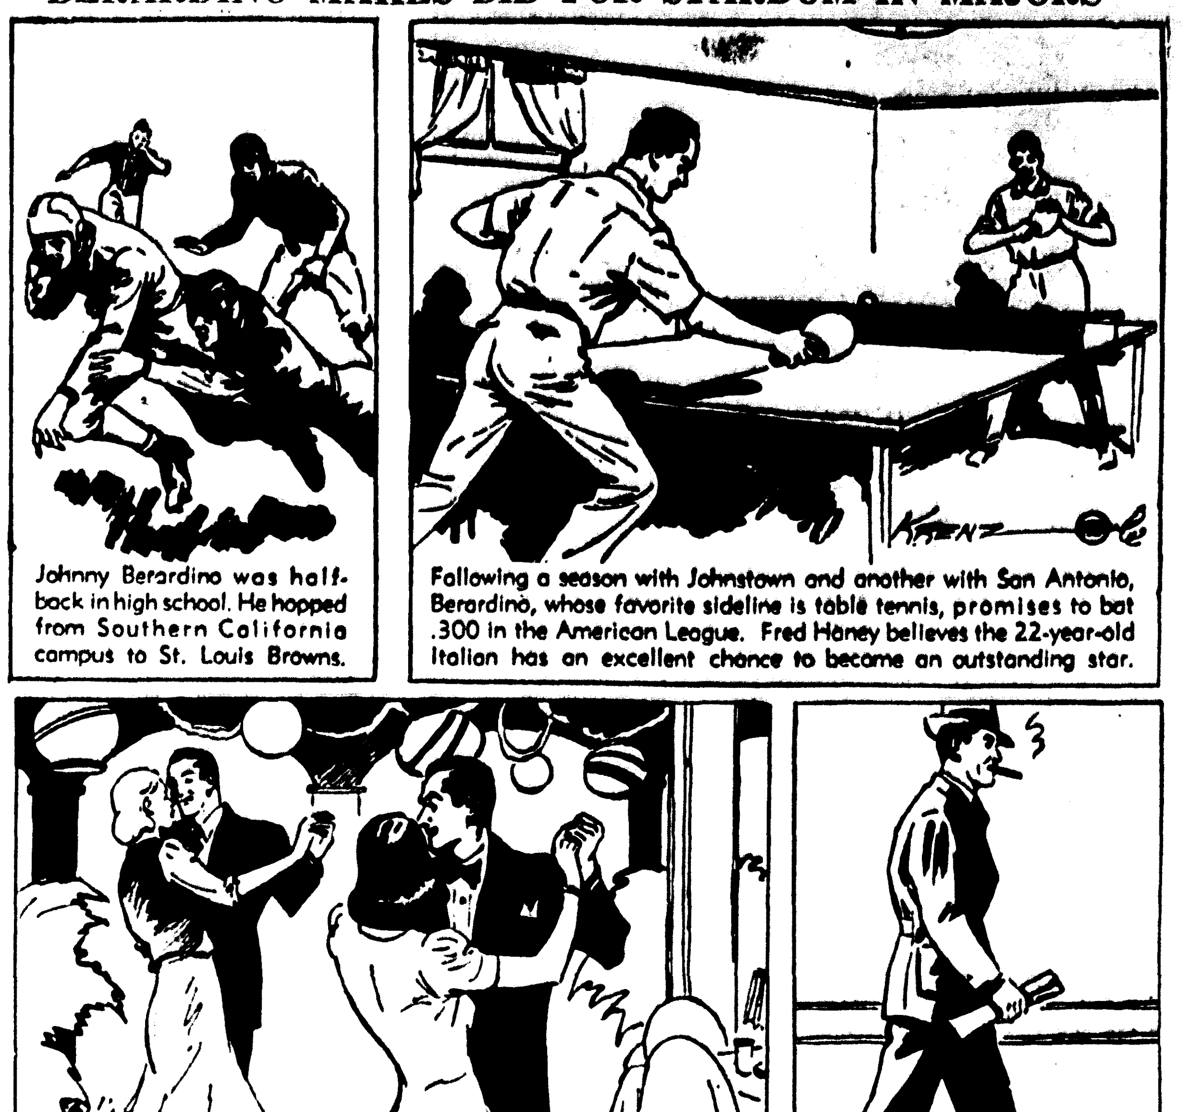
BERARDINO MAKES BID FOR STARDOM IN MAJORS



Johnny Berardino was halfback in high school. He hopped from Southern California campus to St. Louis Browns.

Following a season with Johnstown and another with San Antonio, Berardino, whose favorite sideline is table tennis, promises to bat .300 in the American League. Fred Haney believes the 22-year-old Italian has an excellent chance to become an outstanding star.

Berardino, second baseman with wide range, is Fred Astaire on dance floor. He rated down in Texas League fielding averages, but specialized in double plays and his handling of 810 chances is something in way of proof that he tackled everything in or near his territory.

Berardino, a gamester built for wear, stands 6 feet and weighs 180 pounds. He is a Beau Brummel and a cigar smoker.

LITTLE SIX LEAGUE

The Little Six baseball league swings into its second half schedule today with games at Crowville, Jones and Holly Ridge, according to W. E. Coats, of Delhi, league president. All games will be double headers.

The Mer Rouge aggregation, winner of the first half title, will be at Holly Ridge; Epps will play at Crowville; and Boeuf River will engage Jones. The winner of the last half will meet Mer Rouge, first half winner, in a championship series at the end of the season.

All games in the Little Sox league are played on Sundays, with twin bills being scheduled on each playing date. The second half schedule is as follows:

July 16: Epps at Crowville; Boeuf River at Jones; Mer Rouge at Holly Ridge. July 23: Jones at Holly Ridge; Mer Rouge at Epps; Crowville at Boeuf River. July 30: Mer Rouge at Boeuf River; Epps at Holly Ridge; Crowville at Jones.

August 6: Holly Ridge at Crowville; Jones at Boeuf River; Epps at Mer Rouge. August 13: Jones at Crowville; Boeuf River at Holly Ridge; Mer Rouge at Epps. August 20: Holly Ridge at Jones; Crowville at Mer Rouge; Boeuf River at Epps. August 27: Holly Ridge at Crowville; Epps at Jones; Boeuf River at Mer Rouge. September 3: Holly Ridge at Boeuf River; Mer Rouge at Jones; Crowville at Epps.

BAER, SCHMELING ARE DANGLED IN HEAVY FISH POND

Pair Of Maxes May Be Bait To Spur Possibility Of Nova-Galento Battle

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—They're dusting off Max Baer and Max Schmeling and dangling them out there in the heavyweight fishpond again, just in case the bait for a Philadelphia fight between Lou Nova and Tony Galento in the fall doesn't get the required nibble.

It may be the threat of bringing back either of the Mauling Maxes as opposition for Two-Ton Tony was thought up to get Ray Carlin, Nova's manager, to fall in line on the Galento fight But Ray isn't rushing for the bait, so there is the slim possibility one or both of the two ex-heavyweight kings may yet be reintroduced to our very best fistic society.

Carlin, the quietest and shyest of the fight managing fraternity, is willing to take Nova to Philadelphia to tangle with the Jersey barkeep, but only if the Pennsylvania fistic fathers call in an outside refree. It's not that he has anything against the Quaker City arbiters but he'd like to get one of the nationally recognized "thirdmen" to work this one.

You see, Ray figures he has next spring's challenger for Joe Louis. Of course, Galento may have something to say about that.

Ray is going to put his case before the Pennsylvania boxing commission next Thursday. In the meantime, the Jacobs gentlemen—Mike the promoter and Joe (no relation), Galento's manager, are impatient to get the whole thing straightened out.

So they handed Ray an ultimatum today. Either, they said, agree to the fight in Philadelphia, or we're going to give the shot to Baer or Schmeling this fall.

"Who do they think they're kidding," was Carlin's attitude. "Nova is still the No. 1 man, the biggest attraction. So I won't be rushed.

"And if the Pennsylvania commission doesn't want to see my side of it, and Mike doesn't want to bring the fight into New York—then I'll have to go elsewhere with my business."

So, it was being whispered around that maybe the Schmeling and Baer return to action may not be so farfetched. If Baer could be induced to come back to tangle with Tony it would be a fight folks have been talking of for a long time. And Baer, who can add one and one as well as the next guy, probably wouldn't need much coaxing to take the tussle when he realizes what it would draw in Philadelphia. In that event, Schmeling could be brought across the big pond again for a shot at Nova.

NAME COACHES FOR ALL-STAR CONTEST

The coaching staff which will handle the northern squad in the annual All-Star High school football game at Baton Rouge on August 5, was announced here yesterday by Curtis Parker, Centenary college coach who heads the north's staff.

Parker chose as his assistants, Tom Cobb, his line coach at Centenary; Percy Brown, coach at Neville High school, Monroe; C. C. Crowley, Haynesville High school coach; and Lee Dobson, coach at Byrd High school, Shreveport. Crowley and Dobson will handle the tackles and ends, respectively, and Brown will coach the backfield, Parker said. Cobb has been designated the line coach.

PAPEETE QUIETS DOWN

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP)—This gay tropic seaport is sometimes pictured as a place of perpetual whoopee, but actually it quiets down as completely as any other spot. By government decree all noise stops now at 10 p.m.—and that goes not only for barrooms and streets but even for radios and phonographs in private homes.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP)—Stocks slightly mixed, selected issues advance. Bonds lower, all groups slant downward. Curb narrow; some specialties bought. Foreign exchange quiet, New York closed, Boston rates steady. Cotton depressed, light scattered selling. Sugar, coffee closed.

CHICAGO: Wheat about steady, corn firm. Cattle steady. Hogs steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, July 15 (AP) Few traders appeared for today's short stock market session but the list maintained a good undertone.

While fractional gains were well distributed at the close, there was an assortment of minus signs in evidence.

The ticker tape lagged during the greater part of the proceedings. Transfers for the two hours approximated 200,000 shares.

That business news for a long time has been appreciably better than the market was suggested to financial observers by satisfactory second quarter earnings reports from American Telephone, Bayuk Cigar, General Baking, Alpha Portland Cement, McAndrews and Forbes and United States [illegible]

[illegible]rcle 1 and 2 of the Baptist W. M. [illegible] held their weekly meeting at the [illegible]rch. After the song, "Rescue the [illegible]ishing," Mrs. W. C. Volentine of[illegible]d the opening prayer. Mrs. J. C. [illegible]es, mission study director, pre[illegible]ted the introduction and the first [illegible]pter of "Helping Others To Become [illegible]ristians." Following this there was [illegible] general discussion of evangelistic [illegible]k to be done this month. Mrs. R. [illegible] Baygent conducted a short busi[illegible] session in which reports for the [illegible] quarter were discussed.

[illegible]he Caldwell Center Home Demon[illegible]ation club held its July meeting in [illegible] home of Mrs. Lewis Grant. Each [illegible]mber present answered to roll call [illegible]th a new idea about canning. Miss Caldwell distributed booklets giving recipes for pickles and relishes. She [illegible]old recipes for green tomato mincemeat and marmalade, and gave a discussion and demonstration of some of the recipes found in the booklets.

Mrs. Frank Love read a timely article on "Snakes You Ought To Know," in which a description of the most common poisonous and harmless snakes were described. Mrs. Isaac Stamper read a poem, "If I Knew You And You Knew Me." Mrs. Grant conducted a true and false test in which Miss Caldwell was winner of the prize.

The hostess then served refreshments of sandwiches, cake and iced drinks to Miss Caldwell, Mesdames Frank Love, Vella Mixon, Isaac Stamper and J. C. Hines.

Mrs. M. D. Baldwin was complimented on her seventy-first birthday when her daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Mathis and Mrs. Henley Biggs, and her granddaughter, Mrs. C. M. Mouser, entertained in the home of Mrs. Mathis.

Mrs. Baldwin was quite surprised when on her return from Clarks she found the living room filled with guests who had come to help her celebrate her birthday.

A contest was [illegible] in which Mrs. T. L. J[illegible] won a prize.

The gifts which had been kept out of sight were then brought in by Mrs. Baldwin's great granddaughter, Beth Mouser, and her grandson, Otis Baldwin Biggs. These were opened and passed for the guests to view.

Each guest drew a number and went to a table where they found a corresponding number with a favor attached. Following the cutting of the birthday cake refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to Mesdames W. S. Howell, W. M. Elliott, A. D. Eg[illegible], S. M. Love, E. M. Grayson, J. W. McKeithen, J. J. McKeithen, W. O. McKeithen, T. L. Johnston, F. G. Johnston, [illegible] A. Warner, J. S. G[illegible], W. R. Humphries, A. L. Humphries, J. A. Christian and R. P. Ta[illegible].

Those sending gifts but unable to attend were Mesdames A. Wells, E. O. F[illegible], M[illegible] A. [illegible], W. H. T[illegible] and Misses Agatha Thomas [illegible].

The home of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Deason was the scene of a party when the Methodist Missionary society assembled there for a suprise party and miscellaneous shower, honoring Mrs. Mack Chennoult, the former Ann Lancaster, whose marriage of over a year came as a complete surprise to her many friends.

After a clever flower romance contest was enjoyed by all, the proud recipient opened and displayed her many beautiful gifts, presented to her in a large and attractive basket by Sonny Boy Snedger and Betty Lou Lancaster, followed by the presentation of an exquisite corsage by little Harrison Miller, III.

Delicious punch and cookies were served.

STERLING TALKS PRESS FREEDOM

President Of Newspaper Editors Appraises Constructive Criticism

PALO ALTO, Calif., July 15.—(AP)—Freedom of the press is a "privilege to be cherished and not a license to be exploited," Donald J. Sterling, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said tonight.

Sterling, managing editor of the Portland, Ore., Journal, appraised "constructive criticism directed against us" in a speech prepared for delivery before a newspaper men's meeting at Stanford university.

"Newspapers have the right to be judged in comparison with the average mill run of publications and not with the few that may not measure up," Sterling told the midyear editorial conference sponsored by the California Newspaper Publishers association and the Stanford university division of journalism.

The newspapers that fall below par "persistently have the foe of zealous critics who by the very nature of their criticism confound propaganda with news," the editor said.

"Unfortunately, some people do not [illegible] the meaning of freedom of the press. They prefer to regard it as a self-assumed property asset of the publishers. This is an error. All responsible newspaper men and women regard freedom of the press as a privilege to be cherished [illegible] as a license to be exploited."

WPA CONSTRUCTION CHIEF IS DISMISSED

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—Mark L. Monget, WPA construction superintendent at Louisiana State university, was discharged today by James H. Crutcher, state works progress administrator, following charges [illegible] Monget [illegible] knowledge of misuse of materials and WPA labor on L. S. U. projects."

Crutcher suspended Louis A. Hall, WPA area timekeeper in Baton Rouge in the same case.

"I have just received information from Paul Hansen, agent in charge of the WPA division of investigation for this region that Monget had knowledge of misuse of materials and WPA labor on L. S. U. projects," Crutcher said in an explanatory statement.

"Hall apparently has been lax in his duties as supervising timekeeper. Following out policy in such matters, I have therefore taken this administrative action."

George Caldwell, former university construction superintendent, his assistant, Eugene Barksdale, and James Marshall, WPA foreman at the school, already have been arrested on charges growing out of the multiple investigation of WPA and other activities there.

Crutcher's office tonight said that Monget had been employed at the university for about three years. Crutcher himself declined to comment. Assistants said that he acted on Hansen's report without detailed knowledge of the case, which facts remain in Hansen's hands.

The WPA recently reported that $3,682,025.54 had been expended since 1935 on WPA-L. S. U. building projects, of which the federal government provided $1,399,942.92 in labor and materials for twenty building projects, 17 of which have been completed.

WPA officials here tonight said they were unable to say whether the offense charged against Monget was linked with similar charges against Caldwell, Barksdale and Marshall, or whether it was possible criminal action would be taken against the discharged superintendent.

"That is up to Hansen and the investigators," one official said.

Dr. Smith still remains in jail under 24 indictments ranging from forgery to embezzlement and falsification of public records. Bail for him totals $79,500.

The falsification charges against him are based on alleged acts when he served as president of the university board of supervisors. Specifically he was charged with altering the board minutes to raise his and Jackson's salaries, pay Caldwell a two per cent commission on all university construction, and of having fixed board minutes to make it appear as if the board had approved a trading account for a nonexistent endowment fund.

"This has been only the beginning," District Attorney Sanchez said today when he outlined work to be undertaken by the parish grand jury next week.

that every person must be left free to believe as it chooses * * * with no coercion from church or state."

One of the questions to be taken up will be "what Baptists can do to avert war and promote peace." It will be handled by a commission headed by Principal N. J. Nordstrom of Stockholm.

CANDIDATES FREE OF POLITICS URGED

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—T. S. Neal of Shreveport, past president of the Louisiana Real Estate association, suggested today that candidates "free from political taint" be drafted to run for all major offices in the 1940 state election.

Neal recommended that representatives of churches, civic and other non-political bodies call for a state convention at which "the right type of men" would be drafted for public office.

He was here en route from Shreveport to the Mississippi gulf coast for a vacation.

JOGGING ALONG LIFE'S ROAD—

Sooner or later, a man, if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take.

He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul—that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses more than that.

He learns that all men have to eat burned toast for breakfast now and then, and that he shouldn't take the other fellow's grouch too seriously.

He learns that carrying a chip on his shoulder is the easiest way to get into a fight.

He learns that the quickest way to become unpopular is to carry tales and gossip about others.

He learns that it doesn't matter much who gets the credit so long as the business shows a profit.

He learns that buck passing always turns out to be a boomerang, and that it never pays.

He learns that even the janitor is human and that it doesn't do any harm to smile and say "Good Morning" even if it is raining.

He learns that most of the other fellows are as ambitious as he is, that they have brains that are as good as or better than his, and that hard work and not smartness is the secret of success.

He learns to sympathize with the youngster coming into business, because he remembers how bewildered he was when he first started out.

He learns not to worry when he loses an order, because experience has shown that if he always gives his best his average will break pretty well.

from jail today on the parish indictment after making $20,000 bond.

Dr. Smith still remains in jail under 24 indictments ranging from forgery to embezzlement and falsification of public records. Bail for him totals $79,500.

The falsification charges against him are based on alleged acts when he served as president of the university board of supervisors. Specifically he was charged with altering the board minutes to raise his and Jackson's salaries, pay Caldwell a two per cent commission on all university construction, and of having fixed board minutes to make it appear as if the board had approved a trading account for a nonexistent endowment fund.

"This has been only the beginning," District Attorney Sanchez said today when he outlined work to be undertaken by the parish grand jury next week.

One of the questions to be taken up will be "what Baptists can do to avert war and promote peace." It will be handled by a commission headed by Principal N. J. Nordstrom of Stockholm.

STERLING TALKS PRESS FREEDOM

President Of Newspaper Editors Appraises Constructive Criticism

PALO ALTO, Calif., July 15.—(AP)—Freedom of the press is a "privilege to be cherished and not a license to be exploited," Donald J. Sterling, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said tonight.

Sterling, managing editor of the Portland, Ore., Journal, appraised "constructive criticism directed against us" in a speech prepared for delivery before a newspaper men's meeting at Stanford university.

"Newspapers have the right to be judged in comparison with the average [illegible] of publications and not with the few that may not measure up," Sterling told the midyear editorial conference sponsored by the California Newspaper Publishers association and the Stanford university division of journalism.

The newspapers that fall below par "persistently draw the fire of zealous critics who by the very nature of their criticism confound propaganda with news," the editor said.

[illegible] people do not [illegible] the meaning of freedom of the press. They prefer to regard it as a self-assumed property asset of the publishers. This is an error. [illegible] newspaper men [illegible] freedom of the press as a privilege to be cherished [illegible] to be exploited."

'I WAS FIRED,' MONGET STATES

WPA CONSTRUCTION CHIEF IS DISMISSED

NEW ORLEANS, July [illegible]—(AP)—Mark L. Monget, WPA construction superintendent at Louisiana State university, was [illegible] today by James H. Crutcher, state works progress administrator, [illegible] charges Monget had knowledge of misuse of materials and WPA labor on L. S. U. projects."

Crutcher also [illegible] Louis A. Hall, WPA area timekeeper in Baton Rouge in the same case.

"I have just received information from Paul Hansen, agent in charge of the WPA division of investigation for this region that Monget had knowledge of misuse of materials and WPA labor on L. S. U. projects," Crutcher said in an explanatory statement.

"Hall apparently has been lax in his duties as supervising timekeeper. Following out policy in such matters, I have therefore taken this administrative action."

George Caldwell, former university construction superintendent, his assistant, Eugene Barksdale, and James Marshall, WPA foreman at the school, already have been arrested on charges growing out of the multiple investigation of WPA and other activities there.

Crutcher's office tonight said that Monget had been employed at the university for about three years. Crutcher himself declined to comment. Assistants said that he acted on Hansen's report without detailed knowledge of the case, which facts remain in Hansen's hands.

The WPA recently reported that $3,682,025.54 had been expended since 1935 on WPA-L. S. U. building projects, of which the federal government provided $1,399,942.92 in labor and materials for twenty building projects, 17 of which have been completed.

WPA officials here tonight said they were unable to say whether the offense charged against Monget was linked with similar charges against Caldwell, Barksdale and Marshall, or whether it was possible criminal action would be taken against the discharged superintendent.

"That is up to Hansen and the investigators," one official said.

CANDIDATES FREE OF POLITICS URGED

NEW ORLEANS, July 15—(AP)—T. S. Neal of Shreveport, past president of the Louisiana Real Estate association, suggested today that candidates "free from political taint" be drafted to run for all major offices in the 1940 state election.

Neal recommended that representatives of churches, civic and other non-political bodies call for a state convention at which "the right type of men" would be drafted for public office.

He was here en route from Shreveport to the Mississippi gulf coast for a vacation.

JOGGING ALONG LIFE'S ROAD—

Sooner or later, a man, if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take.

He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul—that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses more than that.

He learns that all men have to eat burned toast for breakfast now and then, and that he shouldn't take the other fellow's grouch too seriously.

He learns that carrying a chip on his shoulder is the easiest way to get into a fight.

He learns that the quickest way to become unpopular is to carry tales and gossip about others.

He learns that it doesn't matter much who gets the credit so long as the business shows a profit.

He learns that buck passing always turns out to be a boomerang, and that it never pays.

He learns that even the janitor is human and that it doesn't do any harm to smile and say "Good Morning" even if it is raining.

He learns that most of the other fellows are as ambitious as he is, that they have brains that are as good as or better than his, and that hard work and not smartness is the secret of success.

He learns to sympathize with the youngster coming into business, because he remembers how bewildered he was when he first started out.

He learns not to worry when he loses an order, because experience has shown that if he always gives his best his average will break pretty well.

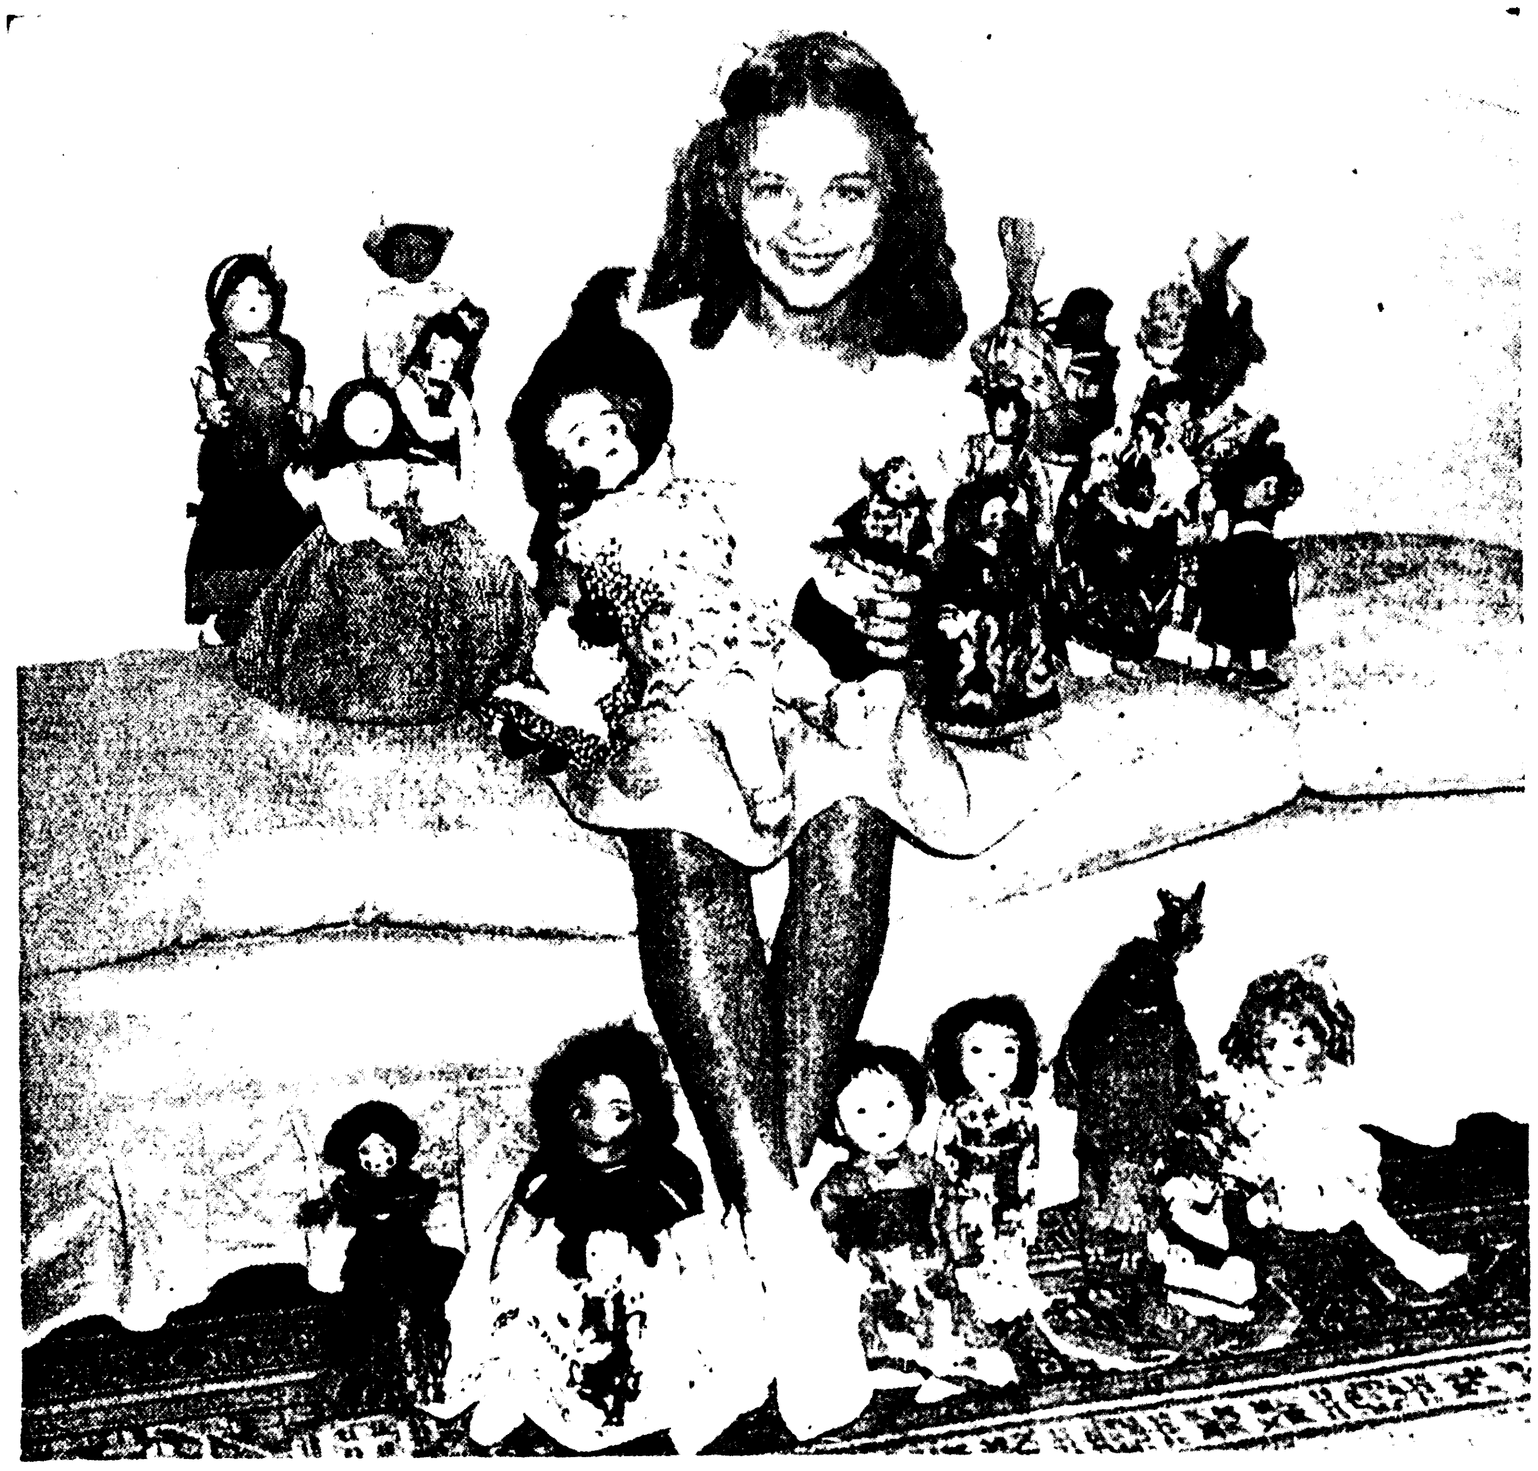
Miriam Oliver Has Treasured Collection Of Dolls



Many Rare Models Obtained By Young Monroe Girl As She Pursues Hobby

By Eve Bradford

D[illegible] are gene[illegible]

[illegible] When a Japanese doll [illegible] her [illegible] has grown to astonishing proportions and includes dolls from Switzerland, Island of Sicily, Mexico, Trinidad, China, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Japan, Cuba, South America, Island of Madeira, Brazil, Island of St Thomas. There are also numerous character dolls including the Dionne quintuplets, Shirley Temple, Indian dolls, ballet dancers, and a Rhuma dancer from Cuba.

Miriam's parents have discovered in the past year that there is more to this hobby of doll collecting than they ever dreamed. It keeps them mentally alert answering the questions asked by the eager daughter who is forever reaching out for knowledge. They wander down the by-paths together and have the pleasure of seeing their 10-year-old daughter acquiring a love for geography, for literature, history and folk-lore and an acquaintance with wonderful old things. As a result she shows you her doll collection with a full quota of intelligent comment.

There is an interesting doll made of dry corn husks and another made of rags in early colonial days. Still another is made of redwood fiber from the redwood forests of the west. Naturally the collection of this little southern girl would be incomplete without a mammy doll with bright colored kerchief, white apron and wide, full, cotton skirt.

Miriam has found out in studying dolls of all nations that people didn't always walk into a shop and buy a doll. They were made out of materials at hand and, as a rule, after the image of the people around them.

One of the stories that intrigued Miriam more than all others is the story of the Chinese doctor doll of hand-carved Ivory. Centuries ago, the Chinese physician was forbidden by custom to examine his female patients. So great was the modesty among the oriental ladies they would rather have died of their illness than submit to an examination. But something had to be done, for even the doctor's crude simple methods were better than no [illegible]

The doll that came from the Island of Sicily is especially treasured as it was a gift from Mrs Flora Potts and Mrs Charles Wallace, who visited the island during their travels in foreign countries. The doll is an exact reproduction of the Hindu and French women who wear colorful turbans wound around their heads and wide full skirts of gaudy colors. Mrs Potts, by the way, purchased a turban and was taught to wind it around her head by one of the natives.

The prettiest doll in Miriam's collection is the peasant doll from Czechoslovakia. In her national dress she makes a colorful figure. The national colors are red and white and are elaborately embroidered into the material. Even the shoes are heavy with embroidery. Though not a manufactured doll, she is typical of the Czechoslovakian women who love to show their love of country by still wearing the old costumes.

When Mrs Frederick Millsaps was a passenger on board the Rotterdam bound for Cuba last spring she purchased a Dutch doll for Miriam's collection. It was made in Holland and is typical of the Dutch women with wooden shoes, black velvet [illegible] and blue skirt with white apron.

Miriam delights in the fact that all her dolls are authentic. They were all purchased in their native lands.

The bride wore a lovely navy marquisette model with navy accessories. A corsage of yellow valley lilies completed the ensemble. Mrs George Cox, the bride's attendant, wore a white model with black accessories, and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Mr John Brown of this city, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride and groom are both popular in the Twin Cities, where they both finished school at the Ouachita Parish High school.

Miss Morin To Wed Francis V. Barnett

Marriage Of Popular Couple Will Take Place At Methodist Church On August 31

Interest is centered today in the announcement made by Mr. Earl P Morin of the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Miss Alice Joy Morin, to Mr Francis Victor Barnett.

The wedding will take place on August 31 at the First Methodist church, this city.

Miss Morin, a young woman of charming personality, is a graduate of the Tennessee State Teachers' college in Memphis, and has made her home in this city for the past several years with her sister, Mrs. H C Aehle, and Mr. Aehle.

Mr. Barnett is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. He is associated with the United Gas company in the capacity of district chief engineer with offices in this city.

I would like to give these suggestions called "Cool Little Touches." When friends drop in on a blistering hot day it's flattering to watch them sink down into one of your chairs with sighs of relief and gratefully exclaim "How heavenly cool you keep it!" Of course you know very well it's not a bit cooler in your house than in theirs. It's simply that you've gained a cool refreshing air by little touches here and there. Blossoming plants in white pots near the fireplace, slip covers in simple stripes or clear summer hues do delightful jobs of camouflaging warm weather. Slip your good lamp shades into hat boxes and deck your lamps in ruffled summery shades, also you can buy them in cool white-flowered chintz to please your color harmony. For an airy change in your bedroom concoct a plain cotton net bedspread deeply flounced on either side. Use it over an old-time patchwork quilt—charming this net. Then make more net into lacy summer curtains.

Members present were Mrs Clay Almgh[illegible], Mrs Clyde Blanchard, Mrs Cecil Blanchard, Mrs Fred Hemler, Mrs Bud Hollis, Mrs X Holt, Mrs R C Kester, Mrs G L Morgan, Mrs Harry Taylor, Mrs John L Whitfield and Mrs Clay Olbon.

Tallulah Garden Club Holds Meeting

The Tallulah Garden club buffet luncheon, an annual event of the summer and one of the most enjoyable meetings of the year, was held at the Tallulah Community club with Mrs. John Potts of Monroe and Mrs. Elizabeth Amacker of Lake Providence as out-of-town speakers. A variety of summer flowers from the homes of the members brightened the long tables, laden with food served buffet style.

Mrs. W. R. Gilfoil, the president-elect, presided, and Mrs. W. M. Murphy served as toastmistress. Mrs. W. L. Rountree, accompanied by Mrs. M. A. Phillips, sang "Last Rose of Summer," and Mrs. Amacker gave two readings from Robert Burns in the Scotch dialect. Mrs. Potts, who recently returned from a trip to the exposition in San Francisco and to Hawaii, gave a graphic account of her experience and gave a most interesting description of the gardens and flowers of the "Paradise of the Pacific." A note of merriment introduced in the quiz, conducted as a burlesque district school by Mrs. Horace Maxwell and Mrs. Murphy was an additional feature.

Members of the club and guests in attendance were Mrs. H. N. Alexander, Mrs. D. H. Allen, Miss Annette Beers, Mrs. R. K. Boney, Mrs. W. D. Buford, Mrs. W. L. Rountree, Mrs. Charles Coltharp, Mrs. Clarence Crow, Mrs. J. H. Devine, Mrs. George Eggleston, Mrs. W. R. Gilfoil, Mrs. C. E. Hester, Mrs. Dan James, Mrs. Fred McDuff, Miss Bertha Keller, Miss Amy Holmes, Mrs. A. M. Hebert, Mrs. R. C. Leeves, Mrs. Horace Maxwell, Mrs. W. M. Murphy, Mrs. F. D. Naylor, Mrs. E. T. Purnell, Mrs. A. J. Sevier, Mrs. Albert Sevier, Mrs. George A. A. Tocher, Mrs. Davis Whitfield, Mrs. W. D. Ziegler, Mrs. R. N. Ware, Mrs. W. H. Erickson, Mrs. George Yerger, Sr., Mrs. James R. The many friends of Mrs. Frederick Williamson, who is a patient at Our Lady of the Lake hospital, Baton Rouge, will regret to learn that her condition is extremely critical. Mrs. Williamson underwent an emergency operation at the hospital a week ago Wednesday for intestinal construction. Complications that developed have retarded her recovery, it was stated by attending physicians, according to word received here. Her brother, Dr. Paul Herron of Oak Ridge, is at her bedside, as is Mr. Williamson.

Mrs. M. A. McHenry and Mrs. Neil McHenry motored to Bella Vista, in the Ozark mountains, where they will occupy the Central Savings Bank cottage for two weeks. They will be joined over the week-end by Mr. Neil McHenry and two daughters, Misses Martha Wilton and Marguerite McHenry.

Mrs. R. L. Ross and son, Bobbie, are enjoying a visit in the Ozark mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Guthrie have returned from their wedding trip and will be at home for the time being with Mr. Guthrie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, at their plantation home, Grecian Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Reardon are enjoying a visit in New York City and are guests at the Hotel Commodore.

LOVELY BRIDE

Mrs. Harry J. Hammett, who before her recent marriage was Miss Mildred Aycock of Ruston. Mr. and Mrs. Hammett will reside in Farmerville, following their wedding trip. Mrs. Hammett, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Aycock of Ruston. Mr. Hammett is the son of Mrs. Harry J. Hammett, Sr., of Ruston. Both are former students of Louisiana Tech.

Sicily Island

Mrs. C. E. Enright entertained the Thursday afternoon bridge club in her home. At the close of the games Mrs. Bruce Edmonds was presented with a gift as winner of high score. Mrs. H. D. Peniston won the prize for second high and Miss Willy Woodward cut the lucky card for consolation.

After the games, iced watermelon was served to the winners and Mesdames H. M. Krause, T. L. Enright, Melvin Foster and A. S. Krause.

Miss Nelson To We Edward N. Johns

Local Girl Will Become Bride In Home Of Gra mother In Arkansas Late This Month

Claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Nelson of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Lela Mae Nelson, to Mr. Edward N. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Johnson of West Monroe.

The wedding will take place the latter part of July at Grandview heights, the home of Miss Nelson's grandmother in Mena, Ark. Miss Nelson was prompted by sentiment to select her grandmother's home for her wedding as her parents were married there 25 years ago.

Miss Nelson, member of the younger set in this city, is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school and Whitworth college, Brookhaven, Miss., where she specialized in music and graduated cum laude.

For the past two years Miss Nelson has been teaching music in this city. She is a member of the National Guild of piano teachers and of Delta Kappa sorority.

Mr. Johnson is a graduate of the Louisiana Tech High school and attended Northeast Junior college and Louisiana Tech. He is employed by the government in the office of the Farm Security administration in Little Rock.

Several charming pre-nuptial affairs complimenting Miss Nelson were given last week. Miss Elizabeth Benton entertained with a miscellaneous shower on Monday. Miss Sara Guy entertained informally on Tuesday and Mrs. Edgar entertained on Saturday with a conversational hour.

[illegible] Becky [illegible]. A [illegible] ago I was working in [illegible] and [illegible] opera and [illegible] and a [illegible] room [illegible] Doctor Dinsmore [illegible] me last night."

And [illegible] the thing [illegible] ideal [illegible] Duane Fox.

My [illegible]

W[illegible] Larry?"

[illegible] free [illegible] not free [illegible] You see Dr. Dinsmore [illegible] Larry. He's [illegible] him [illegible] Larry. That night [illegible] I were talking by the fire [illegible] were playing games [illegible] of him as a man Barbara liked."

Duane Fox [illegible]. "He'll have to come to know [illegible] better, Larry," he said.

"You said it!" Larry agreed on a quiet little laugh [illegible].

Becky felt her skin prick for a second on an inexplicable feeling of discomfort. She could not see Larry's face, for she was seated on the arm of his wide chair, but she could look at the other man. Something about him frightened her for just a fraction of time, she remembered it afterward and wondered about it.

Duane Fox was about Dr. Stephen's age, but he seemed older, she thought, because of a certain careless disorder in dress. Where Stephen was erect, business-like, frowning in concentration upon some problem, Duane was lax and indifferent or contemptuous, interested supremely and primarily in himself, and secondarily in art as he saw it.

As a portrait painter he had had a certain vogue many years earlier, had made large sums of money rapidly and easily. He had studied in Paris. For years he had collected bronze and copper trifles, filled his walls with not quite good pictures bought for almost nothing at sales in Brittany and Flanders. In conversation he was racy, amusing, often vulgar and sometimes shocking, but his was a personality that carried off with good grace what might have been offensive in another type of man.

Of women he had nothing good to say, although his frank and rambling recollections testified to the fact that there had been many in his life. A beautiful English model, an Austrian woman doctor, a Russian dancer, countless affectionate little Parisiennes.

Becky couldn't help liking even if she didn't admire him. From the moment of Larry's introduction, when Duane, who was suffering from a serious eye trouble, had peered at her with his heavily glassed eyes, she knew he had put her in a class quite apart from the rest of her sex.

He showed her and Larry in a hundred practical and generous ways that he was delighted with the prospect of the introduction of a new niece, and even of a small noisy boy, into the family. With the rehabilitation of the lodge in mind, he had seen painters and plasterers immediately after Larry's confidences regarding Becky, and on the evening before this very day, he had had a long talk [illegible] Larry as to the [illegible] of the affair.

"We'll go [illegible] past G[illegible] and the M[illegible]," Duane had said, "[illegible] find some [illegible] place that'll seem more like a home to her. I can [illegible] a few months and [illegible] you, and if I were you, I'd persuade her to make it Paris for six months of a year, and leave the [illegible] the west. Better for him and better for her trying to make a go of it [illegible] an old codger like me [illegible] next spring [illegible] Meanwhile I'll [illegible] listening to the radio and getting [illegible] fat and [illegible] little chuckle to myself in the dark."

Becky thought of Stephen [illegible] Duane Fox [illegible] made her wince [illegible] Stephen, the finest product that America could boast after three hundred years: cultured, travelled, brilliant, loving everything that was good in letters, music, life, Stephen whose [illegible] had given eminent men to statesmanship, to science, to social science of every description, would never like Duane. She knew that Duane was the synical, lazy, clever, irresponsible type.

"Stephen's as dear as a father," she said to herself. "Dearer. I'll never fail him."

"Now what are you thinking about?" Larry demanded. Becky came out of a dream with a start.

"Thinking that I must go!" Becky said. She went to lay her hand on the older man's full big hand as it rested on the arm of his winged chair. "Don't get up," she said. "And good-bye. You've been awfully good, for a woman-hater, to Larry and me! I'll not see you again until I've gotten things straightened out at home. But I'll come back!"

"And we'll put a secret marriage over on them, Becky," Laurence said as he and she emerged into the last cool light of the February afternoon. They had decided to walk the three miles to Dinsmores'.

"But, Larry, you wouldn't want me to get a divorce one minute and be married the next?"

"Why not?"

"Well, it's just too—too sudden. Too rash, too unadvised, too sudden. I've been too precipitate all my life. Give me time to—to get my breath, to try to realize all that's happened!"

"You certainly don't think you're going to get much time to breathe, running round Europe with the Lees?"

"Europe!" she said in a dream.

"Becky, play fair with me," he pleaded. "I'm in love with you. I'm counting the days until we can be married. Don't let this old boy Dinsmore throw a monkey wrench into the works."

"I think it's perhaps a fortunate thing that someone slows us up a little, Larry!" They had reached the Dinsmore doorway now. Becky, breathless and rosy and exhilarated by the rapid walking, stood on the step above Larry and framed his handsome dissatisfied face in her two gloved hands. "Barbara doesn't know anything about this," she said. "Dr. Dinsmore agreed with me that it would be much simpler to let any explanation, at least as far as I'm concerned, wait until I come back. [illegible] be seeing [illegible] of her [illegible] more and more [illegible]."

"You [illegible]" He [illegible].

"I [illegible] I haven't had a chance [illegible]

[illegible]

"Larry," Becky [illegible] her first [illegible] However I [illegible] As a matter of fact when I get my divorce he and I are going to be married."

Larry [illegible] the [illegible] together [illegible]

"Gee, [illegible] I see you again?"

"I've been thinking [illegible] might manage it. If you could be at home [illegible] at about four I'd stop in. For just about two minutes though."

"I'd be anywhere." She loved him in this [illegible] devoted mood. Her power over the tall casual man she had met so short a time before was a continual marvel to her.

The next day, driving into town with Becky, Dr. Dinsmore said, "You're pretty sure you love Moulton, Becky?"

She laughed, with the little sound in the laugh that only women who laugh and know themselves loved ever reach. "Pretty sure."

"He makes a fair income?"

"His uncle is going to help us at first. We'll all be together in a perfect bohemian mix-up," Becky explained shyly eager. "The idea is that Larry and I spend a little time in Paris, just as a sort of honeymoon, and then come back and find some place farther down the island where we can settle. Mr. Fox, Duane Fox, isn't painting now, because—What is it?" The last words were interjected on a note of fright.

"What—what did you say?" Stephen asked quickly. "What name did you say?"

"His uncle, Duane Fox," she repeated, bewildered and frightened. "Why? Do you know him?"

He had recovered himself. "Yes, I knew someone of that name once," he said somewhat breathlessly. "It was many years ago, but it must be the same. I'm sorry to have frightened you, my dear. He, this man, Duane Fox, is your Laurence's uncle?"

"The uncle who's done everything for him. He adores him. Larry didn't have much of a chance, you see; his people were dead, and he'd hardly known this stepbrother of his mother when Duane sent for him and—well, his whole life changed."

She talked on and Stephen listened, or seemed to listen, and it was with an abstracted manner that he left her when they reached the hospital, merely reminding her that she was to call for him there at half-past twelve.

Becky went off on her shopping round alone; her list included little gifts for her father and mother, for the four brothers, for Sophy and Anya. It was fun.

When he came down from the hospital to the car she looked at him sharply. He looked very tired, but he smiled at her affectionately. He was not keeping his late office hours today; he was to have four operations tomorrow morning and wanted to go home for a rest.

"And you're not coming into town with Gibbs and me tonight," Becky stated firmly.

"Oh yes, I must. They're bringing this Spuyten Duyvil case into town, and I've got to see her again. I operate at seven tomorrow."

"Then you'll stay in town tonight?"

"Oh yes. And you, unfortunately, won't!" Stephen said with a whimsical half-smile. "You'll be rushing past Albany and Buffalo . . . Becky?"

The last word was said with a change of tone. Becky knew he was going to say something . . . something . . . Her heart closed on a little spasm of fear.

"Becky," he repeated, "are you to see Laurence Moulton again?"

"Oh—" Her expression turned to one of consternation. "Oh, I was to have seen him!" she exclaimed. "I forgot. I thought I would be going out alone earlier, and I said I'd stop at the studio for a minute, just to say good-bye! He'll have been waiting—it's almost four now."

"How hard would it be for you to—" Stephen interrupted himself and fell silent. After a while he began again.

"Becky, if I asked you, could you do something for me?"

Color rushed to her face; she faced him squarely. "Do you think there's anything I couldn't do?" she asked.

Stephen laughed, flushing a little in his turn with touched pleasure. "I believe you would. It isn't that that stopped me," he said hesitatingly. "It's whether I have a right to ask it."

"You—" The simple monosyllable [illegible] whispered was sufficient answer. But still he was doubtful.

"It would be for you as well as for me," he presently began again, finding word with difficulty. "It's [illegible] [illegible] Would you—would you break with Laurence Moulton?"

PUBLIC FORUM

OUR FLAG

To the Editor:

On the front page of your July 12 issue you published an Associated Press dispatch under "Traffic Violator Donates for Flag," this being a Russian-born grocery operator who, when tried for a violation of traffic laws in Pittsburgh, remarked: "One satisfaction for a citizen and a war veteran is to be tried in a courtroom where there is an American flag. I notice you don't have one here. I would like to donate $5 toward the purchase of a flag. I'm sorry I can't make it $20. The trouble is the American people are not flag-conscious. That's the reason we have so many Communists." My! What an indictment.

I am positive that more of the present and coming generation would be flag-conscious if only that emblem was displayed at all public gatherings, and it should be. When we attend graduation exercises at our high schools and colleges and fail to see the Stars and Stripes or hear even one verse of our national anthem, we wonder just why? We need not be surprised at the spread of communism and other 'isms when we fail to demonstrate our patriotism. Mere addresses just won't get the job done.

Respectfully,
A. E. FISHER, M. D.

New Department Added, With Durwood Griffin In Charge Of Work

[illegible] photographs [illegible] It has [illegible] This group feels that each subject is a different individual and should be photographed as such, that each subject must be studied carefully to determine how to make the finest possible portrait of that individual, that a truly fine portrait cannot be made in three or four minutes.

Not being satisfied with just "taking pictures" year after year, as are so many photographers, Mr. Griffin decided to prepare himself for a place among the foremost men in his chosen profession. For two summers he attended the Professional Photographers association school in Indiana. There he studied under the finest camera artists of the country and gained invaluable experience. It was at this school, during the second summer, that Mr. Griffin met Paul Linwood Gittings, A. R. P. S.

Mr. Gittings is recognized as one of the world's leading photographers. He was chief cameraman for Bachrach, Inc., for 11 years prior to his establishing a business of his own. Mr. Gittings is an authority on modern photography and conducted demonstrations at several conventions of the photographers' association. At the association's school he was attracted by the natural flair Mr. Griffin possessed for the modern type portraiture and offered him a position as cameraman in his studio.

For nearly two years, Mr. Griffin remained in the employ of Gittings, Inc., where he gained a wealth of experience. Only recently he returned to Griffin studio, where he now features the type of work he had done for Gittings.

Mr. Griffin features "high-key" [illegible] portraits made with [illegible] eight poses of every subject. Eliza- [illegible] are not [illegible] experience in [illegible] Gittings in [illegible]

"Life" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 16, 1939.

Golden text: Amos 5:14. Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light" (Ps. 36).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The life-giving quality of mind is spirit, not matter" (page 517).

Realizing that all of us are vitally and sincerely interested in the welfare of our nation and believing that the time has come for us to do some straight thinking, it is our purpose to think with you this Lord's day about two pertinent subjects. "That Which Exalts a Nation" is the theme of the morning. And "That Which We Can Do for Our Nation" is the subject of the evening meditation. Your presence will mean much, and we invite you to worship with us. If you are unable to attend the services of the Holy Sanctuary, you can hear us by means of our local radio station KMLB.

The Sabbath school needs you. Will you join us in the study of Holy Writ? "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman who needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." The men meet in the Paramount theater; the other classes are held in the church buildings.

Our mission is to so present the gospel that hearers will accept the Redeemer and the people within the fold be constrained to seek to effect His will in daily walk and conversation.

A hearty welcome awaits you at any worship service!

Dear Mr. [illegible]:

While we consistently advertise in your newspapers with consistent gratifying results, [illegible] telling you of the [illegible] advertisements in the [illegible] Morning World, July 12th.

Wednesday morning our store was packed and jammed with hundreds of our regular customers and scores of new faces, in fact, so many people that it was almost impossible to accommodate them despite the extra added sales people we employed for this event.

During our 15 years in business in Monroe, this was the largest and most successful sales event in our history, and we attribute it entirely to the pulling power of your newspapers.

Our business has continually grown until it has become necessary for us to have a larger store. We believe you will be pleased to know that this week we have let contracts for the remodeling and complete air-conditioning of our store and in addition have leased the two stores next door to our present store which will be combined into one large store giving us twice the floor space we formerly had, giving Monroe one of the finest women's shops in the South.

We feel that your newspapers have been a big part in our success and we shall continue to be a consistant user of large space to tell the people of Monroe and the Monroe trade area the latest in fashions for women and children at Bella Scherck Davidson's Women's Shop.

Thanking you, we are

Sincerely yours,

Colbert And Stewart In Mad Comedy

Fresh And Breezy Romance Has Plot Packed With Suspense

A NEW comedy theme, bringing a delightful new team in an [illegible] novel and daffy [illegible] situations, comes to the screen of the Paramount theater today when "It's a Wonderful World" makes its local debut starring Claudette Colbert with James Stewart in the male lead.

Catching the elusive spirit of Claudette Colbert's academy award hit "It Happened One Night," the new romantic comedy strikes out into new zany channels both in characters and plot. Stewart is an All-American football player cast as a private detective hired to keep an irresponsible oft-married millionaire playboy out of trouble. Miss Colbert is, of all things, a poetess. When the millionaire playboy is murdered and Stewart is innocently [illegible] Miss Colbert joins forces with him in solving the [illegible]. The complications run wild, the work of the amateur detective is more than weird, and Stewart even socks Miss Colbert on the jaw. But it all romps to a happy if unexpected ending.

Involved in the hilarious doings are Guy Kibbee, Nat Pendleton, Frances Drake, Edgar Kennedy and Ernest Truex.

Adding excitement to the comedy angles, the story offers a number of hairbreadth escapes, topped by Stewart's mad leap into a river from a speeding train while handcuffed to Pendleton. It has a performance of "What Price Glory?" in which Stewart wears blackface. In another scene Miss Colbert, believing she is in the hands of a desperate criminal, sets fire to her car with a cigarette lighter. There are a couple of spine-tickling murders, with a third barely prevented, and the hectic action moves through a series of no less than forty-seven sets encompassing the high spots of New York.

Directed by W. S. Van Dyke II, who lists among his successes "Stand Up and Fight," "Marie Antoinette" and "The Thin Man," "It's a Wonderful World" was produced by Frank Davis who has given the screen such films as "Lord Jeff" and "The Devil Is a Sissy."

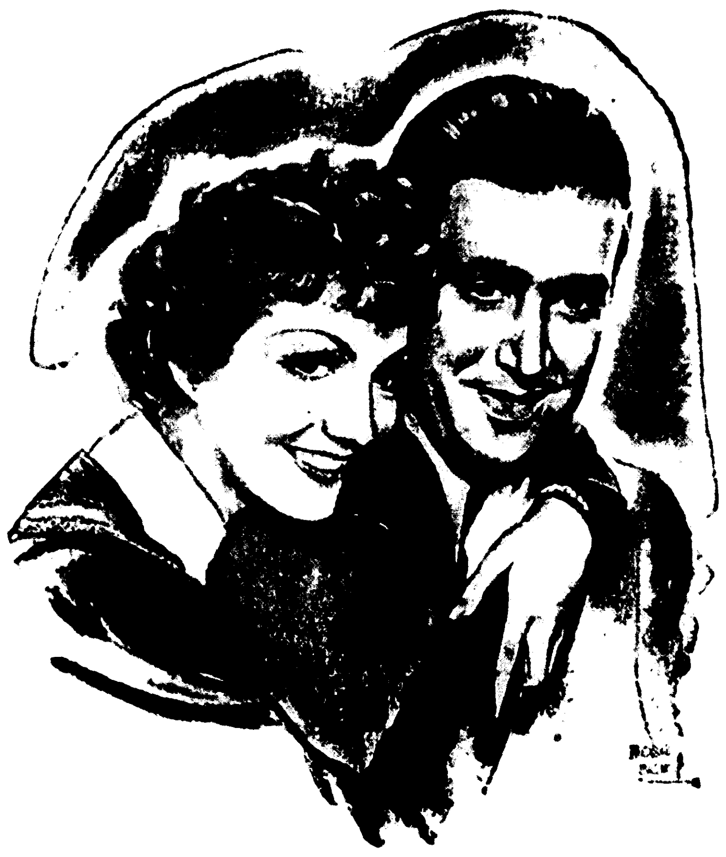
Oliver Hardy and Harry Langdon comedy stars of "Zenobia," playing at the Capitol theater Tuesday only. James Ellison and Jean Parker are romantically teamed, but . . . who is Zenobia?



A cuddlesome moment from "It's a Wonderful World" in which Claudette Colbert and James Stewart are to be seen on the screen of the Paramount theater today, Monday and Tuesday.

Lucille Ball and Allan Lane have a big dramatic assignment in "Panama Lady," adventure romance, which casts them as the hero and heroine of events in an exotic environment, shows at the Capitol theater Friday only.

A grand frontier love that grew with the building of the first transcontinental railroad is shared by Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea, handsome screen couple, in "Union Pacific," plays today and Monday at the Capitol.

HOT WEATHER CAUSES LESS DEMAND FOR TOYS IN WPA SHOP

Although the hot weather seems to be lowering the demands of parish children for toys provided by the WPA toy shop in the 100 block of Washington street, the staff of the shop is busy these days making and remodeling toys which will be loaned to children.

More than a dozen rag dolls have been made recently by the staff, and lumber donated by several local lumber companies has been used to make additional playthings. The staff recently mended 49 articles of clothing and nice pairs of shoes which were donated. The articles have been turned over to the Ouachita parish welfare department for distribution.

The toy shop is open every day, with the exception of Saturday and Sunday from 8 o'clock in the morning until 3:15 p.m. Children take out slips similar to those in public libraries for the toys they borrow and must have either their parents or guardians sign them. They are able to borrow any toy in the shop for a week.

Rubber-band guns, tricycles, scooters and wagons were said by the director of the shop to be most popular with child patrons, but the new rag dolls and calico cats also are proving popular.

The admission of 10 cents will be used to help pay expenses of members who will go to the Baton Rouge short course.

Great Epic Of Old West At Capitol

'Union Pacific,' With Great Cast, Is Outstanding Spectacle

BARBARA Stanwyck, in a role completely different from any she has previously attempted, and Joel McCrea, as a character strongly reminiscent of the one he portrayed last season in "Wells Fargo," are co-starred in the romantic leads of "Union Pacific," Cecil B. DeMille's grand-scale interpretation of the building of America's first transcontinental railroad.

Although the popular Miss Stanwyck has played roles as varied as middle western farm-woman, New England factory wench and Park avenue debutante, her Mollie Monahan in "Union Pacific," which Paramount will show today at the Capitol theater, marks something totally new in the Stanwyck repertoire. She is a daring, warm-hearted, fiery girl of the west, the daughter of the "U. P.'s" first engineer, the postmistress of "end of track" and the little sister of the husky railroad builders. She is equally at home outwitting western sharpers, comforting the homesick Irish laborers, battling Indians on the warpath or engaging in high-powered romance.

Mollie's romantic interest in "Union Pacific" is one Jeff Butler (played by the handsome McCrea), a brave and reckless trouble-shooter whom the Washington government has assigned to help keep order along the right-of-way. The two meet at "end of track," the gaudy, brawling, settlement that moves ever westward with the railroad, and their romance moves as swiftly forward as the phenomenal railroad itself.

Although Indian attacks, corrupt officials and hostile nature can all be dealt with, Mollie and Jeff meet a real difficulty in Dick Allen (Robert Preston), a smooth young western adventurer who has teamed up with a crowd of sharpers to sabotage the railroad. In love with Mollie, Dick has the double incentive of ruining Jeff's work and stealing his sweetheart at the same time.

When the irresponsible Dick goes so far as to help rob a pay train, upon which the "U. P." vitally depends, the good-hearted Mollie marries him to save him from the law. But before the railroad is finished Dick's own crimes remove him from the scene, leaving the track to romance clear for Jeff.

A dozen other popular Hollywood players will be seen in equally unusual roles in De Mille's production. Akim Tamiroff, the roistering Russian actor, is "Fiesta," a rowdy Mexican railroad cop who brings his own kind of law and order to the west at the point of a bull-whip. Lynne Overman holds up the comedy end of the picture as a hard-as-nails fur-trapper and pioneer. Brian Donlevy is the sharper who is hired by financiers to sabotage the project.

CEMETERY WILL BE GIVEN ATTENTION

Liberty Baptist church, near Marion, will have a cemetery working July 18 when the public is invited to come prepared to make a day of it. Each one is asked to bring a large, well filled dinner basket.

The same church will have a revival that will start today at the church. This evening there will be a singing convention held at Linville in the school gymnasium. The public is invited to attend.

Perryville Resident Owns Gun Won From Buffalo Bill

By W. L. Griffin

PERRYVILLE, La., July 15 (Special)—The story goes that Buffalo Bill was an expert shot when it came to plucking off Indians with a rifle, but according to James M. Hamilton, 55-year-old store clerk of this community, he was evidently a poor shot at clay pigeons.

This fact was brought to light recently when Mr. Hamilton exhibited a rare [illegible] gun that he says his father, J. M. T. Hamilton, of Meridian, Miss., now deceased, [illegible] a shooting match [illegible] the famous westerner as one of the contestants.

The gun was a prize [illegible] at a shooting match [illegible] at a fair in Meridian in 1882. The match was open to all comers. [illegible] Dr. Carver, a pal of Buffalo Bill, Buffalo Bill, a Jim Stackfield and the elder Mr. Hamilton. [illegible] Dr. Carver was the first [illegible] then Buffalo Bill. Mr. Hamilton and Stackfield [illegible] Hamilton made a perfect score of 100 hits out of a possible 100, receiving first prize, the gun.

The gun is now regarded as an heirloom of the Hamilton family. A very fragile part of the mechanism was broken a few years ago and the manufacturer has long since gone out of business, thereby making replacement parts unobtainable.

It was manufactured and patented in 1882 by the Spencer Firearms company. The unusual mechanical design of the gun makes it very unique in the way it is built. It is a 12-gauge pump action, having no visible hammer, yet a procedure of cocking the gun must be gone through before it can be fired. This is accomplished by pushing forward a trigger-like mechanism that works in front of the trigger in the trigger guard. When it is fired and the empty shell thrown from the barrel the hull is thrown over the shooter's head to his back by the unusual design of the ejecting mechanism.

Mr. Hamilton states that he has never seen another gun exactly like it.

WOMAN'S SHOP TO BE MODERNIZED

Work Starts Tomorrow; Firm To Continue Business Across Street

While its present location at Walnut and DeSiard streets is being modernized and enlarged, the Woman's shop, consisting of Bella Scherck Davidson's women's wear shop, Alice Henry's hat shop and Touchstone beauty salon, will continue business uninterrupted, across the street.

Transfer of the establishment to its temporary quarters will be completed today and it will be open for business as usual tomorrow morning, at which time workmen will get down to their preliminary tasks on the permanent location. The contractors hope to have the place ready for reoccupancy within six weeks.

The building at Walnut and DeSiard is to be thoroughly modernized and enlarged by approximately one-third. It will [illegible] 60 feet along DeSiard and extend back 109 feet on Walnut.

When the building is completed, the beauty salon will be in the rear, instead of the front, and will have entrances both from the store and on Walnut street. The modernized establishment will also incorporate the space formerly occupied by Joe's Electric Shoe shop.

BAPTIST HOME PLANNING TOURS

Children Will Visit Principal Denominational Churches Of State

Three groups from the Louisiana Baptist Children's home will leave next Saturday for their itineraries throughout the state. When they have returned on August 6, the entire state will have been covered, programs having been given by the local children in a large majority of Baptist churches of Louisiana, stated Superintendent R. F. Wallace.

Of the groups to leave next Saturday, one will be by school truck furnished by J. C. Byram and accompanied by Superintendent Wallace. The children will visit Baton Rouge, Bogalusa and other nearby towns to give programs daily.

Scoutmaster Carl Brown will take his troop from the home for a trip through central Louisiana, while Rev. L. A. Materne, field representative of the home, will take a group to DeRidder and its immediate vicinity.

IT'S A LONG TIME BETWEEN PUMPS—WHEN YOU DRIVE AN OLDS!

OLDS 60 2-DOOR SEDAN 1939

RECORDS PROVE OLDSMOBILE ONE OF AMERICA'S LEADING ECONOMY CARS!

YOU'D NEVER THINK a car as big and powerful as Olds would be a gas miser. Yet, that's just what Oldsmobile is—a fuel saver if there ever was one. With Olds, you spend less time (and money) in gas stations and more on the open road. The big 90 H. P. Econo-Master Engine of the Olds Sixty gives you a wealth of live, eager power to master any kind of going. Yet, because it is precision-built and pressure-lubricated, because it embodies such advanced features as a high-efficiency cylinder head, completely cooled cylinders and pressure-cooled valves, it gets the utmost out of every drop of gas and oil. That's why an Olds Sixty was able to win first in its class in this year's Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run with an average of 21.4 miles per gallon over a tough 315-mile course. Come in and let us prove to you that Olds gives you quality plus economy!

YOU'LL GET A BETTER DEAL FROM OLDSMOBILE!
That's what our customers are saying all over town. Bring your present car in for appraisal and find out why. It will never be worth more than it is today, so why not get top value for it in trade on a big, new, money-saving Olds!
$777★ AND UP

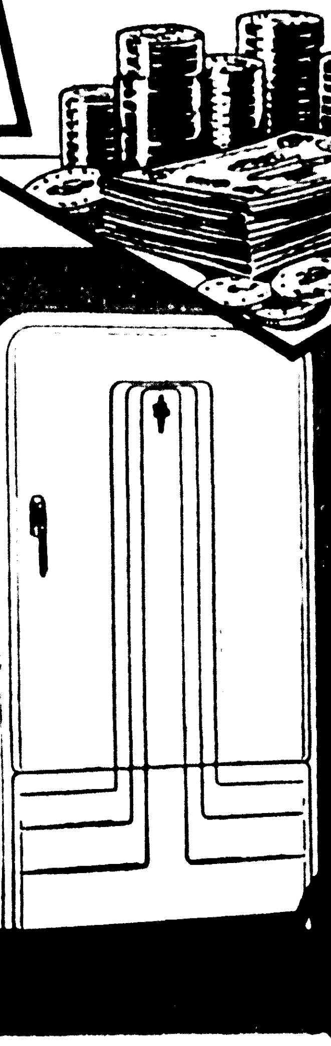
this REFRIGERATOR PAYS FOR ITSELF WITH SAVINGS!



Here's why: ITS FREEZING SYSTEM HAS No Moving Parts—

The SERVEL ELECTROLUX Gas Refrigerator

FREEZING with no moving parts saves you money in the first place because there's no wear, and secondly because you get the same low operating cost year after year.

Then, too, you'll find Servel saves you more on food . . . thru better protection, leftovers saved, permitting you to buy at quantity prices without risk of waste.

These savings total up to an amount which usually more than pays your monthly installment. Come in—see Servel Electrolux, the gas refrigerator, today!

- ▶ NO MOVING PARTS in its freezing system
- ▶ PERMANENT SILENCE
- ▶ CONTINUED LOW OPERATING COST
- ▶ MORE YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE
- ▶ CONTINUED SAVINGS THAT PAY FOR IT

OPERATES FOR AS LOW AS . . 1c PER DAY

DICK TRACY
YES, I TALKED TO HER, JUNIOR—AND I DON'T BLAME HER A BIT. WHY SHOULD SHE WAIT FOR ME? HE HAS EVERYTHING—I HAVE NOTHING.
I'M JUST A DETECTIVE! —A FLATFOOT, SOME CALL ME —AND AS UNROMANTIC AS A GLASS OF ICE WATER.
BUT YOU'VE BEEN TOO BUSY TO GET MARRIED, TRACY! MISS TESS OUGHT TO KNOW THAT.
FILES
HA! HA! TOO BUSY! THAT'S A GOOD ONE! TOO BUSY TO NOURISH THE MOST PRECIOUS THING THAT EVER ENTERED MY LIFE.
BELIEVE ME, EDWARD NUREMOH WAS SOME BALLPLAYER. HE BATTED .346 IN 1912 FOR THE N.Y. BLUE SOX!
SPORTS - DATA
YES! AND HE'S BATTING 1,000 TODAY—AND ABOUT TO GET A NEW CONTRACT!
MEANWHILE---
WHAT A BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY HOME, EDWARD!
IT'S BEEN IN THE FAMILY FOR OVER A HUNDRED YEARS, TESS, DEAR!
MOTHER, THIS IS TESS TRUEHEART.
REALLY! YOU'RE JUST AS SWEET AND CHARMING AS EDWARD DESCRIBED YOU IN HIS LETTERS. WELCOME, MY DEAR, TO SANDSTONE HEIGHTS.
THIS IS COUSIN KARL. KARL, THIS IS MISS TRUEHEART.
UH HU-HU ---UH! HEE! HEE!
AND NOW I WANT YOU TO MEET AUNT MARGOT. SHE'S THE REAL OWNER OF THE PROPERTY. SLIGHTLY ECCENTRIC AND AN INVALID, BUT DON'T MIND HER.
HUMPH! YOU'RE YOUNG AND PRETTY! I'M ABOUT TO DIE AND UGLY! IN BETWEEN THOSE TWO IS THE ONLY PART OF LIFE WORTH LIVING.
I'M SORRY YOU'RE NOT FEELING WELL.
AND NOW THAT YOU'VE VISITED THE GLOOMY RECESSES OF SANDSTONE HEIGHTS—HOW ABOUT GOING OUT INTO THE SUNSHINE OF THE TERRACE FOR A COCKTAIL?

Tarzan
by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS
"KILL HER! HURL HER TO THE GROUND!" THEY CRIED, RACING TO HER PRISON HUT.
AS THEY DRAGGED HER OUT, TARZAN KNEW HE MUST ACT AT ONCE. BUT WHAT COULD HE DO?
STEPPING FORWARD AS IF TO PROTEST, HE TRIPPED AT THE EDGE OF THE PLATFORM.
THE HORRIFIED AMAZONS SAW HIS BODY HURTLING DOWN UNTIL IT VANISHED IN THE FOLIAGE BELOW.
LINDA SCREAMED. THE MAN SHE LOVED, HER DEFENDER HAD FALLEN PERHAPS TO HIS DEATH.
MOST OF THE WARRIOR WOMEN SWARMED DOWN ANXIOUSLY TO LEARN HIS FATE.
BUT TARZAN'S FALL HAD BEEN A CLEVER TRICK. HE CLUTCHED A BRANCH AND HALTED HIS PLUNGE.
THEN SCREENED BY LEAFY BRANCHES, HE MOUNTED TO LINDA'S BALCONY, WHERE A FEW UNWARY GUARDS REMAINED.
AS TARZAN SEIZED THE GIRL AND FLED, THE AMAZONS WHEELED, THUNDERSTRUCK.
BUT THEIR SURPRISE TURNED QUICKLY TO FURY. NO MAN COULD MAKE FOOLS OF THEM!
HOGARTH—

HUM HO! WHAT A DULL DAY. SO...OH LOOK AT THAT WOMAN NEXTDOOR. HER EYES ARE RED. SHE'S BEEN CRYING.
ABOUT WHAT? I'LL BET SHE FOUND ANOTHER FLASHY LIPSTICK IN HER HUSBAND'S CAR.
OR MAYBE SHE SAW SOMETHING IN OUR CAR. SHE MAY BE CRYING OUT OF SYMPATHY FOR ME. WELL I'LL FIND OUT RIGHT NOW.
THOUGHT I'D DROP OVER, HONEY. AND...OH YOUR EYES ARE RED. YOU'VE BEEN CRYING.
COME IN, DEAR.
I'M SO SURPRISED TO SEE YOU CRYING, HONEY. WHAT'S...
IT'S NOTHING MUCH. I WAS PEELING ONIONS.
ONIONS? ONIONS? WELL...ONIONS!
YES, ONIONS. YOU SEEM SO, WELL, STUNNED, DEAR.
ONIONS! THE IDEA OF HER GETTING ME SO EXCITED. ABOUT NOTHING, TOO. HOW SILLY. HOW...
I ALSO THOUGHT SHE MIGHT BE CRYING ABOUT SOMETHING SHE SAW IN GEORGE'S CAR, TOO, DIDN'T I? YES.
WELL, AND WHERE THERE'S SMOKE THERE'S FIRE. HE GETS HOME AT ALL TIMES FOR SUPPER LATELY. HE'S ALWAYS DASHING AROUND TO SOME LODGE MEETING. HA HA!
OH HOW BLIND I'VE BEEN. WELL MY EYES ARE OPEN NOW. I'LL LET HIM KNOW THAT, TOO.
I'M A BIT LATE, BUT I HAD ANOTHER TERRIBLE DAY. MY FEET ARE AS SORE AS GRANDPA'S BUNIONS. AND I MIGHT HAVE TO GO TO A LODGE MEETING. IS SUPPER READY?
NO ANSWER. JUST A TOUGH LOOK. I WONDER WHAT THIS MEANS? WHAT HAVE I DONE LATELY? LET ME THINK. ANYHOW, I KNOW RIGHT NOW THIS IS GOING TO BE ONE OF THOSE EVENINGS THAT MAKES YOU WONDER WHY A BACHELOR IS EVER UNHAPPY.

MAMA, FEARING BIM'S WRATH, WENT INTO HIDING TO GIVE HIM A CHANCE TO COOL OFF – BUT– WITH THE UNERRING INSTINCTS OF A BLOODHOUND, FERD FERRETT, THE PRIVATE DETECTIVE, TRAILED HER TO HER HALL BEDROOM – DON'T PLAY DUMB WITH ME, MADAM – YOU KNOW RIGHT WELL WHY I'M HERE!!
MY BILL FOR TRAILING YOUR SON-IN-LAW – ADD ANOTHER $150 FOR TRAILING YOU – MAKING A TOTAL OF $400 – AND NO DISCOUNT
I HAVEN'T ANY MONEY RIGHT NOW, MR. FERRETT – BUT I'LL PAY YOU AS SOON AS I GET SOME – HAVE PATIENCE –
PATIENCE, MY GOOD WOMAN, IS NOT ONE OF MY VIRTUES!
GET THE MONEY FROM BIM GUMP – GOOD GRIEF! I CAN'T DO THAT!! IT'S ADDING INSULT TO INJURY – I HIRE YOU TO TRAIL HIM – THEN ASK HIM TO PAY THE BILL – WAIT!
I'VE GOT AN IDEA!!
GUS EDSON
WAIT HERE – I'LL SNEAK IN AND GET MY FUR COAT AND DIAMOND RING – YOU CAN HOLD THEM AS SECURITY!
ALL RIGHT – BUT NO TRICKS, MADAM! I WARN YOU – I'LL GIVE YOU 10 MINUTES!
B-B-BIMBO!
AHA! SO YOU'VE RETURNED, MRS. FLEECER! THERE ARE SEVERAL THINGS I WANT TO DISCUSS WITH YOU –!!
FOUR HOURS LATER –
NOW, DO I MAKE MYSELF CLEAR? THINGS ARE GOING TO BE ENTIRELY DIFFERENT AROUND HERE!!!
YES SIR – YOU'RE RIGHT, BIMBO – I'LL DO EVERYTHING IN MY POWER –
AND FURTHERMORE – GAD!! WHO COULD BE POUNDING THE DOOR LIKE THAT AT THIS TIME?

FOR THE LOVA MIKE! KAYO, DIDN'T I DISTINCTLY TELL YOU TO TELL HIM I WAS OUT?
YEH· BUT I THOUGHT HE WAS A OLD PAL OF YOURS, UNCLE WILLIE. HE SAID HE'D BEEN CALLING ON YOU EVERY WEEK FOR A LONG TIME WITH A BILL.
NOW, DON'T TRY AND TELL ME TO COME BACK NEXT SATURDAY FOR MY MONEY, MULLINS! YOU'VE PULLED THAT ONE FOR SIX STRAIGHT WEEKS.
WELL, MR. GROUCHER, SOME OTHER DAY. SAY WEDNESDAY. MIGHT SUIT YOU BETTER.
HELLO, MOONSHINE··· MY FRIEND, MR. GROUCHER IS HERE··· AND I TOLD HIM THAT I WOULD BORROW THE SEVEN DOLLARS I OWE HIM FROM YOU AND PAY HIM.
TELL GROUCHER YOU MADE A MISTAKE
BUT IT WOULD BE KINDA KEEPING THE MONEY IN THE FAMILY, MOON. I'D RATHER OWE IT TO YOU THAN TO HIM.
!?
WELL, I WOULDN'T! GROUCHER'S A WINDBAG. TAKE MY ADVICE AND TELL THAT BUM YOU'LL PAY HIM WHEN YOU GET GOOD AND READY AND TO TAKE HIS BILL AND – YOU AIN'T EVEN PAID NOTHING ON ACCOUNT.
I'LL GIVE YOU A SOCK ON THE SNEEZER, MR. GROUCHER, ON ACCOUNT OF YOU MAKING A PEST OF YOURSELF, IF YOU DON'T GET OUT.
MY STARS AND GARTERS!
WHERE'D JA GET TH' SHINER?
FOLLOWING SOME OF MOONSHINE'S SPLENDID ADVICE.
IF I'DA EITHER HAD SEVEN DOLLARS TO SETTLE A PALTRY DEBT OR SENSE ENOUGH TO KEEP MY TRAP SHUT, THIS WOULDN'TA HAPPENED –
IF I LOANED YOU $3.50 AND YOU GAVE IT TO THE MAN WITH A APOLOGY, I AM SURE YOU WOULD BOTH BE HAPPIER
THANKS A LOT, LADY PLUSHBOTTOM I'LL GIVE HIM THE DOUGH RIGHT AWAY.
AND DON'T FORGET THE APOLOGY
NOW, KAYO, LET THIS LEARN YOU A LESSON – ALWAYS REMEMBER THAT "POLITENESS PAYS!"
WHAT – AGAIN?
YES, M'AM, MR. GROUCHER KNOCKED ME BACK TO GET THE OTHER THREE-FIFTY.
